JAPAN ATTACKED BY LORD STRABOLGI

LONDON, Mar. 1.

LORD STRABOLGI was the centre of attention in the House of Lords this afternoon, when he asked for information concerning the war in China.

The Peer made particular reference to events in South China, and asked what steps the Government was taking to safeguard British trading rights and interests in Hongkong, what was the position regarding the Japanese invasion of Hainan, and whether any joint policy with interested Powers for bringing the struggle to an end was being pursued.

Lord Strabolgi said that the questions were not intended to be in any way hostile to the British Government.

Indeed, he said, Lord Plymouth's speech on December 6 was characterised by an unexpected, yet nevertheless welcome attitude of firmness on this vital question of British interests in China.

"Lord Plymouth's words appear to have contained a clear warning that our patience is not inexhaustible," Lord Strabolgi said.

"Since then, certain very important events had occurred in China. Hainan had been invaded, a great part of Hongkong is practically blockaded following the fall of Canton, and the Japanese authorities had levelled threats against the International Settlement authorities in Shanghai.

"I am glad to see to-day a modification of the Japanese attitude, but the so-called Nanking Government had used extraordinary language against British and French nationals in the Settlement."

Lord Strabolgi submitted that the invasion of Hainan was particularly offensive.

There was no military objective so far as war on the Chinese Central Government was concerned.

The French authorities in French Indo-China had stopped the trade in arms to China and even Red Cross material on the Japanese demand to return the Japanese had promised that Hainan would be recognised as in the French sphere of interest, and would not be attacked. They knew what had happened. This was an example of the uselessness of the policy of appeasement so far as Japan was concerned.

ONLY LANGUAGE

Referring to the new word from Burma to North-West China, Lord Strabolgi suggested that was the only language the Japanese militarists understood, and he added that if they looked at the situation broadly, the Chinese to-day were fighting on their knees.

"Supposing the Japanese had succeeded two years ago in breaking the Chinese resistance in 90 days, how long would it have been before they had been a direct threat to Hongkong, then to Malaya and the Dutch East Indies?" he asked.

"Supposing the Japanese had succeeded in subjugating the Chinese, and supposing we were involved in some difficulties in Europe, does anyone suppose that British interests in the Pacific would be left untouched?"

CRUELTY, BESTIALITY

"The war against China is not an old-fashioned war of conquest. It is being waged with the utmost cruelty and bestiality.

"In Manchukuo, the Japanese authorities are deliberately debauching the Chinese with opium and other harmful drugs.

"There has been a systematic destruction everywhere of Chinese universities and seats of learning. There has been produced in these occupied territories, a corrupt and dishonest regime which has indulged in all sorts of abuses, and has shut out all European and American commerce.

"The Foreign Office is aware of the horrible excesses which have taken place. When Nanking was occupied, the soldiers were allowed to run riot, and among those insulted were British and American representatives.

"In the past I have said many things against the regime in Germany, but on this occasion Nazi officials in Nanking behaved with great credit and firmness, and helped refugees under their care to escape from the slaughter and violence of these brutal, and apparently undisciplined, Japanese soldiers."

ATTACK ON JUNKS

Lord Strabolgi proceeded to protest against attacks on helpless fishing junks stating that there was a certain freemasonry at sea.

"The junk fishermen and sailors of China are a very fine race indeed. They have proved always ready to come to our help in ordinary accidents at sea.

"They take their wives and children with them, and to descend with aeroplanes and attack helpless fishermen is a most abominable act, for which words sufficiently condemnatory are difficult to find.

"I believe that some protests had been made, and I am not accusing the Government of being blind to all these terrible events."

GERMANS IN CHINA

Regarding the action of German Nazi officials in Nanking, Lord Strabolgi said that he was informed that German merchants were just as alarmed and disturbed by what had happened in China as our own merchants, and it was the German officials who had adopted an attitude of support and comfort for the Japanese authorities.

"There is a tremendous opportunity for the German Government to show its good faith, humanity, and will for peace, by joining with ourselves and other interested Powers in bringing pressure to bear diplomatically or economically to stop this adventure by the Japanese militarists in China.

"If Germany only wishes to make some return for the great advantages which Mr. Chamberlain had conferred upon her in pursuit of appeasement, there is a chance in China, where Germany's interests are identical with ours.

"Herr Hitler recently declared that Germany must export or die. There is an immense market in China, where the Germans will have no chance whatever if the Japanese policy proves successful.

"After two years of tremendous struggle, it is common knowledge that Japan, as a country, is economically vulnerable. She will be particularly vulnerable at the present time to economic pressure.

OUR FRIENDS IN CHINA

"Our friends in China, and our fellow citizens of the Chinese race, of whom we have many millions of good subjects in our Eastern possessions, are puzzled and disturbed to know why we have not been more active in seeking means to bring this horrible struggle to an end.

"Japanese merchants were making great strides in China before this military adventure, but the Japanese militarists do not want to see a peaceful, strong and united China. They wanted hegemony over the whole of China.

AUSTRALIAN FEARS

"The younger militarists, who seemed to be able to control the policy of the Japanese Government, make no secret of their aims. If they succeed, they will undoubtedly threaten Australia. Members of all political parties there had no illusions on the subject. (Lord Strabolgi recently visited Australia.)

"Surely the time has come when the causes of justice, decency, and fair dealing should prevail."

"These Christian and other causes suffered grievously in Government Reply To Attack By Strabolgi

LONDON, Mar. 1.

LORD PLYMOUTH, replying for the Government, said that the difficulty in approaching this question was to give practical effect to any desires or feelings one might have.

Although he agreed with much that Lord Strabolgi had said, he doubted whether Lord Strabolgi had given serious thought regarding the actual practicability of some of his suggestions.

After giving the House information regarding the recent events in China, Lord Plymouth referred to the action the British Government was taking to protect British interests in China, particularly in Hongkong.

He said that the Pearl River was of supreme importance to the trade of Hongkong. The opening of this river to British trade was provided for in the Anglo-Chinese treaty of 1842. It was first closed to navigation by the Chinese authorities on October 13, and a protest was then made by the British Consul-General in Canton.

PEARL RIVER CLOSURE

Since the occupation of Canton by Japan, the Japanese had maintained the closure of the river, and the British Government had been actively engaged in endeavouring to secure its re-opening. He was sorry to say that these efforts had not so far been effective. The possibility of taking further steps towards this objective was at present under consideration.

Lord Plymouth added that, in any event, the British Government proposed to continue, as at present, to do all in its power to secure British trade and shipping in the occupied areas in China from discrimination in favour of the Japanese, or any other interests.

The latest available information indicated that the customs at Canton, while they had not actually been brought under Japanese control, had been subjected to a certain measure of control by the Japanese, as in the case of the Shanghai customs, and a number of Japanese nationals were being added to the staff.

HAINAN ISLAND

The customs at Hainan on the island of Hainan had been treated in the same way. It was largely due to the courage and tenacity of Mr. Hooper, the deputy Commissioner, at that time in charge of the customs in Canton, that the customs administration in that port had been held intact throughout the attack on Canton, and its capture by the Japanese.

Airways To The Orient

LONDON, Mar. 1.

ASKED IN the House of Commons to-day regarding the Imperial Airways services to Singapore, Captain H. H. Balfour, Under-Secretary for Air, stated that out of a total of 22 scheduled services due to arrive in Singapore from England between January 1 and February 22 last, 12 arrived late and ten punctually.

Captain Balfour gave no answer when asked how these figures compared with the Royal Dutch services.

Replying to other questions, Captain Balfour said that four cases of delay were due to engine trouble, six to bad weather, and two to misconnections with other aircraft.

K. L. M. COMPARISON

Mr. G. L. Mander: "Can he say why the Dutch operate more punctually than Imperial Airways?"

Captain Balfour: "I cannot accept that the Dutch services, taking things all round, and after all considerations, are more efficient than Imperial Airways."—Reuter.

PALESTINE DEADLOCK Jewish Terms For Ending Impasse

LONDON, Mar. 1.

THE JEWISH DELEGATION has decided to continue to take part in the Palestine conference only on condition that the British proposals are decisively modified, according to well-informed Jewish circles here.

They add that the Jewish delegates, in the course of an informal conversation with the British representatives, requested that before the discussions were resumed, the Cabinet should make known in writing, its acceptance of the concessions demanded.

It is further stated that Mr. Malcolm MacDonald informed delegates that he personally was unable to give any undertaking of this kind, and that the Jewish demands must be submitted to the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary.

McMAHON REPORT

LONDON, Mar. 1.
Questioned in the House of Commons respecting the McMahon correspondence, Mr. R. A. Butler said that its publication was delayed because the Arab representatives had made suggested alterations in the translations, and these were now being considered.

As soon as they agreed, the official texts would be produced.

Opposition members pressed for the text as circulated to the members of the Palestine conference.

Mr. Butler replied that he would consider the question with Mr. Chamberlain.

A meeting of the Jewish panel in connection with the Palestine talks will be held, "Reuter" understands, this evening, to discuss the vital questions of continuing the talks with the British Government.

The panel has been in cable communication with its various com-

SHORTAGE OF MONKEY GLANDS

SYDNEY.

ITALIAN poison gas attacks during the Abyssinian campaign killed so many monkeys that there is a shortage of rejuvenation glands, according to a well-known Australian doctor. He is Dr. H. Leighton-Jones, who has returned here after spending nearly a year studying the latest methods of Professor Voronoff at the Institute of Physiological Research in Paris.

Dr. Leighton-Jones explained that, at his headquarters at Dora Creek, near Newcastle, he had rhinus monkeys drawn from Abyssinia, for years.

"The poison gas used by the Italian in their attack upon the Abyssinians killed off great numbers of these monkeys," he said in an interview here.

"The result is that now I am short of monkeys. I will have to alter my source of supply, and I expect to get some from India. At Dora Creek I have only two left, and I have seven persons awaiting the rejuvenation treatment with the glands."

"SPARE PARTS"

Dr. Leighton-Jones doubted whether human glands would supplant monkey glands in the rejuvenation treatment.

Voronoff, however, visualised a "spare parts hospital" of the future, where portions of the bodies of healthy persons killed in accidents would be stored for use in the restoration of human beings to health by grafting and other forms of treatment.

"Voronoff claims that nobody should die under 100 years, unless he is suffering from some disease," said Dr. Leighton-Jones.

Flats Called Bane Of Art

SYDNEY, Australia. Roy Rousel, famous Australian artist, blames flat for the decline of art. "Because there is no space for hanging pictures, there is no demand for them," he declares. He admits that high taxes and motor cars have also contributed to the slump by diverting art purchasing power elsewhere.

FIVE IN THE BACK SEAT

Five passengers in the back seat proved too weighty for a woman's 8 h.p. car and it tipped up so that the front wheels left the road.

The driver, Mrs. Florence Kathleen Dawson, of Hopson Gardens, New Malden, was unable to steer and the car struck an island.

At Wimbledon recently when summoned for carrying a dangerous number of passengers Mrs. Dawson pleaded, "I have been punished enough. Luckily I was the only one injured."

The magistrates dismissed the case on payment of 5s. costs.

Wife's Action Against Duke Of Leinster

An action has been entered in the Court of Session, Edinburgh, by the Duchess of Leinster against the Duke of Leinster, who is the Premier Duke, Marquis and Earl of Ireland.

The issue of the rolls of the Court contains the following: "Agnes Ruffelle (otherwise Ruffelle) Kennedy or Van Neck or FitzGerald, Duchess of Leinster, residing at Westminster Gardens, S.W.1, against Edward FitzGerald, Duke of Leinster, presently residing at Court Royal Hotel, Lancaster Gate, W.2."

The Duke, who is 46, married Mrs. Van Neck, an American, in 1932, after their engagement had several times been denied.

He previously married Miss May Etheridge, former Gaiety chorus girl, in 1913. That marriage was dissolved in 1930 and the Duchess died in 1935.

He Has To Chant In The Mess

THE sergeant's mess of the 2nd Battalion Grenadier Guards, Wellington Barracks, has the largest and finest wooden spoon in the British Army.

It is the trophy awarded annually to the worst shot in the mess.

PLACE OF HONOUR

Its winner this year is Lance-Sergeant W. Scholfield, a guardsman in his twenties, promoted last March.

The spoon hangs in a place of honour. It is the first thing a young sergeant sees when he first walks through the mess door.

Occupying positions of less importance in glass cases round the walls are proud relics of the regiment's history.

The spoon is six feet long and was carved from an aeroplane propeller in Alexandria, Egypt, when the regiment was there in 1937.

LIST OF RULES

Beside it on the wall hangs its charter of original and a list of rules. Here are some of them:

"The winner shall receive a money prize not exceeding 5s., which he must give to charity."

"He is responsible for the said spoon's welfare and must report monthly on its good order."

When the spoon is presented, the rules specify that a supper shall be held, and during supper the winner shall, with all due ceremony, have

"She is utterly unreliable," said the coroner. "She has confessed to telling lies. She was very pert at first but broke down when I began to question her."

"I must express my regret at the way this girl gave evidence," The waitress, Miss Ellen Williams, said she lit a cigarette after she had dressed and gone into the kitchen, but did not smoke in the bedroom.

Singapore "No Horn" Rule Very Ambiguous

Singapore.

THE sounding of horns by vehicles in Singapore, as from March 1, will be prohibited "except for the purpose of avoiding an accident."

Many motorists are wondering what exactly is the meaning of "except for the purpose of avoiding an accident."

Would a motorist, finding a pedestrian strolling right in front of him, be within his rights in sounding his horns?

He could argue that his action was intended to avoid running into a jay-walker.

If he encountered a number of cyclists riding three abreast and practically blocking a narrow street, would he be entitled to sound his horn?

If he did not and proceeded, an accident might occur.

Exactly in what circumstances is the motorist to be permitted to sound his horn?

"To avoid an accident" seems so ambiguous that it may mean anything from clearing a crowd of pedestrians or cyclists to a warning foot at busy junctions to ensure that reckless or ignorant drivers do not shoot out heedlessly.

TRUST TO LUCK?

Can it be that the new rule is intended to mean that no horn sounding may be permitted except when an accident or collision seems imminent?

Then, and not until then, may the motorist toot his horn and trust to luck?

Motorists can well understand that the aim of the horn restriction is to eliminate unnecessary noise.

"But when they are told not to give any warning tools except to avoid accidents, it seems like telling them not to touch their horns until they are in the middle of a crash."

Remembering how Singapore Asiatic pedestrians used the roads and their flagrant disregard for all traffic signals, said another, the silence rule could only mean that all cars must come to a dead stop when pedestrians carelessly crossed their path and did not take the trouble to look out for fast traffic.

EXISTING PROVISION

A rule already existed, it was pointed out, prohibiting motorists from excessive horn sounding.

Could not this same rule be applied to eliminate unnecessary noise?

Experience had shown that no motorist, unless he was insane, went round sounding his horn like a fire engine. The horn was made and intended to be used to give warning to careless pedestrians.

Eliminate the careless pedestrians and horn sounding would automatically stop, it was suggested. But to stop the "horrning" and to allow jay-walkers to cross the roads at their own pleasure and without looking, threw the entire responsibility on the motorist.

that they were interested in the discussions now proceeding between the Council and the Japanese authorities in Shanghai, and he understood that the United States Ambassador had made similar representations.

Lord Plymouth said that the Government deplored the occurrence of these outrages, but he could not give the House any further information as that matter was now under discussion between the local Japanese authorities and the Municipal Council.

NANKING'S "WAR"

Referring to the press reports that the "Reformed Government of Nanking" had been compelled to announce a silent declaration of war against the International Settlement, and British and French ships, Lord Plymouth said that he had not yet received any confirmation of this from the British Ambassador, and he was of the opinion that they should await this before considering the question of making representations to Tokyo.

It should be remembered in this connection, that the British Government did not, any more than the Japanese Government, recognise the Reformed Government of Nanking, and any pronouncements made by that Government need not be taken too seriously.

TIENTSIN SITUATION

Dealing with the situation at Tientsin, Lord Plymouth said that the position, broadly speaking, was as he described it last December. He added that the British Government had made it clear to the Japanese that there was no lack of co-operation on the part of the Concession authorities, who were prepared to arrest and hand over any person guilty of terrorism, or any other criminal act, provided always that adequate evidence of identification was produced, and a prima facie case established.

GOVERNMENT'S POLICY

Generally, the Far Eastern policy of the Government was based on the Nine-Power Treaty and the Government was therefore at some pains to make it clear to the Japanese Government, in a note addressed to it on January 14, that they could not recognise changes involving infringements or derogations of the provisions of this treaty which were brought about by force, or the unilateral modification of its terms.

Lord Plymouth added that they could not agree that the treaty was obsolete, or that its provisions no longer met the situation, except so far as the situation had been altered by Japan in contravention of its terms.

TREATIES ETERNAL

The Government contended that treaties were eternal, and if the Japanese Government or any other signatory had any constructive suggestions to make regarding points on which it thought the treaty might be improved, the British Government would be ready to consider them, and enter into negotiations with all the other signatories regarding the modifications and suggestions.

Similarly, the Government was always ready to resume negotiations with the Chinese Government on the subject of extraterritoriality, or other similar questions when peace was restored.

A note embodying these points was addressed to the Japanese Government on January 14, but so far the Japanese Government had not seen fit to return any reply.

Lord Plymouth said that he always pointed out that in the view of the Government no measures such as those Lord Strabolgi had described were really of any use in solving this difficulty, or of helping the situation, unless they were to be effective measures. If measures of the kind Lord Strabolgi described, such as economic sanctions of a various kind, were attempted, it was absolutely essential that action should be taken by interested parties at the same time.

HOW BRITAIN HELPED

In conclusion, Lord Plymouth said that he wanted to bring the attention of the House to the various ways in which the Government had assisted the Chinese Government in an extremely difficult position. Since the beginning of the war, we had kept Hongkong open as a means of communication with China. That channel could not longer be made use of when Canton fell. In addition, we built a road from Burma to the Chinese border. We had more recently taken powers under the Export Guarantees Act which would enable us to give guarantees more easily to China.

He could assure Lord Strabolgi that the general position was constantly under consideration, and was never lost sight of.

PRESSURE ON JAPAN

Lord Plymouth said that he had been asked if there was any possibility of bringing pressure to bear on the Japanese Government with a view to bringing the war to a speedy end. It would be difficult and erroneous to say that he thought there were prospects of being able to achieve that object. The Government was in close and constant consultation with the Powers concerned on matters affecting their common interest, with a view to securing a settlement which would be fair and just for both sides, and which would take all and proper account of the interests of third parties.

The Government had communicated to the Chinese and Japanese governments that it was ready at all times to use its good offices, and it would not hesitate to take all necessary steps as soon as the moment appears appropriate.

"I must admit that at present, the situation does not appear to have changed in this respect since I addressed the House last December. I cannot look upon the prospect as good."

Lord Strabolgi thanked Lord Plymouth for his statement, and the matter was dropped.—Reuter.

Seeks Asylum For Loyalists

Fear Of Reprisals
By General Franco

LONDON, Mar. 1.

MR. ARTHUR HENDERSON asked in the House of Commons to-day whether the Government was prepared to offer full rights of an asylum to all Spanish Republican leaders and followers unable to remain in Spain because of possible reprisals.

Mr. Geoffrey Lloyd, declared that the Government was always anxious to maintain the traditional policy of offering an asylum to foreigners who wished to take refuge for political, racial, or other reasons.

The number that could be admitted was necessarily limited, but if arrangements could be made for the maintenance of a limited number of Spanish Republican leaders and followers, applications for admission would receive the Home Secretary's sympathetic consideration.—Reuter.

U. S. RECOGNITION

Washington, Mar. 1.
The Government to-day was urged to take immediate steps to recognize General Franco by the Democrat, Senator Chavez, speaking in the Senate.

and Asia-Minor in the last six months.

"The wicked flourish, and civilised ethics and humanity are flouted."

"Cannot we begin to redress the balance in favour of these great causes in Asia? We can rely upon the whole-hearted help of India, Australia, and New Zealand, and, I believe, also Russia, France, and Holland."

PEACEFUL POLICY

"The policy I am advocating is a peaceful policy which can be accomplished without a shot being fired. We consider this task should have been undertaken by the League of Nations over ten years ago. In any case, if the British Government would seek means of bringing collective pressure to bear, first in diplomatic channels, and then, if necessary in economic and financial fields, we believe that that would be enough."

"A lesson to the aggressors is long overdue. A lesson is needed that brute force, terrorism and bestial cruelty does not pay, and brings sure punishment."

Government, Senator Chavez added: "We must not jeopardise our improved relations with Latin-America merely because of the domestic problems of a European country."—Reuter.

MARYKNOLL SCHOOL

Parents Entertained At Annual Prize-Giving

The Maryknoll Convent School kept open house for parents on Monday and again yesterday, when students invited their parents to come in and audit their lessons. Yesterday's function closed with the distribution of prizes and an address by the Rt. Rev. J. E. Walsh, Superior General of Maryknoll, New York, who is in the Orient making his triennial visitation of the Maryknoll Missions.

The full text of the School report for the year, which was read by the Rev. Fr. A. Granelli, will appear to-morrow. The following is the address given by the Rt. Rev. Walsh, and the prize list:

The Maryknoll Convent School has not been founded very long, but I think we may say it has been founded very well. Its origin is found in the desire of the Maryknoll Sisters to express in the educational life of the Colony the ideal that animates their own lives. The actual corner stone of the building emphasizes this notion in dedicating the school to the glory of God through the Maryknoll ideal. There were also other foundation stones no less important. One was the invitation of the Vicar Apostolic of Hongkong that authorized the Sisters to launch their enterprise. Another was the co-operation of the Government that not only empowered the new school to operate, but has also aided it in a material degree to operate successfully. To this may be added the very gracious encouragement of Sir Andrew Caldecott, the then Governor, who performed the unusual courtesy, as I have been informed, of rising from a sick bed to lay its cornerstone in person. May I not mention also the constant solicitude of Father Granelli, the master of the parish, to whose children the school chiefly caters, as a further element that has contributed greatly to the strength of the foundation? And let us include as a final bulwark, the confidence reposed in the school by its clientele, expressed by the students themselves in their loyalty to the school, and manifested by their parents in entrusting them to the school.

When many factors concur to inspire in this fashion to further a work dedicated to the glory of God, it is surely not fanciful to see in this concatenation of favorable circumstances an evident sign of the blessing of God. We are thus emboldened to think that the legend of the school's cornerstone is perfectly capable of realization. If the Sisters can translate and express the Maryknoll ideal in their own lives and in their teaching, in such fashion as to incorporate and develop it in the lives and in the education of their pupils, we may indeed hope that the glory of God will be served as God Himself most wants it to be served, and that is by the happy development and correct guidance of His children and while flower of a blameless life that offers the best fragrance in His sight, and it is doubly precious when that graceful bloom is preserved in the heart of a child.

Maryknoll Ideal
The Maryknoll ideal that the Sisters seek to express in their educational work involves an outlook on this present life that differs from the ordinary one. It is far from neglecting or minimizing the demands of a complete participation in the affairs of the world. On the contrary, it seeks to prepare you for playing a full, a significant, and even, if possible, a dominating part in the concerns that motivate and agitate men and women here and now. It would keep your feet on the ground, only it also wants to direct your eyes to the skies. It thinks you will walk a better path and do a finer work if you will keep your vision fixed beyond the stars. The Maryknoll ideal is itself a vision. It believes in developing all the faculties and gifts that one possesses, in realizing and expressing them to the full in education and utilizing their utmost possibilities, in a word, in evolving and energizing the maximum self as a finished instrument; and then in taking that instrument with all its powers and capabilities, and turning it graciously, generously, and completely, to the service of God and men.

Direction and Development
The story of your lives will be told in two words, and these magic symbols are: direction and development. The ideal of your school will serve as your never failing direction, if you are true to it. If your eyes are kept on the goal, your feet will not stray far from the path. But how far and how fast will you run? This is Prize Giving Day, and St. Paul tells us to run so that we may obtain. Development is the great prize of life, the final assurance that you utilized your gift of life to realize your finest self, but only life itself can tell this story. When students graduate from school, they are presented with diplomas for work well done. The whole occasion is surrounded with an air of festivity and congratulation, and the graduate inevitably feels the glow of accomplishment. It is not the best orientation. Nothing has been accomplished, but something has been begun. A better service to graduates would be to substitute for the diploma a blank piece of sheepskin on which was inscribed the one word: Development. Graduation is so much the ending of school as it is the beginning of life, and the whole story will be told later on by the real education that continues in the great university of life. See a given group of graduates twenty years later. Some few will have sharpened and developed the faculties first trained in school until they have reached an amazing degree of penetration and efficiency, and these few will be found leading purposeful and significant lives, keen and well rounded men and women who touch life at many points and ornament all they touch. Others who gave the same promise will have so seriously neglected their incipient gifts throughout life that life will have obscured and finally taken away those gifts. And the rank and file will have so mixed idealism with compromise and effort with dalliance, that they will be written down as nearly passable members of the insignificant herd who took all they could get from life and put very little into it, even as you and I. Development is what we shall have missed, and thereby life became a bungle, even though school was a success.

Success a Prelude
It is not to minimize the prizes of school that we speak of the prizes of life. Academic excellence is a principal aim of the school, and there is inherent in this occasion a splendid success for which both pupils and teachers merit the fullest congratulatory success. We merely think of one success as a prelude to the greater success. You have probably heard the remark that a man who has no education finds himself obliged to use his brains, and similarly the corollary that a man who has no brains had better get an education. These are ways of saying that an education is the next best substitute for brains, and the grain of truth in the comment means simply that an education, although a very precious aid, is limited in value and cannot profess to be a panacea for every ill. The real and whole truth of the matter is that untutored brains likewise fail to meet adequately all the demands of life, and consequently what we want is the combination of the two. Let us not rely on brains alone, but let us rely on education, let us not rely on education alone, but let us rely on education and brains together, directing and energizing and curbing and refining each other, working harmoniously and working all the time, through life as well as through school; and that is development that insures the prizes of life.

To open the mind to see the prizes of life, and to sharpen the mental faculties to seize upon and enjoy them as their proper object, are legitimate functions of education, and I believe they are being emphasized here. In the short but searching report of Father Granelli, the weekly class in Art and Music Appreciation that unites so many students in a general assembly is singled out for special commendation, and it seems to me with good reason. This is training for one of the prizes of life, and I call that prize Beauty. Again the report emphasized the noble qualities of the students in contributing to the poor fund and other forms of relief, and this activity must give a strong bent towards another great prize of life, and that is Charity. And finally appreciation was expressed for the success of the students in winning the prize for Christian Doctrine instruction, and this devotion to revealed truth and interest in the search for truth indicate a tendency to reach for a third important prize of life, and we may name it Truth. And these three are the only prizes that life holds: Beauty, Charity, and Truth.

World of Beauty
Beauty is everywhere, and it is one purpose of education to train us to see it and to see what it means. You look upon the works of art and genius elaborated by gifted men, but do you look behind them to see the Creator Who gave those gifts to men? Everyday you gaze upon the luminous sky of this favored spot, the shimmering jade of the South China Sea, the contour of a cloud, the miracle of a tree; but do you know that all these created beauties are but the hem of His garment, so many hints and glimpses and gleams of His own infinite beauty that were designed to speak to us of His presence? And can you see that beauty in less likely places? Can you look at the lotus and forget the silt?—Can you watch the tiny drop of muddy water in the stagnant pool and realize that in a ray of the life-giving sun will still down and find it in its murky puddle to set it as a sparkling snowdrop on a mountain top? Can you look past the dirt and detect the smile on the face of the beggar child? And do you know that no beauty of earth or sky was ever so divine as the clarity of charity, and that no gift is quite so precious in the sight of God as a cup of cold water given to one of His least brethren in His name? Clarity, and Beauty, and Truth are the prizes of life. So run that you may obtain.

The Maryknoll Sisters are sensible of the trust that is reposed in them. They hope to incorporate their own ideal of service to others in the lives of the pupils that are entrusted to their care. They think all the friends and well-wishers of the Maryknoll Convent School whose generous cooperation has helped them so materially in the cherished task which is theirs.

PRIMITIVE INSTINCTS

Thought-Provoking Talk By The Rev. A. P. Rose

At the weekly meeting of the Peace Pledge Union, held at the Challenge Book Shop yesterday, an interesting and thought-provoking address entitled "What About Primitive Instincts?" was delivered by the Rev. A. P. Rose, of St. John's Cathedral.

A Look Through The "Telegraph"

50 YEARS AGO

March 2, 1889.
The marriage of the Emperor of China, Kung-mu, to Yeh-ho-an-lin, niece of the Empress Dowager and cousin of the Emperor, took place on February 26.

25 YEARS AGO

March 2, 1914.
Mr. Asquith had received an important non-party deputation advocating National Service. The deputation was headed by Lord Roberts, General Sir Evelyn Wood and also representatives of the Navy, the Territorial Army, the Church and the professions.

Mr. Asquith emphasized the point that an important sub-committee of the Imperial Defence Committee was considering the whole question and had practically come to a unanimous decision, which would show that the Navy was as capable as ever it had been for protecting the country from invasion. He affirmed that the Territorials had shown a vast improvement on the Volunteers, but they might require more encouragement in some respects. He considered, looking at the present condition of the Navy and the Army, that the deputation's apprehensions were groundless and he did not favour compulsory service.

10 YEARS AGO

Feb. 27, 1929.
A severe indictment of the Parliamentary system in Germany was made today by Dr. Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the German People's Party.

The meeting was convened in order that the Committee might discuss the possibility of forming a "new coalition" Government in the Reich, independent of the present Government of Prussia. Following recent elections, the leaders of the Nationalist Social German Workers' Party had submitted to President Hindenburg a statement of the policy and aims of the organization which he declared would make his official attempt to capture the world's land-speed record for Great Britain at Daytona Beach on March 6.

The result of the test increases the confidence that this unique car, the "T-1" in the history of motoring to date, will make his official attempt to capture the world's land-speed record. The present record stands at just over 207 miles an hour, and is held by Mr. Ray Ketch, an American.

5 YEARS AGO

March 2, 1934.
A cheque for $250,000,000, has been refused drawn by the United States Government. The cheque was handed to the Panama Government's fiscal agent in New York in payment for the legal obligations of the United States under the Canal Zone Treaty of 1904. The agent called to Panama for instructions and was ordered to refuse to acknowledge the cheque.

Monday, March 13.—Annual general meeting of the European Y.M.C.A. at which Secretary's report and statement of accounts for 1938 will be presented, will be held in West

The speaker began his talk by asking: "Does the existence of primitive instincts in man's nature provide an inevitable obstacle to the realization of the pacifist's aims?" If it were true, he said, that man was determined by certain non-rational instincts which he had inherited from his animal ancestors—instincts which could neither be modified nor acquired in the lifetime of an individual and of which reason was the servant and not the master—then, if the natural object of any of these instincts was violence and aggression, it looked as if war was at times inevitable.

Thus McDougall, among twelve other well defined instincts found both in animal and man, included what he called the "combative instinct," which was brought into operation by the thwarting of any of the other instincts—the parental, food-seeking, gregarious, self-assertive, acquisitive, etc. Its object was then to come in to play until the obstruction to the expression of the thwarted instinct was removed. Its mode of achieving this was, however, non-rational and violent.

Sublimation of Instinct

"It may be thought," continued the speaker, "that the psychologist will find a solution for the problem he has raised by suggesting that we sublimate the offending instinct. Let us try to turn this fierce and violent impulse into other channels, if possible useful; if not, as harmless as may be. Let us advocate blood sports, where guns can be fired at living creatures, and blood shed with the least threat to the life and happiness of the world in general. Let us keep automatic ministers of war well supplied with new hunting suits and plenty of stung forests and they won't want to plunge Europe into war. Or perhaps the instinct may be satisfied vicariously by watching scenes of violence and bloodshed—boxing, all-in wrestling, bullfights. For others a satisfactory sublimation might be achieved by absorption in films dealing with war, murder and gangsters, or even the humble thriller may serve its purpose in drawing away the fiery humours of our animal nature."

"Yet we cannot help feeling some misgivings about this simple solution. Instincts are directed towards specific objects; how far will they submit to being hoodwinked and put off with emasculated substitutes? Is the image on a silver screen of a celluloid film star an adequate alternative for the individual woman of flesh and blood to the unsatisfied mating or sexual instinct? Or is snatching the top off weeds in the garden, and driving nails into wood as satisfying to the combative instinct as cutting off the heads of women, or driving bayonets into their bodies? Some might be inclined to think that these alleged sublimations only serve to stimulate and irritate rather than satisfy the questing instinct which is hedged around with the ineffective barriers imposed by civilization."

Mr. Rose then went on to deal with the "herd instinct," which combined the violence of the combative instinct with the powerful group feeling and impulses which swept through the herd when they felt that their safety was menaced and against which the individual could rarely make a stand. It seemed difficult and impossible, he said, to see how such an impulse could be diverted or sublimated to peaceful ends, where its nature was bound up with rivalry and violence.

The speaker concluded by saying that either there was grave error in the theory of innate, specific, non-rational instincts determining man's behaviour, or else the ideals of the complete pacifist must undergo radical modification.

WILD DUCKS

COLUSA, Cal.

Canadian wild ducks are getting just so "ducky" that when migration time comes they want a free train ride instead of taking to the wing. T. J. Main, of Winnipeg, manager of Ducks Unlimited, here to make arrangements for the receiving end of the migration, said that so many wild ducks had remained in Alberta because of the mild weather that 10,000 of them would be shipped south before cold weather might endanger their lives.

Aid and Comfort

All will welcome the news that moral suasion has ended the situation by which the United States was supplying airplanes for Japan's bombing of Chinese civilians. The U.S. National Munitions Control Board reports that applications for licences to export planes and parts to Japan ceased last year. This was in response to an appeal by Mr. Cordell Hull to aircraft makers to stop this sorry business.

There have been some questions as to whether Japan was the only nation engaged in bombing civilian populations. But Japan was a clear-cut case. Moreover, American public opinion's strong opposition to the whole of Japan's war in China gave the State Department unquestioned support in this appeal.

With the intensification since Munich of American feeling about some of the allies of Japan, the same public opinion in the United States may now demand cessation of plane exports to Fascist countries. Certainly before American air fleets are developed on the scale now being proposed in Washington to match German air armaments, American exports of planes and motors to Germany should cease. The amount of these is in question, but one estimate recently published was to the effect that hundreds of German military planes are powered by American engines or engines built on plans licensed by American companies. Nearly U.S.$3,000,000 worth of air equipment went to Germany from 1932 to 1936.

The State Department has belittled the amount of American aid to Germany and has said that the granting of export permits is mandatory under the Neutrality Act to nations not at war. Two questions are involved here. One is how far planes and motors listed by the State Department as for civil aviation have been devoted to military use. There is some evidence that planes used in the bombing of Spanish towns have had American motors. Also it may be asked whether American supplies of civil aviation have not facilitated military aviation in Germany. The other question is whether the State Department can use its moral suasion also to stop exports which aid Fascist arming.

MANNERS MAKETH MAN

"Having frequent occasion to use buses travelling schoolwards, I have been most unpleasantly astounded at the liberties and discourtesies which Chinese boys and young men take, and are allowed to take, unrebuked and uncorrected."

Says

smug young China lolls at his of it unencumbered by the rare comparative ease and in oblivion. And the unfortunate temporary co-tenant of the double seat will probably find himself gradually and painfully edged into the gangway, what there is master or headmaster on campus.

N A SMALL Manchurian town two padded, blue-gowned little figures present themselves for their first lesson in English.

They arrived that bitter, iron-clad morning, their delicate, slender, well-bred small hands well tucked into wide-mouthed sleeves.

Before entering the school-room each paused on the threshold and performed courteous inclinations and uttered gentle words of smiling, respectful greeting.

Invited to enter, they stood side by side in submissive silence till bidden to take their seats. No extraneous chatter during the lesson, eager attention being given to every utterance of the instructor.

The lesson ended, again low bows and courteous thanks.

Nor was this attitude "new boy" timidity. Throughout the whole of their instruction the conduct of these little Eastern gentlemen was beyond reproach; the father—himself a charming old fellow, superficially at least—constantly enquiring as to their progress and behaviour.

"MANNERS Maketh Man." There may be something in it.

If so, future China appears to be in danger of emasculation.

Especially does young China seem unconscious of the benefits which accrue to himself and others, even in refraining from injury to feelings; and he might at times without undue search find an outlet for active courtesy.

Having frequent occasion to use buses travelling schoolwards, I have been most unpleasantly astounded at the liberties and discourtesies which Chinese boys and young men take, and are allowed to take unrebuked and uncorrected. Not merely towards the general public.

An expensively clothed, somewhat bloated young blood, as comfortably seated as our exiguous bus seating will permit, not only will allow his form-master to stand in the overcrowded vehicle, but will offer no sign of salutation or even of recognition.

I happen to know that this master is a graduate of Oxford, and ponder upon cause and effect, or vice versa.

FIVE GHOST STORIES

by F. G. H. Salusbury

THE trouble about most ghost stories—and this is the proper reason for them—is their source. In general, the better the story the more it owes to imagination; and the more blood-curdling it is, the greater the difficulty of pinning the curdler to actual experience.

The best ghost story I know—Henry James' "The Turn of the Screw"—is superb artistic imagination: its horror is terrific. These little stories of mine pretend to nothing terrific. They are devoid of imagination. I know all the people concerned as well as I know myself, and I promise you that the stories are entirely true. How to explain them is another matter.

1.—I will begin by saying that I once lived in a haunted house. I did not see the ghost myself, but I believe that he appeared twice.

There was a small party in my house—I was away—and the hostess and two guests were waiting for the others to arrive. When they trooped in, the hostess was horrified to see that one of them had brought an extra and unexpected girl—thus making an uneven number—but her horror was quenched the next second by the sight of a young man at the tail of the invasion.

This young man behaved rather oddly. He turned away immediately through the opened folding doors into my own particular room, which was deserted and in darkness. In the push of greetings the hostess decided hurriedly that he might have gone to telephone, but when, after five minutes, he did not reappear, she looked for him. She switched on the light. He had vanished.

No one else had seen him, and her inquiries were treated as leg-pulling. However, she had a perfect recollection of his face, and made a sketch of it afterwards—a sad young fellow, clean-shaven, and a little monkeyish.

2.—Six months later he arrived again. The hostess had brought some friends home after the cinema. They were talking when the door-bell rang—a stranger who had mistaken the house. This interruption reminded one of the guests that it was time to go. He went into the hall to collect his hat, and came back to report that he had seen me—he assumed it was I, though he had only seen a man's back—going into my room.

Again the room was found to be empty. I did not come home for another half-hour, and when I did, I was pinched to prove my solidity. It is interesting, perhaps, that this phantom had to have the front door opened for him.

3.—Now let us go back to pre-war Ireland, where the same hostess, then a girl of thirteen, was holidaying with her sister on a farm near Bantry.

The farm included an ancient English fort—a mound about the size of an average house—and the girls decided to excavate it.

Local superstition was against them, for any disturbance of these forts was believed to cause death, particularly among livestock. The farmer's wife, however, was a cheery, independent soul who bade them go ahead. So they began digging out an old, choked well which was supposed to be connected with the interior of the fort by a subterranean passage.

After two days, two cows fell sick, and three calves died. On the third day, the donkey lay down and would not get up. The farmer's wife, embarrassed and apologetic, though still claiming superiority to superstition, asked the girls if they would mind filling up their excavations: so they obliged.

As they were tipping back the last stones, on a hot, sunny afternoon, they both heard from over their shoulders, where no human being was, a laugh. "Ha, ha, ha!" it came, in dreadful bursts. And, from that moment, the cows and the donkey recovered.

4.—AGAIN in pre-war Ireland, this girl, accompanied by another sister and a friend, had a much more eerie experience. They were walking up a drive to the friend's house when, rounding a bend near the sea, the girl saw, silhouetted against the night sky, a tall, very thin man. He was standing on a bank, and jumped into the drive immediately in front of them.

"What was so awful," I am told, "was that he landed on the gravel in absolute silence; and his head was so small as to seem a mere button on his long, thin neck. I could feel my hair stirring. I began to cry. My friend, who told me afterwards that she had seen the thing before, turned us round and hurried us back to the lodge. She saw it, too, that time, and said that it followed us for about a hundred yards. But I didn't look. My younger sister didn't see anything.

"We went back to the place the next day, and I found that it would have been impossible to see anything silhouetted against the sky, because the bank was topped by bushes at least six feet high. So he must have been backed up by a curious glow of his own."

Some years ago, long after I was or street—the most that can be expected is a careless nod or grin. "Oh, but they must let off steam out of class!"

Let us investigate and, for our sins, participate in a teacher's purgatory.

Noise, inattention, covert or even open insolence to the instructor are far from infrequent. Upon the first stroke of the "break" bell follows a hideous scrape of scrambling feet and hurtling bodies in this unseemly exodus.

Master's permission to retire? Quite superfluous and, of course, unuttered, or if uttered would be unheard in the general din; nor are the final words of his peroration of the slightest use.

SUCH ATTRIBUTES—most disheartening to any friend of China—quite possibly arise from an ultra modern idea, not peculiar to the Orient, unhappily, that to display politeness is to lower dignity and suggest subjection.

Schoolmasters tell me that the difficulty with students is not in instruction (the average Chinese adolescent is by no means unintelligent) but to instill into their proteges any notion of the true nature of discipline is all but an impossible task.

The trouble would appear to be that old bugbear "loss of face."

A Chinese boy will not, as a rule, accept deserved punishment cheerfully, get "chopped" a little by his comrades, and then forget the whole episode.

He cannot rid himself of the (probably innate) notion that in undergoing correction he has lowered himself, not only in his own esteem but in that of his comrades and his superiors—if he by chance acknowledges any such!

CAST YOUR MIND back to the days of the old-type, long-gowned Chinese gentlemen—there are still some surviving. Recollect the honoured place which the tutor in the family or the master in the school occupied in the esteem of the father and the son. The tutor remained honoured and respected to the end of his days.

If the change is a regrettable one, to whom the responsibility, teacher or taught? One theory is that the Chinese, like the Mongolian pony, cannot take corn; or if he does, merely transforms good grain into monkey tricks, or worse.

told this story, a paragraph which I have before me, appeared in the old "Morning Post" about elemental earth spirits: It described them as "very tall, lean men—mere 'rickles o' bones', to use a North Country description—with small triangular heads." I thought this interesting. A woman I know intimately told me that she once saw a figure, which this description fits, moving along a road near Crawley, in Sussex. It seemed to her to have no head at all.

5.—Then there is the woman who told me that she and her sister, who were taking part in some amateur theatricals in a country house, wondered who was the man with the dark moustache sitting next their father in the front row of chairs. "There was no man," their father said afterwards. "Your aunt was on my left, but the chair on my right was empty."

My own supernatural experiences are confined to a chest of drawers and a cake of soap. The chest of drawers was in a house where I was staying. One night, just after I had got into bed, it emitted a loud bang—no mistake about that. The next morning I was told it had belonged to a woman—a friend of the family—who always closed the bottom drawer with a kick.

The cake of soap was in a Battersea house, said to be afflicted by a poltergeist or rowdy spirit. The psychic investigator and I went there. We watched and waited: nothing happened. We went upstairs, leaving the only other occupant of the house in the kitchen. We explored every room. And then, in the middle of a sunlit passage, along which we had walked a minute before, we saw a cake of yellow soap.

Facts, Mr. O'Dayrind, simple facts. What is one to make of them?

POWERFUL GERMAN AIR ARM

More Money For The British Army

Berlin, Mar. 1. A serious warning to the "war eager foreign democracies," reference to the powerful German air arm and a passionate appeal to German youth to report for service in the German air force, were the characteristic features of the broadcast speech by Field Marshal Goering to-day.

Every year after this, March 1 will be observed as "German Air Day" to commemorate the fact that it was on March 1, 1935 that Adolf Hitler authorised Hermann Goering to create an air arm as the third sector of the national defence forces alongside the army and navy. "Since that memorable day," said Marshal Goering, "I and my collaborators have built up an ever accelerated speed the most modern weapon that the nation now possesses. In close relationship with other parts of the defence forces, we men of the air have created an iron shield behind whose protection the German work can now proceed and develop undisturbed."

"I am proud that the German air arm has proved to be a powerful instrument in serving the creative statecraft of our Fuehrer. I know for a fact that our splendid air force has played a wonderful part in dealing with foreign democracies when they were a threat for war."—Trans-Ocean.

BRITISH ARMY

Huge Additional Sum To Be Spent This Year

London, Mar. 1. Britain has decided to spend an additional sum of £5,000,000 on the task of strengthening its chain of fortifications in the East formed by the naval bases at Singapore, Trincomalee and Aden, according to the Daily Express.

Interesting items are contained in the naval estimates published to-day. The modernisation of the defence at Singapore, which has already cost Britain a sum of £7,000,000, requires an additional expenditure of £2,600,000. A further £1,000,000 is appropriated to the complete construction of military and naval airports in and around this naval base.

Telencomee in Ceylon is to be fortified to such an extent as to make its defences second only to Singapore. It commands the sea and air routes on the Indian Ocean, Bay of Bengal and Persian Gulf, and possesses adequate reserves of ammunition and fuel to supply the requirements of a big fleet in time of war. It is also to have a radio station built at a cost of £180,000.

Improvement of the fortifications at Aden at the entrance to the Red Sea will be carried out at an estimated cost of £600,000.—Trans-Ocean.

EAGLE RECOMMISSION

London, Feb. 28. The aircraft carrier Eagle will be recommissioned at Singapore later in the year for further service on the China Station.

Normally, ships return to England for recommissioning but the Admiralty announces that on this occasion the new crew will be sent out to meet the Eagle at Singapore.

AUSTRALIAN GOVERNMENT AND REARMAMENT

Sydney, Mar. 1. The Australian Government parties will meet to-morrow for a joint session in order to discuss whether it is advisable to continue backing the present Australian Cabinet.

A crisis broke out because the Government wants to abolish the present system of compulsory insurance against illness. It is understood that the Attorney General, Mr. R. G. Menzies, threatened to resign, and that the Foreign Minister, Mr. W. M. Hughes, as well as the Treasurer, Mr. R. G. Casey, have the same intention.

The Premier, Mr. J. A. Lyons, is trying to find a compromise by postponing the new regulation on the national insurance system.—Trans-Ocean.

LOYALIST DECISION TO FIGHT

Acute International Crisis Expected

Paris, Mar. 1. The secret behind Loyalist Spain's decision to fight on lies in the belief that Senor Alvarez del Vayo has expressed both to the British and French Government that the situation internationally will become worse in the next few months with an acute crisis between the totalitarian and democratic states.

The Loyalist argument is that if they are able to hold out they will automatically benefit because they will be bound to receive support from London and Paris. If Franco sides with Hitler and Mussolini in a showdown.

Although official quarters both in Paris and London deny any reason for jitters on account of the Hitler-Mussolini plans, they speak freely of the record in the belief that something will happen. This, furthermore, is the explanation to be read into M. Daladier's statement in the Chamber discussion on Franco recognition that this year redoubtable difficulties have to be faced, and it further explains the spirit in Anglo-French staff talks, as well as co-ordination of their arms production.

Behind the official desire not to be alarmist, there is a persistent question which officials pose themselves: "Although Mussolini has not officially asked France for anything, we know very clearly he demands territorial satisfaction from France. Will he abandon his claims without any attempt to receive satisfaction, or, on the contrary, will he Rome-Berlin axis get to work in real earnest?"

Drawn Into Axis

The Loyalist Spanish leaders are convinced that Franco will be drawn into the axis plans despite his declaration of neutrality during the Munich conference. They argue—and it was the principal point which they used to try to induce President Azana not to resign before another few months—that Loyalist Spain will be saved because the democracies will be forced to act for their own safety.

The real reason Britain and France recognised Franco is based on the belief that if friendly relations are established it will be easier to induce him to remove the Italian and German submarines, bombers and fighters from the Spanish bases, including the Balearics, but Franco has given no real promise.

In the meanwhile, Mussolini and Hitler, with every interest, keep their military forces in Spain and await the next moves in the new phase in European politics.—United Press.

RECOGNITION OF FRANCO URGED BY BUSINESSMEN

Washington, Feb. 28. Well informed quarters here are of the opinion that the United States will soon follow the British and French lead in recognising General Franco's government, although some difference is apparent in official quarters.

President Roosevelt was notified regarding the British and French action at a State Department meeting while Senor Fernando De los Rios, Loyalist Ambassador to the United States visited the Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull, and pointed out that he still regards himself as Ambassador from the legal Spanish government.

It is understood that businessmen and others with interests in Spain are bringing pressure for recognition, which is regarded as being probable despite the wide differences of opinion existing in the United States.—United Press.

PRAGUE-LISBON

The Czechoslovak Foreign Ministry took steps for the resumption of the diplomatic relations with Portugal, broken off by Portugal in the autumn of 1937. At that time Czechoslovakia refused the delivery of machine-guns ordered by Portugal from an arms factory at Druxen. The reason given by Czechoslovakia was that the arms might be re-sold to Franco.—Trans-Ocean.

OTHER COUNTRIES

London, Mar. 1. Yugo-Slavia, Lithuania and Greece have given de jure recognition to Franco's Government.

Sweden has postponed decision until the northern countries have been consulted, while New Zealand and Canada are awaiting further information before deciding on recognition.—Reuter Bulletin.

NO SILK CAMPAIGN

Novel Propaganda Scheme For China in London

London, Mar. 1. Hundreds of balloons carrying messages of support for China and appealing to the people to use British rayon instead of silk were released at a meeting in London to-day in inaugurating the "no silk, no Japanese goods" campaign.

Vicountess Gladstone, presiding, declared that it was no pleasure to wear silk stockings, dresses and ties "when you know that the price you are paying for those things are really the lives of your fellow human beings."

Prizes were offered to those finding the most travelled balloons which were released by the actress, Hermione Baddeley.—Reuter.

Professor Indicted

Tokyo, Mar. 1. Dr. Ejiro Kawa, former Liberal Professor of the Economic Department of the Imperial University at Tokyo, has been indicted for violation of the press law. Some of his works are held by the authorities as injurious to public peace.—United Press.

Japan And Macao

Understanding Reached In Tokyo

Tokyo, Mar. 1. The Asahi Shimbun reports that Col. Gorgio, commander of the gendarmerie at Macao, who arrived in Tokyo early in February with a Japanese adviser, Shinzo Wada, has successfully concluded preliminary negotiations for co-operation between Japan and Portugal.

Col. Gorgio will leave Tokyo on March 5 for Macao and the Governor of Macao, Dr. Tamagnini, is expected to leave Macao early in April for Lisbon to undertake the final negotiations with the home Government.

It is said that the understanding, as a result of the preliminary negotiations in Tokyo, includes that Portugal recognises Manchukuo, the conclusion of a trade agreement to promote friendly relations between Japan and Portugal, Japan's co-operation with Portugal in promoting the economic prosperity of Macao, in return for which the Macao Government will extend every facility to the Japanese forces, and abolish the Chinese Customs house in Macao, and the establishment of a Japanese (Consul?) in Macao.

Some points of the understanding have already been carried out. A Foreign Office spokesman has denied knowledge of the understanding.—United Press.

Singapore

Ill-Treatment Of Japanese Is Alleged

Tokyo, Mar. 1. The Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Setsho Sawada, has again protested to the British Ambassador, Sir Robert Craigie, against alleged ill-treatment of Japanese nationals in Singapore by the British authorities. During the conference, which lasted 30 minutes, Mr. Sawada is understood to have drawn the attention of the British Ambassador to continued oppression despite protests in London and Singapore.

Japanese reports say that Mr. Sawada expressed concern at the recurrence of such cases, and particularly stressed the recent British action requiring Japanese possessing diplomatic passports to appear at Singapore police headquarters for questioning, which is allegedly a violation of the accepted international custom. The situation has become worse since the New Year.

It is understood that the British Ambassador stated he would inform London of the Japanese protest.—United Press.

America

Alleged Soviet Spy On Trial

Los Angeles, Feb. 28. The Federal Agent, Mr. G. B. Dierst, gave evidence to-day in the trial of Mikhail Gorin, aged 34, manager of a tourist bureau, and Halls-Salich, aged 34, a naturalized citizen, who are accused of diverting United States intelligence information to Russia.

Mr. Dierst testified that Gorin telephoned the Soviet Embassy in Washington five times on the night he was arrested, asserting that he required "authorisation from his superior," before submitting to questioning.

Mr. Dierst and two others testified that Salich admitted selling naval secrets to Gorin, but justified himself by saying that they concerned Japan, "the mutual enemy of Russia and the United States," that Gorin advised Salich "to lay off Germans," that the Soviet Consul instructed Gorin not to discuss his arrest, promising that "we are making no statement regarding papers found in your suite."—United Press.

SHOTS AT ROBBERS

Shanghai, Mar. 1. Chinese Municipal police opened fire on 15 armed robbers emerging from the scene of a shop robbery in Brennan Road this afternoon. The robbers replied, killing one of the policemen. All the robbers escaped.—United Press.

TIENSIN FEARS

Tientsin, Mar. 1. Tension similar to that between the Japanese authorities and the International Settlement in Shanghai, which has only just eased, has broken out again in Tientsin between the Japanese and the authorities of the British and French Concessions. It is learned in diplomatic circles here.

In addition to live wire entanglements erected around both Concessions by the Japanese, they have begun to build an extra bridge across the Hai River and a new road round the Concessions which threatens to isolate them entirely.

It is reported that the Japanese have a new set of orders ready, although these have not yet been issued to all Japanese citizens and Chinese with pro-Japanese leanings, to evacuate the two Concessions at a moment's notice.

The British, French and American authorities both in Tientsin and Shanghai are closely watching the situation.—Reuter.

Manchukuo

PU YI TO BE NAMED EMPEROR

London, Mar. 1. Japan is alleged to intend to proclaim Kang Teh (Prince Pu Yi), Emperor of Manchukuo, on the occasion of the celebration of the fifth anniversary of his reign, Emperor of the whole of China, according to the Daily Express.

The paper asserts that at present negotiations are going on between the Japanese and the Japanese controlled North Chinese Government for a settlement of the details concerning the planned proclamation.—Trans-Ocean.

CELEBRATIONS IN HSINKING

Hsinking, March 1. The city was in a festive mood to-day in celebration of the seventh anniversary of the founding of the Manchukuo Empire.

It is pointed out that the spectacular advance made by Manchukuo in a short space of time has been reflected in the formal recognition extended to her by six foreign Powers including Japan, Salvador, Germany, Italy, Spain and Hungary.

It is claimed that bandits, regarded as one of the staple products of Manchukuo together with beans, has now been reduced to 100th part, from a total of 300,000 seven years ago to 3,000.

The five-year industrial plan is also being successfully executed so that Manchukuo is now entering the third year of the industrial plan.—Reuter.

Tokyo Celebration

Tokyo, March 1. In celebration of the seventh anniversary of the founding of Manchukuo, large scale demonstrations including flag parades, lecture meetings and radio broadcasts will be held here to-day. Participating Powers, about 5,000 representatives of organisations in the country will parade the main thoroughfares.

The Premier, Baron Hiranuma, will deliver a radio speech, a relay of which will be made throughout the nation and Manchukuo.—Domei.

KING AND QUEEN

Visit Shadow Factory On Birmingham Tour

London, Mar. 1. The King and Queen on their visit to Birmingham to-day inspected the Austin shadow factory a few miles outside the city. The visit to the factory was arranged at the special request of His Majesty.

The King, who was attended by the Prime Minister, was given a warm welcome at the railway station as he arrived and the streets were thickly lined with cheering crowds as their Majesties drove to the Central Hospital which the Queen has given the name of Queen Elizabeth Hospital.—Reuter Bulletin.

Loan Repayments

Shanghai, Mar. 1. It is authoritatively stated that although the payment on Anglo-German loan of 1908 was made in London to-day, the position in regard to the next payment, due on July 1, on the reorganisation loan of 1913, has not yet been clarified.—Reuter.

The New Pope

CONCLAVE MEETS FOR ELECTION

Vatican City, Mar. 1. The conclave of Cardinals which opens to-day is expected to be of brief duration and result in the election of a Pope from among the 35 Italian Cardinals. None of the 27 non-Italians are believed to have a chance in the poll.

It is generally felt that the name of the new Pope will be known by Friday and that the coronation will probably occur on March 12.

Observers point out that a speedy conclave is expected, as most of the Cardinals participating have already been in Rome for fortnight and have had an opportunity of establishing contact. Some quarters contend that Cardinal Facchi may cause a surprise by being elected at the first ballot. It is pointed out that he is not regarded as the favourite for the final choice, but because of his former position as Secretary of State, which brought him into contact with all Cardinals, he may receive a large number of ballots at the first polling when all will vote on their personal choices without considering the question of the necessary two-thirds majority.—United Press.

First Ceremony

Rome, Mar. 1. The first ceremony in connection with the conclave of Cardinals took place this morning when the Cardinals, with the exception of three from America who arrived in Naples to-day, attended Mass.

This afternoon the Cardinals will go into conclave and they will be cut off from the outside world until the new Pope is elected.—Reuter Bulletin.

Conclave Begins

Vatican City, Mar. 1. Sixty-two Cardinals comprising the Sacred College entered into conclave at 3 p.m.

Led by a prelate holding the Papal cross, the Cardinals formed a procession wearing violet mantles. Reaching the Sistine Chapel they recited a prayer. The rules relating to the vacant See were read, and the Cardinals swore they would be observed and then proceeded to their cells.

The great bell of St. Peter's was rung thrice. Following a tour of inspection to see that no unauthorised person was hidden, the doors were locked and then the 300 members of the conclave, including attendants, barbers and tailors, mustered in the Sistine Chapel for the final roll call to ensure that only authorised persons were present.—Reuter.

Colonies Problem

A Joint Trusteeship Advocated

London, Mar. 1. How the British Government might take the initiative in carrying out what he describes as a "sensible plan of colonial redistribution," is set forth by Mr. Charles Roden Buxton, well-known politician and expert on colonial matters, in a letter to The Times published to-day.

He reproaches the British Government with having by its various declarations on the colonial issue lent support to the campaign of "no surrender" now spreading throughout the country. A policy of this sort, he declares, is not only unwise in itself but far from being compatible with the interests of the African continent.

The colonial settlement suggested by Mr. Buxton would take the form of the establishment on the existing basis of the Colonial Act of 1885 of a joint European trusteeship in Africa. Negotiations to this end should be carried on between the Powers which were signatory to that Act. A British initiative along these lines need by no means assume the form of concessions to Germany.

The arguments put forward by Mr. Buxton are expressly addressed to the founders of the new Colonial League, notably Lord Lugard, Sir Donald Cameron and Lord Hailley, who are the chief protagonists of the "no surrender" idea.—Trans-Ocean.

STRONG WEST INDIES CRICKET TEAM FOR ENGLAND

R.S. Grants Captains A Party Of Fifteen

Port O'Spain, Trinidad, Feb. 9.

The West Indian Cricket Board of Control have selected 15 cricketers to tour England in the summer under the captaincy of Ralph S. Grant.

Grant, who is 30, is a Cambridge double Blue, like his brother, C. C. Grant, who also captained the West Indies. The team is:

R. S. Grant (Trinidad) (captain),
I. Barrow (Jamaica),
H. P. Bayley (British Guiana),
J. H. Cameron (Jamaica),
C. B. Clarke (Barbados),
L. Constantine (Trinidad),
G. Gomez (Trinidad),
T. Johnson (Jamaica),
E. A. Martindale (Barbados),
J. E. D. Sealey (Barbados),
J. Stollmeyer (Trinidad),
K. H. Weekes (Jamaica), and
E. A. V. Williams (Barbados).
The team is expected to leave the West Indies towards the end of next month.

BETTER BALANCED THAN SIX YEARS AGO

Thirty-nine years ago the first West Indies team toured England, and it has been told how, when G. L. Jessop once got properly to work against them, they went into paroxysms of joy that such things could be done, even though it was at their own expense, writes Kenneth Rankin.

Since then they have made other, and always welcome, visits, first as eager learners, next as definite challengers, and now, at last, they come as "holders" in the winter of 1938-39. R. E. S. Wyatt's team was defeated in the majority of decided Test matches.

R. S. Grant, who was at Cambridge when the last side visited England in 1933, should find himself in command of a better balanced team than the one led by G. C., his elder brother, for six years ago too much depended on Headley with the bat and Martindale with his fast bowling.

During that tour, it will be remembered Constantine's League engagement with Nelson prevented him from playing in more than five matches; but the fact that he is now permanently available will make a vast difference, even though at the age of 36 he may feel the change between once-a-week and continuous cricket.

SOME OLD RIVALS

Certainly Headley, Martindale and Constantine form a very nice nucleus for any side, and to their number, as far as touring experience goes, must be added Barrow, an excellent wicket-keeper and a good enough batsman to have made a century against England at Manchester in 1933.

Grant, of course, is thoroughly acquainted with English conditions, and so too, is J. H. Cameron, who, if never quite fulfilling the expectations aroused when in 1932 he took all 10 wickets against the Lord's

Schools, has done much useful service for Cambridge and Somerset with the bat as well as with his "tweakers."

Of the newcomers, Williams is a fast bowler and Clarke sends down leg-breaks and googlies at rather above the usual pace. English batsmen who met him on his own terrain may wonder at the exclusion of Hylton, whose speed, along with that of Martindale and Constantine, did so much to beat Wyatt's team.

The batting looks very strong. Headley, of course, we know. He has already scored six centuries, including 270 not out, and 223, off English bowling. The left-handed Weekes makes a regular habit of scoring largely. Almost equally consistent is Bayley. J. E. D. Sealey played an innings of 91 in the last Test series, and much is expected of the stylish Gomez and the young brothers Stollmeyer.

ROSE ELECT WINS CHAMPION STAKES WITH GREAT EASE

Biggest disappointment in yesterday's racing at Happy Valley, of course, was the non-appearance of Silkylight in the Championship Stakes; for without Mr. Eric Moller's candidate, the race could be nothing else but a walk-over for Rose Elect, Mr. Eu Tong-sen's Derby winner.

—And so it proved. Though Rose Elect was challenged at one stage by his stable-mate, Desert Chief, it finally won with two lengths to spare—a personal triumph for Mr. Eu who thus not only won the Derby but the champions as well, with a second pony in the latter race.

While the report that Silkylight was not starting—owing to colic, it is believed—caused a mild sensation on the course early yesterday, it was not a great surprise to those who were "in the know." As was remarked in these columns yesterday, Silkylight did not show its usual form on Tuesday when it won the Peking Plate and the time was for her—unusually slow. It was evident that all was not well with the pony.

LOW DIVIDENDS

Many favourites, or near-favourites, won yesterday, and as a result dividends were on the low side on the whole, though King Kong began the day well by paying its supporters $75 for a win in the opening race and shortly afterwards, Sylvandale, paid $31.

The best finish of the day was in the ninth race, the Sports Club Cup and Hongkong Stakes, in which Celtic Star (Mr. F. Marshall) and Marksmen (Mr. T. L. Wong) fought out the last 100 yards or so neck and neck and stride to stride. It was a magnificent finish, and it was just that the judges awarded a dead-heat. Punters were satisfied with the verdict.

The owners, as already reported, sportingly tossed a coin for the Cup, and the owners of the Star pony won. In the old days, the two ponies would have had to fight it out in a separate race.

HOCKEY NOT INCLUDED IN OLYMPICS

(By "The Pilgrim")

It is not the intention at present to include hockey in the 1940 Olympic Games on account of there being no suitable grounds in Finland. The Federation Internationale Hockey has, therefore, decided to hold a world championship in 1940 at Amsterdam.

The F.I.H. has also decided to organise such a meeting in any Olympic year, when, for any reason it is not found possible to include hockey in the Olympic programme.

This is fresh enterprise on the part of the F.I.H., and it remains to be seen whether a British team, or separate teams of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales will enter for this tournament at Amsterdam. To enter the Olympic hockey series, Great Britain would have to enter a combined British team and not four countries separately. But I am unaware of any such rule being necessary in regard to the F.I.H. tournament.

ADVICE GIVEN TO FORWARDS

WHAT AN INSIDE FORWARD OUGHT TO DO IN AN ATTACK

TRIANGULAR MOVEMENT OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

Unlike the outside, the inside forward has a colleague on either side, and must combine with them both. His combination with his wing will consist in taking part in the triangular movement; in giving long diagonal passes to his wing, and occasional straight (through) passes, to gather which the wing will have to run inwards. This may mean that he and the inside will have to change places, which is always a sound tactical move, if carried out successfully.

The inside forward's combination with his centre will consist of short passes. These passes can be hit hard, for there are two other forwards to pick up the pass, should the centre fail to do so. When near the circle, the inside should remember to pass inwards as a rule, rather than to the wing; to pass out is waste of time, and means that the opposing defence has time to mark down the inside, before the centre comes across.

FORWARD TACTICS

Broadly speaking, the wing forwards (the inside left and outside left) and the inside right and outside right, should work in pairs until nearing the opponents' twenty-five, giving the centre forward plenty of room. He will instinctively edge slightly over towards the wing which has the ball, and, at the twenty-five or thereabouts, the wing-men should grasp an early opportunity to pass fairly hard, or with an accurate flick, to the centre. The three insides will have got, by then, into a more central position, in order to harass the defence. The centre forward should also be in close proximity. If the opponent halves do not know their job, the rapid flick out again from him will sometimes find his outside unmarked.

This flick, like most passes to forwards, should be made a yard wide of the desired recipient, to allow of his taking the ball along in full stride, for, by that means, the defence gets more exhausted than by square passes or by those direct to the man which will afford the defence time to discover their positions as a whole.

This strategy may lure the back out to one of the outside men, who should then pass hard and clear of him, thus, as often as not, leaving the opponents all at sea.

'THE PILGRIM' PICKS HIS LADIES' HOCKEY INTERPORT ELEVEN

In last Sunday's trial there was only a handful of players who really lived up to their reputation. I was glad to see at least four of the C.B.S. girls given a trial, but now I understand that should any of the schoolgirls be selected they won't be able to make the trip north, as permission from their Principal has been refused. If such is the case I should say it is merely waste of good time giving the girls a trial at all.

Apart from Mrs. Lunson, Miss G. White, Mrs. Wilmet, Mrs. I. Stone, Mrs. Woolley, Miss J. Wong, Miss M. Westcott, Miss M. Booker, Miss M. Shand and Miss J. Ewing, there were really no outstanding stars to be found on either side, but often stars do not blend and it is, perhaps, far better to look for cohesive qualities which are so frequently missing from trial games.

Hence, I will nominate my Interport XI according to current form. This I am doing to assist the selectors, two of whom I observe have seen very little of ladies' hockey in the colony.

My suggestions are:

Goal-keeper.—Mrs. Lunson. (H.K. Ladies) She is still a sturdy and reliable goalkeeper and with her previous Interport experience, she has no equal.

Backs.—Miss G. White (St. Andrews) and Miss A. Fowler (Y. Ladies). They have not, to my knowledge, even played together before at back, but should not find this at all a weakness. Though the latter, an old Interporter, is liable to be erratic, they are both good tacklers and powerful hitters.

GOOD HALF-BACKS

Half Backs.—Miss J. Wong, Miss I. Woolley and Mrs. M. Bell. I prefer Miss Wong at right-half as she is prone to wander too much at times and does unnecessary work as a pivot. Miss I. Woolley, as centre half, is in brilliant form at the moment. She has splendid powers of recovery, is the soundest of tacklers and clumps the ball well to her forwards. They are both Interporters and one will not easily forget their brilliance in the last contest. My selection of Mrs. M. Bell at left half will probably cause a mild sensation but in my opinion she is worth her place and in the last few games I have seen her play, she has shown more than average good form this season. Very energetic with her tackling and very astute and skilful in attack.

Forwards.—Mrs. Burnard (Y. Ladies), Miss Harker (Y. Ladies), Miss C. Silva (Recreio), Miss Reid (St. Andrews) and Miss Westcott (Y. Ladies).

I am rather doubtful of two positions in my attack, i.e. centre-forward and inside-left. It is my desire, however, to introduce new blood into the ranks as a step which should always be welcome, provided the new players are equal to those displaced.

Of the four leaders on view last Sunday I would say Mrs. Ackroyd was the best, but Miss Silva who has not appeared as yet, I am sure, will solve the problem in that position. She is fast, has good shooting qualities, fine anticipation and feeds her forwards well.

My original choice at inside-left was Miss Mona Shand (C.B.S.) but in view of her not being able to make the trip (permission may be granted) I have chosen Miss Reid, who is so versatile. She played with marked success at inside-left in the seven-a-side tournament and practically won both games and the cup for her team off her own stick. Miss M. Booker could be tried as well.

EXCELLENT BALANCE

The two wingers are experienced Interporters who are very sound in attack. Miss Harker gave a very good exhibition at inside-right last Sunday and should be the final choice.

That there is an excellent balance in defence as well as an excess in the attack cannot be denied and I hope the selectors will give this team serious consideration. Other players worthy of consideration are:

Goal-keeper: Miss Moss (C.B.A.). Backs: Mrs. Wilmet (Seaforths) and Miss M. Roza (St. Andrews).

Halves: Miss J. Booker (C.B.A.), Miss B. Pope (H.K. Ladies) and Mrs. Williams (Y. Ladies).

Forwards: Miss J. Ewing (C.B.A.), Miss M. Booker (C.B.A.), Mrs. Dalziel (H.K. Ladies), Miss M. Smalley, and Miss D. Hunt.

The ladies would do well to appear in full colours in their trial next Sunday. A thin red ribbon tied across the waste on the shoulders, against a background of blue, green and yellow is most confusing to the umpires.

Miss I. Woolley, the brilliant C.B.A. centre-half, is a candidate for Interport honours according to "The Pilgrim."

"PILGRIM'S" RANDOM JOTTINGS

BY their win of 3-2 over St. Andrew's last Saturday, the H.K. Ladies have ruined the Saints' chances of being with the Y. Ladies for championship honours in the Caer Clark Cup Tournament this season. The H.K. Ladies deserve full credit for their well-deserved victory, more so as they played with only ten players. It was the second opportunity I had of seeing Miss S. Reeve in action at left back. I thought she was by no means spectacular, but her spoiling work came in very useful and at the correct moment. Miss Pope and Miss Grey in the defence were generally good, but Mrs. M. Bell at left half was the best of the halves; she played a brilliant, energetic game and kept Miss F. Wong well in check. On the display she is certainly worth an Interport Trial. Mrs. Dalziel was a "dive wire" in the attack and it was really due to her do-or-die efforts that her team won the day. Mrs. Lunson, in goal, was as good as ever and her prospects for the Interport seem very rosy.

HAD St. Andrew's defeated the H.K. Ladies and later the Y. Ladies they would have probably won the Cup. Their hopes were, however, shattered last Saturday. The H.K. Ladies, in the first to score and showed superiority in all departments of the game but again their finishing touches in the circle were poor. The forwards displayed destructive rather than constructive tactics. Miss M. Roza was responsible for the second goal, being scored against her side; had she cleared the ball in time Miss M. Smalley would never have beaten her to it. The backs were apt to be spreadeagled by the long passing of the opposition and both backs were inclined to keep too far up. Miss J. Hall, in goal, had a bad day and was very disappointing; had she advanced in time, the first two goals would have been saved. On the whole, the Saints played open, attractive hockey, but their finishing was poor, and several good movements ended with wide shots at goal. Better luck next time.

L.T. Douglas (R.E.), the Army Representative on the H.K.H.A. council, will be leaving for home on s.s. Ranpura on Saturday. He served on the Interport Selection Committee this season and has taken a great interest in Army hockey since his arrival in the colony. He was mainly responsible for the selection of the victorious Army XI which won the Triangular Tournament and drew with Maccos recently. He has been associated with the Umpire's Hockey Board and has rendered immense service as an umpire. A player of no mean ability, he plays at full back for his team. His genial face will be missed on the Colony fields.

SUB-INSPECTOR L. Tyler, former Hon. Secretary of the United Hockey Clubs, is due back to-day on the P. & O. Canton. Since his departure on long leave, the Police teams have missed his able guidance and have not done too well for themselves in the H.K.H.A. tournament. I hope Mr. Tyler will once again renew his hockey activities, as the guardians of the peace are greatly in need of a man of his calibre.

A meeting of the H.K.H.A. council will take place at St. Andrew's Church Hall at 8.30 p.m. to-day. Arrangements for the Six-a-side Tournament and the International Series will be made. A full attendance of members is requested.

Golf Becomes Big Business In Australia

RIVAL TO CRICKET RACING NOW AMONG COUNTRY'S SPORTS

The golf craze has hit Australia hard; in fact, it has become so popular that it is fast rivaling cricket and racing, at present dominant "down under." Jim Ferrier and von Nida are the leading players, and they are good enough to be considered among those in the running for the British Open this year.

There are 781 golf clubs in Australia, made up of: New South Wales 285, Victoria 249, Western Australia 90, South Australia 65, Queensland 61, Tasmania 31. Taking into account the public links which have sprung up like mushrooms in recent years, Australia possesses more than 1,000 courses.

Among them 250,000 golfers (a conservative estimate) own clubs and bags valued at nearly £1,500,000. If they use one ball a week the annual bill can be assessed at £200,000. Then, as nudist golf has not yet become the vogue, these golfers have to be fitted out with appropriate clothes, shoes, etc.—a tally of £400,000 worth yearly.

Liquid refreshment and food are estimated to incur an annual outlay by the followers of St. Andrews of £2,100,000.

HUGE CAPITAL

All this does not take into account the freehold value of the land over which the millions of little white balls travel; the club-houses, some of them palatial, where, over the convivial glass, golfers swap tales that are said to rival those of fishermen. Suffice it to say that two or three of the larger clubs in Australia are capitalized at about £100,000.

The vast club-house at Rose Bay, Sydney, is said to be worth £75,000. Club-house and furnishings at Victoria Club (Victoria) cost £35,000.

Golf, in the Commonwealth, therefore, is a business on a large scale, a business supporting thousands of workers. In relation to its popularity, Australia has more golf courses than almost any other country in the world.

There are inland courses; there are seaside and country courses; there are public links. Supplying the demand for golf on a pay-as-you-play plan, these last-named have grown phenomenally in the last few years. The case of one, the Yarra Bend National Park Links, near Melbourne, has been nothing short of romantic. About five years back, the Park Trustees undertook the very expensive job of converting a waste area of parkland into one of the most picturesque playing-areas ever known. The reward for this is that every year thousands of pounds come in in two shilling and sixpenny and eighteen-penny green fees.

In the "outback" areas, golfing gets a little rougher. In these areas there are sand and greens and all sorts of unexpected hazards. Not that sand greens are all bad. Well prepared, they offer splendid putting surfaces. But hazards? One of the most unpleasant obstacles to quiet, restful golf is the crow. Somehow, crows have developed an inordinate liking for golf balls.

In some Victorian country centres, and even at stately Canberra, Australian capital, these dusky thieves are so prone to sneak off with golf balls that players need, metaphorically, to have a club in one hand and a shotgun in the other. "Shooting birds" is a golf term originating in America—has a real meaning for golfers in some parts in Australia.

These hazards are, however, nothing to those to be encountered in the North Territory. There the crow menace is replaced by giant land-crabs and snakes. The crabs sneak off with the balls to their holes; the latter treat them as eggs and swallow them.

VOLUNTEERS DRAW WITH U. SERVICES

Though at one period it appeared that the Hongkong Volunteers might beat the United Services at cricket on the Hongkong C.C. ground yesterday, time was against them, and the ultimate result was a draw. The United Services declared at 220 for eight wickets, to which Lt. Manners (Navy) contributed 69.

E. C. Fincher (56) and L. T. Ride (53) opened for the Volunteers and scored 105 before being separated. H. Owen Hughes, next in, featured in a brilliant hitting display, and, with eleven fours, knocked out this 50 in less than 25 minutes. The Volunteers at this stage had hopes of a victory, but in forcing the pace lost wickets, and the intervals placed them further behind the clock.

A handful of rugby enthusiasts saw the Hongkong Club "A" defeat the R.A.O.C. by 11 points to 3 in a rugby match at the Club ground yesterday at the commencement of the match the R.A.O.C. threatened but were unable to score. From then onwards the Club took advantage of opportunities offered, and emerged easy winners.

Army Boxing HONGKONG AREA FINALS DECIDED LAST EVENING

The finals of the Hongkong Area novices individual boxing championships were held at Nanking Barracks, Shamshuipo, last night. Some good boxing was seen, and perhaps the best bout of the evening was that between Pte. McDougal and Pte. Fawcett, which was won by the latter. Both fighters went for each other right from the start, and at the end McDougal was congratulated by the referee for putting up a plucky display.

Col. Nevill, G.S.O.I., distributed the prizes, after which he said that when he first came out he was told he would probably see some very dirty fighting in the neighbourhood. Last week at the Border this was proved to be perfectly true, and it was a great pleasure to see a whole evening of absolutely clean fighting.

The results were:
Bantamweight.—Sgt. Murphy (R.E.) beat Pte. Madden (R.S.).
Featherweight.—Lt. Cpl. Brown (R.S.) beat Pte. Edge (R.S.).
Lightweight.—Lt. Cpl. P. Farley beat Pte. Bickley (R.A.F.C.).
Special Contest.—Pte. McNally (R.S.) beat Sgt. Spencer (R.E.).
Middleweight.—Pte. Moore (R.S.) beat Pte. Finery (M.V.).
Light Heavyweight.—Pte. Fawcett (M.V.) beat Pte. McDougal (R.S.).
Heavyweight.—Pte. Alexander (R.S.) beat Pte. Goddard (M.V.).
Welterweight.—Pte. Gavanagh (R.S.) beat Pte. Manson (R.S.).

R. Whitcombe Versus Bobby Locke

London, Feb. 21.
Reginald Whitcombe, the British Open champion, and Bobby Locke, the South African champion, will play a £500 challenge golf match at Woodbe Hall, on May 31 and June 1, says Reuter.

The match was arranged when Henry Cotton turned down Locke's challenge and Whitcombe accepted it.

Locke originally wanted the match to be played a winner-take-all basis, but Whitcombe insisted that as Open champion he was entitled to 50 per cent. of the "gate." Locke later agreed.

SNOOKER COMPETITION

In a match at the Y.M.C.A. last night the Y.M.C.A. beat H.M.S. Kent in a snooker competition by 100 points to 101.
Curlis (Y.M.C.A.) 27 lost to Dean (Kent) 38; Lomave 57 beat Hart 45; Shammolover 71 beat Wilson 41; and Anstice 83 lost to Whittaker 37.

Imperial Airways Plane For China

Kunming, Mar. 2. An Imperial Airways plane is expected to arrive here from Burma at 11 o'clock this morning.

This will be the first time a foreign civil plane has flown over Chinese territory. The plane, an Alcantara type bi-motored machine, was originally scheduled to fly here from Rangoon to-day. It is, however, embarking on the flight one day ahead and arrived at Lusho at 12.40 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It is continuing its journey to Kunming this morning.

No passengers are carried on the plane. Only the captain and three other members of the crew are on board.

The Far Eastern manager of the Imperial Airways has arrived here from Chungking to discuss with the local authorities the inauguration of a regular air service between China and Burma.—Central News.

St. David's Day

Welshfolk Assemble To Honour Patron Saint

St. David's Day in Hongkong yesterday was marked by many observances by Welshfolk, culminating in a dinner dance at the Hongkong Hotel, arranged by the Cymdeithas Dewi Sant (St. David's Society), where a large gathering listened to a programme of old Welsh airs in an impromptu concert which followed the dinner.

The President of the Society (Mr. E. W. Davies) read a long list of greetings from kindred societies throughout the world and proposed the toast to St. David. The toast to the guests was proposed by the Vice-President (Mr. E. Loyd Jones) and replied to by the Hon. Mr. Stanley H. Dodwell.

Among those who contributed items was Miss Barbara Gilman, well-known local vocalist, who, accompanied by Mr. A. T. Lay, pleased the audience with a bouquet of Welsh songs. Others who added to the enjoyment of the evening were Mr. D. Morgan Richards, Mrs. K. Cooper, and Mr. E. C. Hooper. Mrs. Ysult Cooper was the accompanist.

The first ceremony of the St. David's Day celebrations took place at 11 a.m. yesterday when Mr. E. W. Davies, president of the Cymdeithas Dewi Sant (St. David's Society), and Mr. E. Loyd Jones, vice-president, laid a floral tribute at the foot of the Cenotaph.

The wreath is a picturesque, symbolic production. It consists of a representation of the Welsh Dragon, picked out in red dahlia on a foundation of fern and white dahlia. It has a purple edging of violets.

The society was also represented by Mesdames J. Cooper, R. Edwards, and W. T. Lewis, and Messrs. D. Davies, E. C. Thomas, W. A. Jones, E. R. Price, T. A. Hughes, W. T. Lewis, D. Morgan Richards and R. Edwards.

Delays Questioned
In Commons

LONDON, Mar. 1.
ASKED in the House of Commons to-day regarding the Imperial Airways services to Singapore, Captain H. H. Balfour, Under-Secretary for Air, stated that out of a total of 22 scheduled services due to arrive in Singapore from England between January 1 and February 22 last, 12 arrived late and ten punctually.

Captain Balfour gave no answer when asked how these figures compared with the Royal Dutch services.

Replying to other questions, Captain Balfour said that four cases of delay were due to engine trouble, six to bad weather, and two to missed connections with other aircraft.

K. L. M. COMPASSION

Mr. G. L. Mander: "Can he say why the Dutch operate more punctually than Imperial Airways?"

Captain Balfour: "I cannot accept that the Dutch services, taking things all round, and after all considerations, are more efficient than Imperial Airways."—Reuter.

Danzig Riots:

Students Expelled
From University

DANZIG, Mar. 1.
THE DANZIG SENATE, it is reported, has received a note from the Polish Government proposing the appointment of a special Commission to enquire into the incidents which have occurred between Polish and German students in Danzig.

It is stated that the Senate will not answer this note as long as it has not itself received the Polish Government's reply to the protest lodged in Warsaw on Monday, and in which the Senate requested that the Polish Commissioner in Danzig be instructed to disavow the resolution passed by the Polish Students' Association, which is regarded by the Senate as insulting.

Meanwhile, the rector of the Polytechnic College in Danzig, which was the scene of recent incidents, has announced that five members of the committee of the Polish Students' Association have been expelled from the college.

JAPAN ATTACKED BY LORD STRABOLGI

LONDON, Mar. 1.

LORD STRABOLGI was the centre of attention in the House of Lords this afternoon, when he asked for information concerning the war in China.

The Peer made particular reference to events in South China, and asked what steps the Government was taking to safeguard British trading rights and interests in Hongkong, what was the position regarding the Japanese invasion of Hainan, and whether any joint policy with interested Powers for bringing the struggle to an end was being pursued.

Lord Strabolgi said that the questions were not intended to be in any way hostile to the British Government.

Indeed, he said, Lord Plymouth's speech on December 6 was characterised by an unexpected, yet nevertheless welcome attitude of firmness on this vital question of British interests in China.

"Lord Plymouth's words appear to have contained a clear warning that our patience is not inexhaustible," Lord Strabolgi said.

"Since then, certain very important events had occurred in China. Hainan had been invaded, a great part of Hongkong is practically blockaded following the fall of Canton, and the Japanese authorities had levelled threats against the International Settlement authorities in Shanghai.

"I am glad to see to-day a modification of the Japanese attitude, but the so-called Nanking Government had used extraordinary language against British and French nationals in the Settlement."

Lord Strabolgi submitted that the invasion of Hainan was particularly offensive.

There was no military objective so far as war on the Chinese Central Government was concerned.

The French authorities in French Indo-China had stopped the trade in arms to China and even Red Cross material on the Japanese demand, and in return, the Japanese had promised that Hainan would be recognised as in the French sphere of interest, and would not be attacked. They knew what had happened. This was an example of the uselessness of the policy of so-called appeasement so far as Japan was concerned.

ONLY LANGUAGE

Referring to the new motor road from Burma to North-West China, Lord Strabolgi suggested that was the only language the Japanese militarists understood, and he added that if they looked at the situation broadly, the Chinese to-day were fighting our battles.

"Supposing the Japanese had succeeded two years ago in breaking the Chinese resistance in 90 days, how long would it have been before there had been a direct threat to Hongkong, then to Malaya and the Dutch East Indies?" he asked.

"Supposing the Japanese had succeeded in subjugating the Chinese, and supposing we were involved in some difficulties in Europe; does anyone suppose that British interests in the Pacific would be left untouched?"

CRUELTY, BESTIALITY

"The war against China is not an old-fashioned war of conquest. It is being waged with the utmost cruelty and bestiality.

"In Manchukuo, the Japanese authorities are deliberately debauching the Chinese with opium and other harmful drugs.

"There has been a systematic destruction everywhere of Chinese universities and seats of learning.

"There has been produced in these occupied territories, a corrupt and dishonest regime which has indulged in all sorts of abuses, and has shut out all European and American commerce.

"The Foreign Office is aware of the horrible excesses which have taken place. When Nanking was occupied, the soldiers were allowed to run riot, and among those insulted were British and American representatives.

ATTACK ON JUNKS

Lord Strabolgi proceeded to protest against attacks on helpless fishing junks stating that there was a certain greenish-yellow at sea.

"The junk fishermen and sailors of China are a very fine race indeed. They have proved always ready to come to our help in ordinary accidents at sea.

"They take their wives and children with them, and to descend with aeroplanes and attack helpless fishermen is a most abominable act, for which words sufficiently condemnatory are difficult to find.

"I believe that some protests had been made, and I am not accusing the Government of being blind to all these terrible events."

GERMANS IN CHINA

Regarding the action of German Nazi officials in Nanking, Lord Strabolgi said that he was informed that German merchants were just as alarmed and disturbed by what had happened in China as our own merchants, and it was the German officials who had adopted an attitude of support and comfort for the Japanese authorities.

"There is a tremendous opportunity for the German Government to show its good faith, humanity, and will for peace, by joining with ourselves and other interested Powers in bringing pressure to bear diplomatically or economically to stop this adventure by the Japanese militarists in China.

"If Germany only wishes to make some return for the great advantages which Mr. Chamberlain had conferred upon her in pursuit of appeasement, there is a chance in China, where Germany's interests are identical with ours.

"Herr Hitler recently declared that Germany must export or die. There is an immense market in China, where the Germans will have no chance whatever if the Japanese policy proves successful.

"After two years of tremendous struggle, it is common knowledge that Japan, as a country, is economically vulnerable. She will be particularly vulnerable at the present time to economic pressure.

OUR FRIENDS IN CHINA
"Our friends in China, and our fellow citizens of the Chinese race, of whom we have many millions of good subjects in our Eastern possessions, are puzzled and disturbed to know why we have not been more active in seeking means to bring this horrible struggle to an end.

"Japanese merchants were making great strides in China before this military adventure, but the Japanese militarists do not want to see a peaceful, strong and united China. They wanted hegemony over the whole of China.

AUSTRALIAN FEARS

"The younger militarists, who seemed to be able to control the policy of the Japanese Government, make no secret of their aims. If they succeed, they will undoubtedly threaten Australia. Members of all political parties there had no illusions on the subject. (Lord Strabolgi recently visited Australia).

"Surely the time has come when the causes of justice, decency, and fair dealing should prevail."

LONDON, Mar. 1.

LORD PLYMOUTH, replying for the Government, said that the difficulty in approaching this question was to give practical effect to any desires or feelings one might have.

Although he agreed with much that Lord Strabolgi had said, he doubted whether Lord Strabolgi had given serious thought regarding the actual practicability of some of his suggestions.

After giving the House information regarding the recent events in China, Lord Plymouth referred to the action the British Government was taking to protect British interests in China, particularly in Hongkong.

He said that the Pearl River was of supreme importance to the trade of Hongkong. The opening of this river to British trade was provided for in the Anglo-Chinese treaty of 1842. It was first closed to navigation by the Chinese authorities on October 13, and a protest was then made by the British Consul-General in Canton.

PEARL RIVER CLOSURE
Since the occupation of Canton by Japan, the Japanese had maintained the closure of the river, and the British Government had been actively engaged in endeavouring to secure its re-opening. He was sorry to say that these efforts had not so far been effective. The possibility of taking further steps towards this objective was at present under consideration.

Lord Plymouth added that, in any event, the British Government proposed to continue, as at present, to do all in its power to secure British trade and shipping in the occupied areas in China from discrimination in favour of the Japanese, or any other interests.

The latest available information indicated that the customs at Canton, while they had not actually been brought under Japanese control had been subjected to a certain measure of control by the Japanese, as in the case of the Shanghai customs, and a number of Japanese nationals were being added to the staff.

HAINAN ISLAND
The customs at Hailow on the island of Hainan had been treated in the same way. It was largely due to the courage and tenacity of Mr. Hooper, the deputy Commissioner, at that time in charge of the customs in Canton, that the customs administration in that port had been held intact throughout the attack on Canton, and its capture by the Japanese.

200 DEAD IN OSAKA EXPLOSION

Fire Wrecks Big Powder Factory

OSAKA, Mar. 1.

THE CENTRAL JAPAN DEFENCE Headquarters announced at 5.10 o'clock this afternoon that a fire broke out in the military warehouses at Hirakata in Osaka at 2.40 o'clock this afternoon and that the blaze was still raging at the time of reporting.

A number of casualties apparently have been caused by the fire, the announcement adds.

Passengers in a moving tram-car near the scene of the fire were injured by fragments of window panes which were shattered by the impact of the explosion.

Telephone and tram-car service in the affected area was interrupted for some time.

Over 200 casualties including many killed are understood to have been caused by the fire.

An official announcement issued by the Osaka Prefectural Police at 11.40 o'clock last night put the total number of sufferers at 5,800, while about 600 houses have been gutted.

The Central Japan Defence Headquarters issued a communique at 8.10 o'clock last night, announcing that "a considerable damage" was believed to have been caused by the fire in the military warehouse which started at 2.40 p.m. and continued to rage until 5.00 p.m.

Despite the conflagration, the order in the affected area was well in hand and public sentiments are kept at rest, the communique announces.

Immediately following outbreak of the fire, a battalion of troops from the 1st Division was sent to the (Continued on Page 5.)

NEW BOMB INCIDENTS IN S'HAU

Bomb Explodes In Big Cabaret

SHANGHAI, Mar. 2.

In defiance of the emergency policing measures maintained throughout the Settlement, Nanking Road, main thoroughfare of the metropolis, resounded with the blast of bombs last night as Chinese patriots staged another series of bombing outrages as a warning against the Chinese "decadents on the lone island."

Climaxing the night of terror a scene of carnage was witnessed when desperadoes tossed a hand grenade into the Vienna Garden, popular ballroom on Bubbling Well Road at about 11.45 p.m.

The night's outrages were started at about 9.30 p.m. when a group of unidentified Chinese threw a hand grenade into the street near the Sincere Department Store on Nanking Road and scattered handbills warning against amusement-seekers in the time of emergency. The handbills were signed by "Chinese Youth's Blood Society."

The Municipal Council Police immediately stretched an emergency cordon and interrupting traffic enveloped the Sincere Department Store.

The explosion was followed an hour later by a similar incident when Chinese hurled a hand-grenade into a street stretching the backdoor of the Wing On Department Store on Yangtze Road.

No arrests of culprits or suspects were reported late last night.—Donet.

Juergen Mueller, described as an employee of Messrs. L. Werner & Co., of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank Building, was fined $100 for wantonly discharging a firearm to the damage or danger of the public.

The incident occurred in Kennedy Road shortly after 12 midnight on Chinese New Year's Day.

It was disclosed in evidence that Mueller had discharged seven shots from his pistol.

The bullets of five of these shots were subsequently recovered.

Two had entered the balustrade of Dr. Li Shu Fan's residence. Two had struck and smashed floor pots.

One bullet went through the upper window of Dr. Li Shu Fan's residence and, ricocheting off the wall, had fallen on to a bed which was occupied at the time by Dr. Li Shu Fan's mother.

As a result of the incident, Dr. Li's mother suffered severely from shock.

NO APPARENT REASON

In describing the incident, Inspector A. L. Hopkins said that Mueller occupied a room at the Courtyard Hotel.

"For no apparent reason he went to the side window of his room and fired seven shots from his automatic pistol.

"The Hon. Dr. Li Shu Fan's residence was immediately to the rear of Mueller's window and, of the seven shots fired, five were subsequently found in various parts of the house.

"I have been instructed, Your Honour, to ask that a serious view be taken of this incident.

SOME FRIENDS IN ROOM

The Magistrate, Mr. R. A. D. Forrest, asked Mueller why he had fired the shots.

"I had some friends in my room and I discharged the pistol for the purpose of making a noise," defendant replied.

TORTURE STORY UNTRUE

"There Is Something Behind All This"

THE magistrate at Bow Street, Mr. Dummett, recently characterised as a tissue of lies the story previously told by a German of torture and persecution.

He had before him Siegfried Simon Gembicki (39), a German financial agent, of Forset Court, Edgware Road, charged with Elizabeth Lensing (39), a German student, of the same address, with making a false statement to an aliens officer.

Lensing, wearing a black hat with eye-veil and a squirrel fur coat, and whose case was taken first, pleaded not guilty.

Det. Sergeant Griffin said that Lensing had been living with Gembicki since December 31. It was difficult to say how she obtained her money.

Mr. Dummett: There is something behind all this?—Yes, there definitely is.

"Then perhaps I had better not inquire," commented the magistrate.

Lensing, giving evidence, said in reply to Mr. Dummett that Gembicki had asked her to stay at the flat as his visitor.

Mr. Dummett: But you are living there with him?—No, I am not living with him. I was only a visitor there.

"AFRAID"

The solicitor: Have you heard of cases in which people from Germany in Mr. Gembicki's position have been followed, or have had inquiries made about them by agents of the Secret Police?—I am certain that they have.

Did you think Mr. Gembicki had reason to fear that?—Yes.

Were you afraid?—Yes.

Lensing said that she had private means. She got money every month from Switzerland and sometimes from her relatives in Holland.

Mr. Dummett: From whom do you get your money?—From a friend of mine.

What is his or her name?—I cannot say. I do not want him to get into trouble.

FLOGGING STORY

Mr. Dummett read a medical report, and commented: "This means that the police medical officer does not believe Gembicki's story about his having been flogged."

Chief Inspector Salisbury said that Gembicki's story of having been brought here by boat on January 3 was untrue. He arrived on December 11 at Newhaven from Dieppe with a false passport.

Mr. Dummett: Apparently he was able to go freely between here and Germany and this story of torture and persecution is untrue?—Yes, sir.

Gembicki then gave evidence after taking the oath in the Jewish fashion.

Mr. M. Abraham (defending) was questioning him about a number of letters and documents when Mr. Dummett intervened.

"What has been proved about your client," he said, "is that he came over here and told a whole tissue of lies, which makes his statement extraordinarily difficult to accept."

"TISSUE OF LIES"

"So far from having escaped, so far from having got a kindly ship master to bring him over, and so far from being able to establish that he had ever been flogged, the whole of the evidence which we have been able to find out against him shows that that is a tissue of lies."

Gembicki said that he was charged with exporting 400,000 marks, and the penalty was 2,200,000 schillings. He was in different concentration camps.

Mr. Abraham: Were you ill-treated in the concentration camps?—Yes, and if a thousand doctors say to the contrary, they are wrong.

Mr. Abraham: Were you charged with forgery in Berlin? Gembicki said that he bought some shares which were afterwards discovered to be forgeries. The charge against him was cancelled.

Mr. Dummett said that nothing he had heard about Gembicki redounded in any way to his credit.

He sentenced him to six months' hard labour, with a recommendation for deportation.

'Stick Pin In Me! Not Yet'

TAHRA BEY is an Egyptian fakir possessing strange powers of mind over matter. He recently visited LONDON at the invitation of medical men who want his advice.

In 1927, one hundred people fainted at his gruesome demonstration in the Scala Theatre and the Lord Chamberlain forbade repetition.

He said that King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, King Carol of Rumania, ex-Queen Victoria Eugenie of Spain, Mussolini, Poincare, Hindenburg and the Duke of Windsor have received him and been impressed with his extra-natural powers. He dislikes the word supernatural.

When invited to demonstrate by doing anything that others could not do, he gracefully declined. He said that such feats require preparation, otherwise they might be only partly successful or, worse, might do him harm.

For a man who has allowed doctors to stick knives into his chest without hurt some think that disappointing.

FEELS NO PAIN

They wanted only to stick a few pins in him, for he asserts that he can go into a catatonic state in a few seconds, during which he feels no pain.

A demonstration "if it can be arranged" will be held during the fakir's stay in London.

Tahra Bey has been brought up in the Yogi teachings since he was four months old. He is now thirty-eight.

He is short and plumpish, black bearded and olive skinned. His forehead is high, with a mop of black hair. He has those "look through you" eyes usually called "magnetic."

He does not claim to be different from other men, merely that his training enables him to "develop the powers natural to every man."

Tahra Bey has ardent admirers. Also doubters. He sums up his philosophy in these four rules:—

1. To believe in everything is an error.

2. Not to believe in anything is an error.

3. We should admit nothing without evidence.

4. We must acknowledge loyalty what is proved.

I am in the third stage.

RECTOR KEPT OUT OF PULPIT Village Hides Church Keys

AFTER the morning service in the parish church of Mellis, Suffolk, recently, officials locked the two doors, took the two keys away and hid them.

They had already hidden the keys of the rectory.

These precautions were taken to keep the Rev. Benjamin Appleyard, Rector of Burgate, Diss, out of the pulpit.

Mr. Appleyard has been put in charge of the parish by the Bishop of St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich, who does not intend to appoint a new Rector of Mellis.

In answer to protests by the villagers the Bishop has postponed his plan for a month, but officials of the church feared trouble, and made their own arrangements.

HOOR EARLIER

To avoid scenes they held the morning service an hour earlier than usual, and got the Rev. F. Cory Elvin, rector of the neighbouring parish of Bromage, to conduct it.

"We shall have only one service each Sunday until we get a new rector," one of the officials said afterwards.

Another official said, "We do not intend that Mr. Appleyard or his lay reader shall conduct the services in church. The keys of the church and rectory will be kept in hiding until this dispute is settled."

SCHOOL THREAT

The parishioners have received messages of sympathy and encouragement from many parts of the country. Feeling in the parish has been further aggravated by an intimation that the local church school will be closed, and the scholars sent to a junior school outside the parish.

JOEY KNEW HIS PIECE

For three hours Cage Bird Show judges in a private room at the Royal Horticultural Hall recently tried in vain to persuade talking birds to display their vocal powers.

But parrots, cockatoos, budgerigars and thrushes alike refused to open their beaks.

Not a murmur was there, despite floodlights, darkness and all other tricks the judges knew of.

They had just decided to postpone the judging when a budgerigar owned by Mr. S. J. Howard, of Malden, Essex, solemnly announced "Joey's won first prize."

And Joey was right. He not the trophy and silver medal for the best talking bird in the show.

MAD WITH STOMACH PAIN

It doesn't matter how long-standing your stomach trouble may be—it doesn't matter how bad your pain is—Maclean Brand Stomach Powder will almost certainly ease it away—and its cause as well.

Take the case of Mr. J. R. For years he suffered from gastric trouble. He had all his teeth out, but got no relief. He tried one cheap remedy after another, but the trouble remained.

Read his own words:—

"I was made with pain; no one knows how awful I felt. I decided to get Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. Well, I took a teaspoonful and a half and was absolutely surprised how the pain faded away. It's wonderful."

This is only one example among thousands of the quick, lasting relief from stomach pain that comes after taking MACLEAN BRAND Stomach Powder.

Why not try this famous remedy for your stomach trouble? You won't have to endure stomach pain much longer if you do! Just imagine the pleasure of being able once again to eat what you like and when you like! But make sure you see the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN" on the bottle and carton—that is your safeguard against disappointment. Cheap imitations may only make your trouble worse. Genuine Maclean Brand Stomach Powder is sold only in bottles in cartons.

Never sold loose. Powder or Tablets. If you have any difficulty in obtaining it from your local chemist or store, write to Banker & Co., P.O. Box 705, Hong Kong.

Royal Courts This Year

The King and Queen are to hold three Courts within eight days—on March 9, 15, and 16—and Court dress-makers are preparing for their biggest rush for 20 years.

Although it is customary for the first two Courts of the season to be held on successive evenings it is rarely that three are held within so short a time as eight days.

Two more Courts will be held on July 12 and 13, bringing the total for the season to five instead of the usual four.

The reason for the extra Court is the exceptionally heavy number of applications for presentation of debutantes, married daughters, and daughters-in-law.

Evening Party

The March Courts have been arranged so that the King and Queen may officiate at them personally. During May and June, months in which Courts are usually held, their Majesties will be in Canada and the United States.

Attendance at each Court will number between 1,000 and 2,000.

In addition, the King and Queen will hold an evening presentation party in November for ladies who have applied to make the presentation of a married lady who is neither their daughter nor daughter-in-law.

SHORTAGE OF MONKEY GLANDS

SYDNEY.

ITALIAN poison gas attacks during the Abyssinian campaign killed so many monkeys that there is a shortage of rejuvenation glands, according to a well-known Australian doctor. He is Dr. H. Leighton-Jones, who has returned here after spending nearly a year studying the latest methods of Professor Voronoff at the Institute of Physiological Research in Paris.

Dr. Leighton-Jones explained that, at his headquarters at Dora Creek, near Newcastle, he had rhinos monkeys drawn from Abyssinia for years.

"The poison gas used by the Italian in their attack upon the Abyssinians killed off great numbers of these monkeys, which were trapped in the ravines," he said in an interview here.

"The result is that now I am short of monkeys. I will have to alter my source of supply, and I expect to get some from India. At Dora Creek I have only two left, and I have seven persons awaiting the rejuvenation treatment with the glands."

"SPARE PARTS"

Dr. Leighton-Jones doubted whether human glands would supersede monkey glands in the rejuvenation treatment.

Voronoff, however, envisaged a "spare parts hospital" of the future, where portions of the bodies of healthy persons killed in accidents would be stored for use in the restoration of human beings to health by grafting and other forms of treatment.

"Voronoff claims that nobody should die under 100 years, unless he is suffering from some disease," said Dr. Leighton-Jones.

Flats Called Bane Of Art

SYDNEY, Australia.

Roy Roussel, famous Australian artist, blames flats for the decline of art. "Because there is no space for hanging pictures, there is no demand for them," he declares. He admits that high taxes and motor cars have also contributed to the slump by diverting art purchasing power elsewhere.

FIVE IN THE BACK SEAT

Five passengers in the back seat proved too weighty for a woman's 8 h.p. car and it tipped on so that the front wheels left the road.

The driver, Mrs. Florence Kathleen Dawson, of Hopton Gardens, New Malden, was unable to steer and the car struck an island.

At Wimbledon recently when summoned for carrying a dangerous number of passengers Mrs. Dawson pleaded, "I have been punished enough. Luckily I was the only one injured."

The magistrates dismissed the case on payment of 5s. costs.

Wife's Action Against Duke Of Leinster

An action has been entered in the Court of Session, Edinburgh, by the Duchess of Leinster against the Duke of Leinster, who is the Premier Duke.

The issue of the rolls of the Court contains the following: "Agnes, (otherwise) Raffaele) Kennedy, or Van Neck, or FitzGerald, Duchess of Leinster, residing at Westminster Gardens, S.W.1, against Edward FitzGerald, Duke of Leinster, presently residing at Court Royal Hotel, Lancaster Gate, W.2."

The Duke, who is 46, married Mrs. Van Neck, an American, in 1932, after their engagement had several times been denied.

He previously married Miss May Etheridge, former Gaiety chorus girl, in 1913. That marriage was dissolved in 1930 and the Duchess died in 1935.

En route to war games in the Atlantic, here is the United States aircraft carrier Ranger passing through the Gatun Cut in the Panama Canal. Naval planes are aligned on her deck. Passage of the entire United States fleet, which sailed from San Diego, Cal., through the canal took about 36 hours, while 31 merchant ships waited.

He Has To Chant In The Mess

THE sergeant's mess of the 2nd Battalion Grenadier Guards, Wellington Barracks, has the largest and finest wooden spoon in the British Army.

It is the trophy awarded annually to the worst cook in the mess.

PLACE OF HONOUR

Its winner this year is Lance-Sergeant W. Schofield, a guardsman in his twenties, promoted last March.

The spoon hangs in a place of honour. It is the first thing a young sergeant sees when he first walks through the mess door.

Occupying positions of less importance in glass cases round the walls are proud relics of the regiment's history.

The spoon is six feet long and was carved from an aeroplane propeller in Alexandria, Egypt, when the regiment was there in 1937.

LIST OF RULES

Beside it on the wall hangs its charter of original and a list of rules. Here are some of them:—

"The winner shall receive a money prize not exceeding 5s., which he must give to charity."

"He is responsible for the said spoon's welfare and must report monthly on its good order."

WAITRESS TOLD LIES AT INQUEST

A WAITRESS witness was criticised by Mr. Ingleby Oddie at the Paddington inquest recently on Bruno Reichert (39), victim of an hotel fire in Porchester Gardens, W.

"She is utterly unreliable," said the coroner. "She has confessed to telling lies. She was very pert at first but broke down when I began to question her."

"I must express my regret at the way this girl gave evidence," The waitress, Miss Ellen Williams, said she lit a cigarette after she had dressed and gone into the kitchen, but did not smoke in the bedroom.

NO POCKET

How did you light the cigarette when you left the room?—With a box of matches.

Where did you get the box?—From my pocket.

The largest shooting cup in the mess, filled with ale, and hand it round.

"During supper he shall chant without humour 'I am a rotten shot' and solemnly stroke the wooden spoon."

"Should any member laugh during the chant, he shall be ordered to kiss the spoon and buy the winner a drink."

Singapore.

THE sounding of horns by vehicles in Singapore, as from March 1, will be prohibited "except for the purpose of avoiding an accident."

Many motorists are wondering what exactly is the meaning of "except for the purpose of avoiding an accident."

Would a motorist, finding a pedestrian strolling right in front of him, be within his rights in sounding his horns?

He could argue that his action was intended to avoid running into a jay-walker.

If he encountered a number of cyclists riding three abreast and practically blocking a narrow street, would he be entitled to sound his horn?

If he did not and proceeded, an accident might occur.

Exactly in what circumstances is the motorist to be permitted to sound his horn?

"To avoid an accident" seems so ambiguous that it may mean anything from clearing a crowd of pedestrians or cyclists to a warning foot at busy junctions to ensure that reckless or ignorant drivers do not shoot out heedlessly.

TRUST TO LUCK?

Can it be that the new rule is intended to mean that no horn sounding may be permitted except when an accident or collision seems imminent?

Then, and not until then, may the motorist toot his horn and trust to luck?

"Motorists can well understand that the aim of the horn restriction is to eliminate unnecessary noise," said an owner-driver.

"But when they are told not to give any warning tools except to avoid accidents, it seems like telling them not to touch their horns until they are in the middle of a crash."

Seeks Asylum For Loyalists

Fear Of Reprisals By General Franco

LONDON, Mar. 1.

MR. ARTHUR HENDERSON asked in the House of Commons to-day whether the Government was prepared to offer full rights of an asylum to all Spanish Republican leaders and followers unable to remain in Spain because of possible reprisals.

Mr. Geoffrey Lloyd, declared that the Government was always anxious to maintain the traditional policy of offering an asylum to foreigners who wished to take refuge for political, racial, or other reasons.

The number that could be admitted was necessarily limited, but if arrangements could be made for the maintenance of a limited number of Spanish Republican leaders and followers, applications for admission would receive the Home Secretary's sympathetic consideration.—Reuter.

U. S. RECOGNITION

Washington, Mar. 1.
The Government to-day was urged to take immediate steps to recognize General Franco by the Democrat, Senator Chavez, speaking in the Senate.

After referring to the British and French recognition of the Franco Government, Senator Chavez added: "We must not jeopardise our improved relations with Latin America merely because of the domestic problems of a European country."—Reuter.

FRANCO WANTS NO CREDITS—YET

London, Mar. 1.
Mr. R. A. Butler stated in the House of Commons to-day that no proposals for financial assistance, either by way of loans or credit had been made by the Spanish Nationalist Government to the British Government.

Asked whether recognition of the Nationalist Government deprived the Republican Government of the "right to be represented in the League of Nations," Mr. Butler replied that that was a question for the League to decide.—Trans-Ocean.

PALESTINE DEADLOCK

Jewish Terms For Ending Impasse

LONDON, Mar. 1. THE JEWISH DELEGATION has decided to continue to take part in the Palestine conference on condition that the British proposals are decisively modified, according to well-informed Jewish circles here.

They add that the Jewish delegates, in the course of an informal conversation with the British representatives, requested that before the discussions were resumed, the Cabinet should make known in writing its acceptance of the concessions demanded.

It is further stated that Mr. Malcolm MacDonald informed the delegates that he personally was unable to give any undertaking of this kind, and that the Jewish demands must be submitted to the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary.

McMAHON REPORT

LONDON, Mar. 1. Questioned in the House of Commons respecting the McMahon correspondence, Mr. R. A. Butler said that its publication was delayed because the Arab representatives had made suggested alterations in the translations, and these were now being considered.

As soon as they agreed, the official text would be produced.

Opposition members pressed for the text as circulated to the members of the Palestine conference.

Mr. Butler replied that he would consider the question with Mr. Chamberlain.

A meeting of the Jewish panel in connection with the Palestine talks will be held, "Reuters" understands, this evening, to discuss the vital questions of continuing the talks with the British Government.

The panel has been in cable communication with its various constituents in Palestine, the United States, Poland, and elsewhere.

It is understood that three courses will be discussed. Firstly, whether to see the conference through to the end; secondly, whether to abandon further talks at the conference; thirdly, whether to leave negotiations to an executive, thus enabling the delegates to return home.—Reuters.

and quoting Mr. Arita's statement that its duration would not exceed the period required by military needs, Lord Plymouth said that although he was fully aware of the strategic or tactical consideration involved in these matters, it could not be said that there was any really important British interests on the island.

The position of the French Government was undoubtedly different. The treaty position of the French Government was based on the Chinese assurance of 1907 regarding non-alienation, and secondly on the Franco-Japanese agreement of 1907. We had no similar agreement with Japan, and the only treaty bearing on the situation was the Washington Nine-Power Treaty.

A VAGUE PHRASE
Lord Plymouth said that Lord Strabolgi had contended that action on the part of the Japanese could not have been taken with a view to threatening the position of the Chinese Government, but rather that it must have been taken with the intention of threatening or giving anxiety to the French Government and ourselves.

It was difficult to pass judgment on that. He could only say that the actual reason given us by the Japanese authorities was what he quoted, repeating what Mr. Arita had said regarding the period required by the military needs of the situation.

Lord Plymouth observed: "It is a very vague phrase, I admit, but it is the position explained to us by the Japanese Government."

Turning to the situation in Shanghai, Lord Plymouth said that following a recrudescence of terrorist acts, the Japanese authorities had put forward certain suggestions to the Municipal Council for a more effective maintenance of order. The Government was continuing to watch the situation closely and was prepared to afford the Council such advice and support as might from time to time be possible. They had already drawn the attention of the Japanese Government to the fact that they were interested in the discussions now proceeding between the Council and the Japanese authorities in Shanghai, and he understood that the United States Ambassador had made similar representations.

Lord Plymouth said that the Government deplored the occurrence of these outrages, but he could not give the House any further information as that matter was now under discussion between the local Japanese authorities and the Municipal Council.

NANKING'S "WAR"
Referring to the press reports that the "Reformed Government of Nanking" had been compelled to announce a silent declaration of war against the International Settlement, and British and French ships for aiding Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Lord Plymouth said that he had not yet received any confirmation of this from the British Ambassador, and he was of the opinion that they should await this before considering the question of making representations to Tokyo.

It should be remembered in this connection, that the British Government did not, any more than the Japanese Government, recognise the Reformed Government of Nanking, and any pronouncements made by that Government need not be taken too seriously.

TIENTSIN SITUATION
Dealing with the situation at Tientsin, Lord Plymouth said that the position, broadly speaking, was as he described it last December. He added that the British Government had made it clear to the Japanese that there was no lack of co-operation on the part of the Concession authorities, who were prepared to arrest and hand over any person guilty of terrorism, or any other criminal act, provided always that adequate evidence of identification was produced, and a prima facie case established.

GOVERNMENT'S POLICY
Generally, the Far Eastern policy of the Government was based on the Nine-Power Treaty and the Government was therefore at some pains to make it clear to the Japanese Government, in a note addressed to it on January 14, that they could not recognize changes involving infringements or derogations of the provisions of this treaty which were brought about by force, or the unilateral modification of its terms.

Lord Plymouth added that they could not agree that the treaty was obsolete, or that its provisions no longer met the situation, except so far as the situation had been altered by Japan in contravention of its terms.

TREATIES ETERNAL
The Government contended that treaties were eternal, and if the Japanese Government or any other signatory had any constructive suggestions to make regarding points on which it thought the treaty might be

and Asia Minor in the last six months.

"The wicked flourish, and civilised ethics and humanity are flouted. We begin to redress the balance in favour of these great causes in Asia? We can rely upon the whole-hearted help of India, Australia, and New Zealand, and, believe, also Russia, France, and Holland."

PEACEFUL POLICY

"The policy I am advocating is a peaceful policy which can be accomplished without a shot being fired. We consider this task should have been undertaken by the League of Nations over ten years ago. In any case, if the British Government would seek means of bringing collective pressure to bear, first in diplomatic channels, and then, if necessary in economic and financial fields, we believe that that would be enough."

"A lesson to the aggressors is long overdue. A lesson is needed, that brute force, terrorism and brutal cruelty does not pay, and brings sure punishment."

Senate Revives Guam Question

Washington, Mar. 1. The Senate Naval Committee has taken action in reviving the question of the fortification of Guam (the island having been defeated in the House of Representatives) and it has been decided to begin hearings on the question, at which witnesses will be invited to testify.—Reuters.

improved, the British Government would be ready to consider them, and enter into negotiations with all the other signatories regarding the modifications and suggestions.

Similarly, the Government was always ready to resume negotiations with the Chinese Government on the subject of extraterritoriality, or other similar questions when peace was restored.

The meeting was convened in order that the Committee might discuss the possibility of forming a "blue coalition" of the various parties, which would be a coalition of whatever Government rules Peking.

Following recent allegations, the leaders of the Nationalist Steel Helmet organisation has submitted to President Hindenburg a statement of the policy and aims of the organisation, which they declare does not oppose the Republic Government but the Parliamentary system which they hope to reform by legal means.

Much interest will be aroused by an announcement made in London by Lord H. D. Strabolgi, the famous racing motorist, will make his official attempt to recapture the world's land-speed record for Great Britain at Daytona Beach on March 6.

The result of this test increases the confidence in this unique car, which is the history of motor racing in ice-cooled, will establish a new speed record. The present record stands at just over 207 miles an hour, and is held by Mr. Ray Keech, an American.

PRIMITIVE INSTINCTS

Thought-Provoking Talk By The Rev. A. P. Rose

Mr. Asquith has received an important non-party deputation advocating National Service. The deputation, headed by Earl Roberts, General Sir Evelyn Wood and also representatives of the Navy, the Territorial Army, the Church and the professions.

Mr. Asquith emphasised the point that an important sub-committee of the Imperial Defence Committee was considering the whole question and had practically come to a unanimous decision, which would show that the Navy was as capable as ever of leading the country from invasion.

He affirmed that the Territorials had shown a vast improvement on the Volunteers, but they might require more encouragement in some respects. He considered, looking at the present condition of the Navy and the Army, that the deputation's apprehensions were groundless and he did not favour compulsory service.

A grave indictment of the Parliamentary system in Germany was made today by Dr. Hermann Goerring, Foreign Minister, at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the German People's Party.

The meeting was convened in order that the Committee might discuss the possibility of forming a "blue coalition" of the various parties, which would be a coalition of whatever Government rules Peking.

Following recent allegations, the leaders of the Nationalist Steel Helmet organisation has submitted to President Hindenburg a statement of the policy and aims of the organisation, which they declare does not oppose the Republic Government but the Parliamentary system which they hope to reform by legal means.

Much interest will be aroused by an announcement made in London by Lord H. D. Strabolgi, the famous racing motorist, will make his official attempt to recapture the world's land-speed record for Great Britain at Daytona Beach on March 6.

The result of this test increases the confidence in this unique car, which is the history of motor racing in ice-cooled, will establish a new speed record. The present record stands at just over 207 miles an hour, and is held by Mr. Ray Keech, an American.

The agent, called upon for instructions, and was ordered to refuse to acknowledge the cheque.

Aid and Comfort

All will welcome the news that moral suasion has ended the situation by which the United States was supplying airplanes for Japan's bombing of Chinese civilians. The U.S. National Munitions Control Board reports that applications for licences to export planes and parts to Japan ceased last year. This was in response to an appeal by Mr. Cordell Hull to aircraft makers to stop this sorry business.

There have been some questions as to whether Japan was the only nation engaged in bombing civilian populations. But Japan was a clear-cut case. Moreover American public opinion's strong opposition to the whole of Japan's war in China gave the State Department unquestioned support in this appeal.

With the intensification since Munich of American feeling about some of the allies of Japan, the same public opinion in the United States may now demand cessation of plane exports to Fascist countries. Certainly before American air fleets are developed on the scale now being proposed in Washington to match German air armaments, American exports of planes and motors to Germany should cease. The amount of these is in question, but one estimate recently published was to the effect that hundreds of German military planes are powered by American engines or engines built on plans licensed by American companies. Nearly U.S.$3,000,000 worth of air equipment went to Germany from 1932 to 1936.

The State Department has belittled the amount of American aid to Germany and has said that the granting of export permits is mandatory under the Neutrality Act to nations not at war. Two questions are involved here. One is how far planes and motors listed by the State Department as for civil aviation have been devoted to military use. There is some evidence that planes used in the bombing of Spanish towns have had American motors. Also it may be asked whether American supplies of civil aviation have not facilitated military aviation in Germany. The other question is whether the State Department can use its moral suasion also to stop exports which aid Fascist arming.

MANNERS MAKETH MAN

"Having frequent occasion to use buses travelling schoolwards, I have been most unpleasantly astounded at the liberties and discourtesies which Chinese boys and young men take, and are allowed to take, unrebuked and uncorrected."

Says

smug young China lolls at his of it unencumbered by the comparative ease and in oblivion. lessly slung book-baskets. And the unfortunate temporary co-tenant of the double seat will probably find himself gradually and painfully edged into the gangway, what there is master or headmaster on campus

"MANNERS Maketh Man." There may be something in it.

If so, future China appears to be in danger of emasculation. Especially does young China seem unconscious of the benefits which accrue to himself and others, even in refraining from injury to feelings; and he might at times without undue search find an outlet for active courtesy.

Having frequent occasion to use buses travelling schoolwards, I have been most unpleasantly astounded at the liberties and discourtesies which Chinese boys and young men take, and are allowed to take unrebuked and uncorrected. Not merely towards the general public.

An expensively clothed, somewhat bloated young blood, as comfortably seated as our exiguous bus seating will permit, not only will allow his form-master to stand in the overcrowded vehicle, but will offer no sign of salutation or even of recognition.

I happen to know that this master is a graduate of Oxford, and ponder upon cause and effect, or vice versa.

Old gentlemen and ladies of any age may sway and stagger and strap-hang at his side but

GRIN AND BEAR IT By Lichty

"Got anything more exclusive in rabbit?"

or street—the most that can be expected is a careless nod or grin. "Oh, but they must let off steam out of class!"

Let us investigate and, for our sins, participate in a teacher's purgatory.

Noise, inattention, covert or even open insolence to the instructor are far from infrequent. Upon the first stroke of the "break" bell follows a hideous scrape of scrambling feet and hurtling bodies in this unseemly exodus.

Master's permission to retire? Quite superfluous and, of course, unuttered, or if uttered would be unheard in the general din; nor are the final words of his peroration of the slightest use.

SUCH ATTRIBUTES—most disheartening to any friend of China—quite possibly arise from an ultra modern idea, not peculiar to the Orient, unhappily, that to display politeness is to lower dignity and suggest subjection.

Schoolmasters tell me that the difficulty with students is not in instruction (the average Chinese adolescent is by no means unintelligent) but to instil into their proteges any notion of the true nature of discipline is all but an impossible task.

The trouble would appear to be that old bugbear "loss of face."

A Chinese boy will not, as a rule, accept deserved punishment cheerfully, get "chipped" a little by his comrades, and then forget the whole episode.

He cannot rid himself of the (probably innate) notion that in undergoing correction, he has lowered himself, not only in his own esteem but in that of his comrades and his superiors—if he by chance acknowledges any such!

CAST YOUR MIND back to the days of the old-type, long-gowned Chinese gentlemen—there are still some surviving.

Recollect the honoured place which the tutor in the family or the master in the school occupied in the esteem of the father and the son. The tutor remained honoured and respected to the end of his days.

If the change is a regrettable one, to whom the responsibility, teacher or taught?

One theory is that the Chinese, like the Mongolian pony, cannot take corn; or if he does, merely transforms good grain into monkey tricks, or worse.

FIVE GHOST STORIES

fect recollection of his face, and made a sketch of it afterwards—a sad young fellow, clean-shaven, and a little monkeyish.

2.—Six months' later he arrived again. The hostess had brought some friends home after the cinema. They were talking when the door-bell rang—a stranger who had mistaken the house. This interruption reminded one of the guest that it was time to go. He went into the hall to collect his hat, and came back to report that he had seen me—he assumed it was I, though he had only seen a man's back—going into my room.

Again the room was found to be empty. I did not come home for another half-hour, and when I did, I was pinched to prove my solidity. It is interesting, perhaps, that this phantom had to have the front door opened for him.

3.—Now let us go back to pre-war Ireland, where the same hostess, then a girl of thirteen, was holidaying with her sister on a farm near Bantry. The farm included an ancient Danish fort—a mound about the size of an average house—and the girls decided to excavate it.

Local superstition was against them, for any disturbance of these forts was believed to cause death, particularly among livestock. The farmer's wife, however, was a cheery, independent soul who bade them go ahead. So they began digging out an old, choked well which was supposed to be connected with the interior of the fort by a subterranean passage. After two days, two cows fell sick, and three calves died. On the third day, the donkey lay down and would not get up. The farmer's wife, embarrassed and apologetic, though still claiming superiority to superstition, asked the girls if they would mind filling up their excavations; so they obliged. As they were tipping back the last stones, one a hot, sunny afternoon, they both heard from over their shoulders, where no human being was, a laugh. "Ha, ha, ha!" it came, in dreadful bursts. And, from that moment, the cows and the donkey recovered.

4.—AGAIN in pre-war Ireland, this girl, accompanied by another sister and a friend, had a much more eerie experience. They were walking up a drive to the friend's house when, rounding a bend near the rest, the girl saw, silhouetted against the night sky, a tall, very thin man. He was standing on a bank, and jumped into the drive immediately in front of them.

"What was so awful," I am told, "was that he landed on the gravel in absolute silence; and his head was so small as to seem a mere button on his long, thin neck. I could feel my hair stirring. I began to cry. My friend, who told me afterwards that she had seen the thing before, turned us round and hurried us back to the lodge. She saw it, too, that time, and said that it followed us for about a hundred yards. But I didn't look. My younger sister didn't see anything."

"We went back to the place the next day, and I found that it would have been impossible to see anything silhouetted against the sky, because the bank was topped by a larch at least six feet high. So he must have been backed by a curious glow of his own."

Some years ago, long after I was told this story, a paragraph, which I have before me appeared in the old "Morning Post" about elemental earth spirits. It described them as "very tall, lean men—more 'rickets o' bones,' to use a North Country description—with small triangular heads." I thought this interesting. A woman I know intimately told me that she once saw a figure, which this description fits, moving along a road near Crawley, in Sussex. It seemed to her to have no head at all.

5.—Then there is the woman who told me that she and her sister, who were taking part in some amateur theatricals in a country house, wondered who was the man with the dark moustache sitting next their father in the front row of chairs. "There was no man," their father said afterwards. "Your aunt was on my left, but the chair on my right was empty."

My own supernatural experiences are confined to a chest of drawers and a cake of soap. The chest of drawers was in a house where I was staying. One night, just after I had got into bed, it emitted a loud bang—no mistake about that. The next morning I was told it belonged to a woman—a friend of the family—who always closed the bottom drawer with a lock.

The cake of soap was in a Battersea house, said to be afflicted by a poltergeist or rowdy spirit. The psychic investigator and I went there. We watched and waited; nothing happened. We went upstairs, leaving the only other occupant of the house in the kitchen. We explored every room. And then, in the middle of a sunlit passage, along which we had walked a minute before, we saw a cake of yellow soap.

Facts. Mr. Gradgrind, simple facts. What is one to make of them?

RIVAL TO CRICKET RACING NOW AMONG COUNTRY'S SPORTS

The golf craze has hit Australia hard; in fact, it has become so popular that it is fast rivaling cricket and racing, at present dominant "down under." Jim Ferrier and von Nida are the leading players, and they are good enough to be considered among those in the running for the British Open this year.

There are 781 golf clubs in Australia, made up of: New South Wales 285, Victoria 249, Western Australia 90, South Australia 65, Queensland 61, Tasmania 31. Taking into account the public links which have sprung up like mushrooms in recent years, Australia possesses more than 1,000 courses.

Among them 250,000 golfers (a conservative estimate) own clubs and bags valued at nearly £1,500,000. If they use one ball a week the annual bill can be assessed at £620,000. Then, as a matter of fact, golf has not yet become the vogue, the golfers have to be fitted out with appropriate clothes, shoes, etc.—a tally of £480,000 worth yearly.

Liquid refreshment and food are estimated to incur an annual outlay by the followers of St. Andrews of £2,100,000.

HUGE CAPITAL

All this does not take into account the freehold value of the land over which the millions of little white balls travel; the club-houses, some of them palatial, where, over the convivial glass, golfers swap tales that are said to rival those of fishermen. Suffice it to say that two or three of the larger clubs in Australia are capitalised at about £100,000.

The vast club-house at Rose Bay, Sydney, is said to be worth £75,000. Club-house and furnishings at Victoria Club (Victoria) cost £35,000. Golf, in the Commonwealth, therefore, is a business on a large scale, a business supporting thousands of workers. In relation to this population, Australia has more golf courses than almost any other country in the world.

There are inland courses; there are seaside and country courses; there are public links. Supplying the demand for golf on a pay-as-you-play plan, these last-named have grown phenomenally in the last few years.

The success of one of the Yarra Bend National Park Links, near Melbourne, has been nothing short of phenomenal. About five years back, the Park Trustees undertook the very expensive job of converting a waste area of parkland into one of the most picturesque playing-areas ever known. The reward for this is that every year thousands of pounds come in in two shilling and sixpenny and eighteen-penny green fees.

UNEXPECTED HAZARDS
In the "outback" areas, golfing gets a little rougher. In these areas there are many and various and all sorts of unexpected hazards.

Not that sand greens are all bad. Well prepared, they offer splendid putting surfaces. But hazards? One of the most unpleasant obstacles to quiet, restful golf is the crow. Somehow, crows have developed an inordinate liking for golf balls.

In some Victorian country centres, and even at stately Canberra, Australian capital, these dusky thieves are so prone to sneak off with golf balls that players need, metaphorically, to have a club in one hand and a shotgun in the other.

"Shooting" birds—a golf term originating in America—has a real meaning for golfers in some parts in Australia.

These hazards are, however, nothing to those to be encountered in the North territory. There the crow menace is replaced by giant land-crabs and snakes. The crabs sneak off with the balls to their holes; the latter treat them as eggs and swallow them.

VOLUNTEERS DRAW WITH U. SERVICES

Though at one period it appeared that the Hongkong Volunteers might beat the Hongkong C.C. ground yesterday, time was against them, and the ultimate result was a draw. The United Services declared at 220 for eight wickets, to which Lt. Manners (Navy) contributed 69.

E. C. Fincher (56) and L. T. Riddle (53) opened for the Volunteers and scored 105 before being separated. H. Owen Hughes, next in, featured in a brilliant hitting display, and, with eleven fours, knocked out his 50 in less than 25 minutes. The Volunteers at this stage had hopes of a victory, but in forcing the pace lost wickets, and the intervals placed them further behind the clock.

CLUB WIN RUGBY

A handful of rugby enthusiasts saw the Hongkong Club "A" defeat the R.A.O.C. by 11 points to 3 in a rugby match at the Club ground yesterday, at the commencement of the match the R.A.O.C. threatened but were unable to score.
From then onwards, the Club took advantage of opportunities offered, and emerged easy winners.

assortment—assumption—monosyllable.

Just before their championship wrestling match, Joe E. "The Gladiator" Brown and Man Mountain Dean shake hands. But Joe is a science-made superman and his handshake is nothing to be sneered at. Dean isn't sneering; he is howling. A scene from the comedy now showing at the King's Theatre. June Travis, Robert Kent and Dickie Moore are others in the film.

R. Whitcombe Versus Bobby Locke

London, Feb. 21.
Reginald Whitcombe, the British Open champion, and Bobby Locke, the South African champion, will play a £500 challenge golf match at Woodbine Hill, on May 31 and June 1, says Reuters.

The match was arranged when Henry Cotton turned down Locke's challenge and Whitcombe accepted it.
Locke originally wanted the match to be played a winner-take-all basis, but Whitcombe insisted that as Open champion he was entitled to 60 per cent. of the "gate." Locke later agreed.

OUR GUIDE TO THE CINEMAS

"The Gladiator" (King's Theatre, to-day)—The Joe E. Brown fraternity is going to like this one. Poor Joe plays dummy for the football squad until his strength becomes the strength of ten—due to an inoculation by a professor. The climax is reached when, half-way through his wrestling match with Man Mountain Dean, the serum gives out. But the gods don't and the hero wins. Splendid entertainment.
There, to-day—Mildly exciting and humorous diversion based on the Mark Twain story. Tom and Huck identify the diamond thieves and prove that Uncle Silas did not murder the hired man's twin brother.
"Men Are Such Fools" (Alhambra Theatre, to-day)—They certainly are, if Jimmy (Wayne Morris) is a fair sample. His wife (Priscilla Lane) tries to mix marriage to him with a career and has difficulties. How these difficulties are smoothed out provides situations to develop the picture into an entertaining one.
"Doctor Rhythm" (Oriental Theatre, to-day)—Beatrice Lillie hits her stride as far as the movies are concerned and saves this from being just another musical. Miss Lillie more than justifies her large following and will probably increase it when she sings about the gypsy in her. The film is agreeable enough, with Bing Crosby singing his way in and out of a plot about a doctor who tries to save a fortune hunter. Mary Carlisle, Laura Hope Crews, Franklin Pangborn and Andy Devine are others in the cast.
"There's Always A Woman" (Majestic Theatre, to-day)—Joan Blondell and Melvyn Douglas in a "Thin Man" type of sleuth yarn, with Miss Blondell appearing as the spouse who tumbles on the clues. Amusing stuff, a little overdone, which might benefit from Melvyn Douglas's suave playing.
"Breaking the Ice" (Cathay Theatre, to-day)—Those who care for Bobby Green will like this show, which is one of his best.

Army Boxing. HONGKONG AREA FINALS DECIDED LAST EVENING

The finals of the Hongkong Area novices individual boxing championships were held at Nanking Barracks, Shamshupo, last night. Some good boxing was seen, and perhaps the best bout of the evening was that between Pte. McDougal and Pte. Fawcett, which was won by the latter. Both fighters went for each other right from the start, and at the end McDougal was congratulated by the referee for putting up a plucky display.

Col. Nevill, G.S.O.I., distributed the prizes, after which he said that when he first came out he was told he would probably see some very dirty fighting in the neighbourhood. Last week at the Border this was proved to be perfectly true, and it was a great pleasure to see a whole evening of absolutely clean fighting.

The results were:
Dante (weight)—Spr. Murphy (R.S.) beat Pte. Hadden (R.S.).
Featherweight—Pte. Brown (R.S.) beat Pte. Edge (R.S.).
Lightweight—L/Cpl. Morley (R.S.) beat Pte. Bickley (R.A.M.C.).
Special Contest—Pte. McNally (R.S.) beat Pte. Spencer (R.S.).
Middleweight—Pte. Moore (R.S.) beat Pte. Fawcett (R.S.).
Heavyweight—Pte. Fawcett (R.S.) beat Pte. McDougal (R.S.).
Heavyweight—Pte. Alexander (R.S.) beat Pte. Goddard (R.S.).
Heavyweight—Pte. Galvanagh (R.S.) beat Pte. Manson (R.S.).

"MOVING DAY"

Here we see the revival of the cross over bodice with an adjustable V neckline. The long sleeve is made in a deeper tone of blue than the dress. Note the narrow waist and tilted hat.

Again the draped bodice line in the shape of a revers and the narrow waist emphasized by a row of porcelain buttons. The high hat has swathed ends of georgette.

The dull and shiny sides of satin are used to give contrast in this elegant afternoon outfit. Note the high wrapped throat, the knee-length tunic and floating sash ends.

Brightening Sunless Windows

HERE is a new method of arranging curtains which will bring into the appearance of sunshine and a suggestion of a flowery garden into a dim and cheerless room.

Cover the window with a glass curtain of cream net, reaching to the sill. Hang it moderately full, its width being one and a half times the width of the window.

On one side of this curtain applique gay coloured flowers with leaves and long stems, all made of silk through which the light will shine.

On the opposite side arrange a single curtain of some deep daffodil flower. The next lower flower is made in a similar way, starting with a large circle of the upper half of this pink piece under for one quarter of an inch and button-hole on to the yellow silk, using pink silk thread. A piece of the lavender silk, somewhat in the shape of an irregular half moon, is now tacked over all its edges turned under and button-holed on to the yellow below it, using lavender thread. Then all the extra thicknesses of silk underneath are cut away so as to leave only one thickness of silk throughout the flower.

Graceful Stems

The stems, which must be cut on a slight curve to make them look graceful, should be of a light but rather vivid green. Cut the material one inch wide, and turn one-quarter inch under on each side, leaving the finished stems half an inch wide. Both edges are now button-holed with silk thread of the same shade of green.

The long thin leaves must be a little wider throughout their middle portion than the stems, but tapered to points above, and button-holed in the same way. One of the two leaves should be of green silk, the other of orange. They should be 2 1/2 inches wide by 3 1/2 inches long when finished and button-holed. When with silk thread of the colour of the leaf, in a simple stitch.

When the flowers, leaves, and stems are finished, pin them to the curtain piece of yellow silk, five inches lower half of the net curtain at the outer edge, but very regular in outline, suggesting the shape of a flower, then lightly turn the edge under for a quarter of an inch and place. This makes it easy to turn the edge under for a quarter of an inch and place. This makes it easy to turn the edge under for a quarter of an inch and place. This makes it easy to turn the edge under for a quarter of an inch and place.

This is easier to do if the silk is first tacked to a piece of newspaper, start from the very bottom of the which afterwards can be torn away. An irregular circle, 2 1/2 inches in diameter, should now be cut from

Australian Beer Garden

Sydney, Australia.

Australia is to have its first beer garden. It will be built along the latest continental lines, with a seating capacity of 200 people, mostly under coloured awnings and umbrellas. However, under existing licensing laws it will have to close at 6 p.m.

COOKING HINTS

FISH will fry fine golden brown if crushed cornflakes are substituted for the usual coating of breadcrumbs.

When preparing a chicken for roasting, brush it over with olive oil. This makes it very tender, and the flavour is greatly improved.

When roasting apples before placing them in the oven, take a sharp knife and make a cut round each one, just breaking the peel and no more. This ensures that the apples will remain whole without bursting.

When mixing a fruit tart, mix a little cornflour with the sugar before adding it to the fruit. This will make the juice like syrup and prevent it from boiling over.

To prevent the jam in jam tarts becoming hard and dry through the heat of the oven, add boiling water to the jam. (A dessertspoonful to a teaspoon of jam is a good proportion.) Mix and place in tarts when half cooked. The water evaporates and leaves the jam soft and juicy.

If short pastry is mixed with milk instead of water, it will keep for a longer period.

Sometimes the pastry in a fruit tart is sodden and heavy through the juice boiling up over the pastry. To prevent this, cut a drinking straw in four, and place these in the pastry to form "chimneys." This allows the steam to escape, and the pastry remains dry and crisp.

Before baking potatoes in their jackets, soak them in hot water for 15 minutes, dry them and brush over with olive oil. Put in the oven and bake until floury.

Help Dry Skin With Oatmeal

THE most important attribute of feminine beauty is a skin that is clear and unblemished. It may be necessary for you to spend long hours in testing out treatments to gain such a skin. One of the more unusual types of skin that we seldom discuss in detail is the dry skin that is marred by blackheads and pimples.

This condition in dry skin is caused by a previous enlarged pore condition which was not properly treated so the distended pores were left to collect impurities. These lazy pores hold onto the impurities stubbornly so the blackheads cannot be removed at all without special treatment. Any attempt to press them out results in bruised skin and tender areas which are likely to become infected.

REMOVES BLACKHEADS

Here is an excellent treatment that will remove the blackheads, tighten the pores and at the same time help overcome the dryness. The treatment consists partly of a facial with oatmeal bags. Cut four inch squares from cheesecloth and in the centre of each one, place a tablespoonful of a mixture made from one cup oatmeal, one teaspoon finely shaved castile soap and about an eighth of a teaspoon of sulphur. Mix the ingredients thoroughly.

Pick up the corners of the squares of gauze, twist them together and tie near the top with a piece of string. Be sure to leave plenty of space for the oatmeal to swell.

Now heat a small dish of olive oil. Dip a pad of cotton in the warm oil and go over the skin and wipe it off with tissues. If the skin is still soiled, use a second application and remove. Leave the next application on the skin for three or four minutes so it will have a chance to penetrate the pores.

FINISH WITH CREAM

Dip one of the bags into a glass of warm water. Let it soak until the water is milky and the bag is thoroughly moistened. Without wringing it out, wash the face with the bag just as you would a washcloth. Go over and over the areas affected by blackheads. Rub the bag over the face for several minutes, redipping it if necessary to keep it moist.

Rinse the face in clear, tepid water and then pat some of the liquid from the oatmeal over it and let it dry. After this apply a film of nourishing cream and let it remain on the skin ten minutes, remove and apply your cosmetics.

Repeat the treatment at night, only follow the nourishing cream with another application of olive oil and allow it to remain on the skin until morning. After a week or so, according to the improvement of your skin, the olive oil may be discontinued at night, though it should always be noted before going over the skin with oatmeal bags.

This little girl wears a Tyrolean costume of striped taffeta in two tones of green with bright coloured embroidery and a white organdie blouse. She dresses her doll in a similar costume.

Imperial Airways Plane For China

Kunming, Mar. 2.
An Imperial Airways plane is expected to arrive here from Burma at 11 o'clock this morning.

This will be the first time a foreign civil plane has flown over Chinese territory.

The plane, an Atlanta type bi-motored machine, was originally scheduled to fly here from Rangoon to-day. It is, however, embarking on the flight one day ahead and arrived at Lashio at 12.40 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It is continuing its journey to Kunming this morning.

No passengers are carried on the plane. Only the captain and three other members of the crew are on board.

The Far Eastern manager of the Imperial Airways has arrived here from Chungking to discuss with the local authorities the inauguration of a regular air service between China and Burma.—Central News.

School-Children Won Big Sweep, Report

SEVERAL LEADING Chinese newspapers, including the Ta Kung Pao and the Wah Kiu Yat Po, still insist this morning that the first prize of the Hongkong Derby was jointly won by three Chinese school boys and a girl.

It is confirmed, state the papers, that the $240,000 prize was won by Pang Kwok-kwun, Lee Hing-cheung, Chau Shui-lin and a friend of the three young people.

It is said that they jointly bought the ticket two days after the lunar New Year's Day under the name of Chau Shui-lin, the girl. The name Chau Shui-lin was responsible for the spreading of the rumours on Monday night that Dr. S. N. Chau had won the first prize.

According to the Chinese papers, the ticket is in the hands of Pang Kwok-kwun, a student of the St. Joseph College, and the son of a wealthy merchant who lived in Wengchong.

Interviewed by Chinese pressmen, the eldest brother of Pang Kwok-kwun said his brother has been out since last Monday and he did not know where he was now.

The paper does not give the full name of the boy's brother but states that he is a Mr. Pang, a manager of a certain shipping company in Hongkong.

A celebration was held at the Kam Lung Restaurant on Monday night by the winners, the papers add.

Conscription For Finland

Helsinki, Mar. 1.
The Finnish Government has introduced a Bill for national labour service in war time.

If adopted, all men and women between 18 and 60 would, at the outbreak of war, have to report for national defence, and for filling up the vacancies in war industries and agricultural labour.

The Bill provides that those liable to national service can be called up in peace time for not more than 60 days for training.—Trans-Ocean.

Daladier As President

Possibility Seen In Paris Circles

PARIS, Mar. 1.
THE POSSIBILITY of M. Edouard Daladier becoming the next President of the French Republic was openly discussed in French political circles to-day.

The election is scheduled for April 6, and several Deputies and party leaders have visited M. Daladier during the past few days to urge him to accept candidacy.

Quarters close to the Premier fear that the Left-Wing political opponents are encouraging such a step as it would remove Daladier from the Premiership, and leave the office open possibly to a Left-Wing politician.

Right-Wing supporters, however, hope that M. Lebrun will decide to accept re-nomination.—Trans-Ocean.

WHITEAWAY'S

PARLEYS COMMENCE INCIDENT ON H.K. FRONTIER

REPRESENTATIVES OF the Japanese and Hongkong Governments met in conference at the Colonial Secretary's office this afternoon.

The discussions have been opened on the subject of the amount of compensation to be paid by Japan for damage to persons and property sustained in British territory during the incident on the border on February 20.

In this incident, in which Japanese planes raiding Shum Chun crossed into British territory and bombed the neighbourhood of Lowu, twelve were killed.

The "Telegraph" understands that the Hongkong Government is being represented in the discussions by the Colonial Secretary, the Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith.

The Japanese Government is being represented by Major General Tanaka, Chief of Staff of the Commander-in-Chief in South China, General Ando.

Major General Tanaka arrived in Hongkong yesterday evening by the transport Chitose Maru.

CALL ON GOVERNOR

This morning, the Japanese General called on His Excellency the Governor, Sir Geoffrey Northcote, and expressed General Ando's deep regrets and apologies for the Lowu incident.

His Excellency the Governor replied that he was highly appreciative of General Ando's action in sending his Chief of Staff on this mission.

Sir Geoffrey Northcote added that he was glad to know that the incident had been disposed of satisfactorily by the two Governments concerned.

Major-General Tanaka also made official calls on Vice-Admiral Sir Percy Noble and Major-General A. E. Grassie this morning.

The calls were returned later, Capt. S. H. Butty-Smith representing His Excellency the Governor.

It is understood that Major-General Tanaka is staying with Mr. Oda, the Japanese Consul-General.

FRANCE IS FIRM

Will Not Surrender
Any Colonies

PARIS, Mar. 1.

M. GEORGE BONNET has told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the French Government will refuse to participate in any conference designed to force France to make concessions to Italy.

He added that the maximum concessions France would make were contained in the 1935 agreements.

These made minor border adjustments in North Africa and arranged for the safeguarding of the Italian minorities.

It is reported that M. Bonnet said the Spanish Nationalists had assured France that German and Italian troops would be repatriated at the end of the civil war.

It is understood that Marshal Petain has accepted temporary Ambassadorship to Spain for three months.—United Press.

Police Reserve Meeting

Thanks to the Indian Company for their goodwill and loyalty during the recent Emergency. Calls were expressed by the Chairman, Mr. Ferz, at the annual meeting of the H.K.P.R. yesterday.

At the meeting it was stated that a bathing pavilion would soon be available to members of the company on Castle Peak Road.

Officers elected for the year were: Chairman, Mr. Ferz; Ali, Vice-chairman, Messrs I. Singh, F. Khan, K. B. Shukla, Hon. Sec. Mr. C. Singh, Hon. Treas. Mr. A. Ghani.

His grandfather, reveals American sociologist Professor J. K. Schuecklgruber, in a "United Press" message changed his name because he thought it sounded better.

London, Mar. 1.
Replying to a question in the House of Commons to-day, Captain H. H. Balfour, Under-Secretary for Air, said he was not satisfied with the condition of fire prevention in motor-cars.

BOEING CLIPPER

PROGRESS REPORTS

40-Tons Of Steel
Speeds To H.K.

STILL 3,000 miles from Hongkong at 8 o'clock this morning, the giant 74-passenger Boeing Clipper is scheduled to land in Kowloon Bay at noon tomorrow.

Forty tons of riveted steel, the new Clipper is speeding along the trans-Pacific air-line towards Hongkong at an average speed of 135 miles per hour.

The plane is now in short-wave radio communication with the Pan-American Airways station at Macao and with the Hongkong Airport at Kai Tak.

She reported by radio that she had left Guam at 6.10 a.m. Guam Time (8.10 a.m. H.K.T.) this morning, and at noon to-day was within 400 miles of Manila.

The Clipper expects to land at Manila at 4 p.m.

HERE TO MORROW

Early to-morrow the new plane, with 24 people aboard, will take off from Manila on the last stage of its first flight across the Pacific. In order to arrive at Hongkong on schedule, the plane is due at noon to-morrow; the speed will be throttled down to 115 m.p.h., 95 m.p.h. less than the speed her four Wright Cyclone engines are capable of producing.

TO CIRCLE CITY

Before landing at Kai Tak, the Boeing will circle the city and Kowloon, so that everyone residing in the Colony will be able to witness her actual arrival.

Pan American Airways have been swamped with requests for permission to board the Clipper after its arrival to-morrow. So many applications have been received that it has been found impossible to issue invitations to everyone asking for one.

On the present flight no passengers are being carried. The Boeing will leave Hongkong on Saturday on the return flight to California, and is scheduled to arrive back here on March 23 for the inaugural passenger flight.

HEAVY BOOKINGS

Pan American Airways officials told the "Telegraph" this afternoon that there had already been large numbers of bookings for passengers on this flight. The ship can carry 74 passengers.

So far, the new Clipper is a plane without a name. In official documents it is referred to as "Boeing Clipper No. 1".

However, it is likely to be christened Cathay Clipper before the start of the first passenger flight.

This will be on the completion of the return test flight from Hongkong on Saturday, the ceremony probably taking place in San Francisco.

ITALIAN WARSHIPS

Cruise Cancelled
Following Incident

THE SEVENTH ITALIAN Naval Squadron, which was to have arrived in Hongkong from South America in mid-March, has abandoned its world cruise.

The Squadron was suddenly recalled from Panama a fortnight ago, after several incidents there. It stated that these incidents included the pelting of the Italian Admiral as he was motoring through the streets of the capital, and the shouting of anti-Fascist slogans at sailors on the warships.

After proceeding through the Panama Canal, the Italian warships were to have come to Hongkong via Japan.

The ships are now re-crossing the Atlantic, returning to Italy.

Envoy's Body In Cruiser

Roosevelt's Gesture
To Japan

WASHINGTON, Mar. 1.
PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has offered to send a 10,000-ton cruiser of the American Navy to Japan to escort home the remains of Mr. Hiroshi Saitoh, formerly Japanese Ambassador to Washington who died in Washington on Sunday last.

Informing of the offer by Mr. Wells, Assistant Secretary of State, this afternoon, Mr. Kensei Horinouchi, Japanese Ambassador, immediately communicated the matter to his home Government.

It is recalled that when the late Mr. Edgar Bancroft, former American Ambassador to Japan, died in Japan in July, 1925, a Japanese cruiser escorted his remains from Yokohama to San Francisco.—United Press.

DEATH ROLL MOUNTING IN AWFUL OSAKA EXPLOSION

Powder Godown Blows Up

MORE THAN 8,000
ARE HOMELESS

OSAKA, Mar. 2.

Ten persons were killed, 32 seriously injured, 440 slightly injured and 25 people are missing as the result of the conflagration which started in the military warehouses at Hirakata in Osaka on Wednesday afternoon.

Eight hundred houses have been totally, and 100 others partially, destroyed.

The number of people rendered homeless as the result of the disaster is given as 8,313.

Seven thousand five hundred sufferers are accommodated in Osaka and 813 others are taken to Kyoto.

Started at 2.40 p.m. on Wednesday the fire continued to rage until this morning.

Urgent efforts are being made by the Government and military authorities and other quarters concerned to rescue the stricken people and re-habilitate the affected area.

A War Office communique stated that although detailed circumstances surrounding the disaster were still under investigation, it was understood that a miscarriage in the handling of powder was responsible for the fire.

Lieut-General Yanawaki, Vice-Minister of War, left Tokyo at 1 p.m. in company with a number of other officials of the War Ministry to co-operate in relief measures and inquiries, the communique added.

FACTORY WRECKED

The fire broke out in the military warehouses at Hirakata at 2.40 p.m. and the blaze is still raging at the time of reporting.

Passengers in a moving train-car near the scene of the fire were injured by fragments of window panes which were shattered by the impact of the explosion.

Telephone and tram-car service in the affected area was interrupted for some time.

The first official announcement issued by the Osaka Prefecture Police at 11.40 p.m. put the total number of sufferers at 5,800, while about 600 houses have been gutted.

TROOPS CALLED

The Central Japan Defence Headquarters issued a communique at 8.10 o'clock last night, announcing that "considerable damage" was believed to have been caused by the fire in the military warehouses which started at 2.40 p.m. and continued to rage until 5.40 p.m.

Immediately following the outbreak of the fire, a battalion of troops was called out from the Fourth Division of the Army in Osaka, while a military engineer company and four rescue squads were rushed to the scene to fight the raging flames.

Gendarmes and local police were mobilized to maintain peace and order and rescue sufferers.

About 1,000 police and 170 fire-fighters were dispatched by the Prefecture Government. Reinforcements of police and fire-fighters were also sent by the Kyoto Prefecture Government.—United Press.

GORDON AROUND WRECKED AREA

Tokyo, Mar. 1.
Rescuers are extricating bodies from the burning munitions depot, having partially controlled the conflagration, although the heat is intense, hampering the workers.

Casualties are possibly 100. However, the number of people within the depot when the explosions occurred is not known.

Meanwhile troops have thrown a cordon round the area over a distance of two kilometres.

The Osaka-Kyoto railway section has blown up, and at present it is impossible to communicate with the Hirakata village.

At the Japanese Ministry of Munitions, the affair is a closely guarded secret and detailed information is not obtainable.

The police are also maintaining a very strict ban on information.—United Press.

ANY SPARE PANDAS?

If you have two or three baby giant pandas snuffling around your home, Major V. E. Duclos, Canadian Government Trade Commissioner, would like to hear from you.

Major Duclos badly needs them. They mustn't be adult pandas. They must be babies. And they must be healthy, too.

You see, Major Duclos endeavours to fill the requirements of Canadians who cable or write to him.

And he's just received a cable from Toronto.

"Can you secure me two or more healthy baby giant pandas for shipment to Toronto?" the sender implores.

So far, only seven pandas have been brought out of China alive. Two have since died so that, in the zoos of the world to-day there are only five pandas. Two are in New York and three at Whipsnade.

Major Duclos doesn't want to have to organise an expedition to far-off Szechuan to fulfil his latest order. So, if you have those pandas, will you give him a telephone call?

FRENCH WARSHIP FOR HAINAN

PARIS, Mar. 1.

THE FOREIGN MINISTER, M. Bonnet, announced before the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Deputies to-day that a French warship will be sent to Hainan Island.

The island was recently occupied by Japanese forces.

Characterising the action as similar to that taken by the United States, which dispatched a warship to Hainan following the Japanese occupation, the Foreign Minister added that the French Government accepted the explanation given by the Japanese Foreign Minister Mr. Arita, that the Japanese action was taken as a temporary measure during continuation of the current Sino-Japanese conflict.—United Press.

The Hague, Mar. 1.
A brawl in the Chamber to-day led to the suspension of the sitting.

M. Van Tongeren, National-Socialist, used unparliamentary language and refused to leave when ordered.

The Catholic Member M. Ruyter then called Van Tongeren a traitor.

Van Tongeren rushed at Ruyter and blows were exchanged, several other Members intervening.

Premier's War Warning

Ottawa, Mar. 2.
Prime Minister Mackenzie King intervened sharply in protracted debate to urge need for haste.

"We may be called upon at any moment to consider questions for larger than any we have discussed yet," he said.

"I pray that will not come to pass, but every newspaper reader knows of the situation and we would be well advised to get along with our parliamentary business as rapidly as we can."—United Press.

A.R.P. Plan In Britain

Sir John Anderson, Air Minister, predicted A.R.P. plan would be completed this year instead of 1941. He promised a steady progressive improvement in output and quality.

Dealing with problems of transport from docks in wartime Sir John said he had had to face the possibility that enemy action might render necessary considerable diversion of seaborne traffic. This problem has been subject to continuous study for months.

Definite orders have been placed for the creation of a reserve of electrical apparatus for replacement in the event of a serious attack.

The stories published on this page came from the capitals of Europe and America this morning. They all deal with one subject—the preparations made for WAR. One, from Rome, tells of Il Duce's demand for "more and more intensive military preparations." From Berlin: "We must produce aeroplanes in quantity and quality that seems unimaginable," says Goering. From Washington: "We will soon be pouring out aeroplanes like concrete." From Tokyo come the details of Japan's enormous Extraordinary Military Budget. All these thousands of words include only one message pleading for peace—a plea by the Marquis of Zetland.

Cables Flash The Stories Of World's Preparations For War

In Washington

WASHINGTON, Mar. 1. THE HOUSE OF Representatives appropriations committee to-day reported the $499,657,936 Bill for the War Department for the year beginning July 1.

This is the largest regular army appropriation measure since the Great War.

The committee recommended the immediate expenditure of $50,000,000, mostly for air corps expansion, which would buy 551 combat planes and 14 machines for photographing purposes, which, plus the sums already approved, would provide for 1,600 planes to be delivered within 18 months, and would make available 3,200 first-line planes.

The committee also reported a $500,000,000 military establishment bill, including nearly $60,000,000 for the construction of a new Hawaii Canal zone, and $4,285,000 for sea coast defenses at Panama, Hawaii and the Philippines. The appropriations for sea coast defenses at Hawaii and the Philippines total $1,600,000.

The committee said that details of the sea coast defenses were "secret and confidential," but that they constitute the most important phase of national defence expansion.—United Press.

AIR FORCE STRENGTH

WASHINGTON, Mar. 1. Congressional committee disclosures regarding the strength and plans of the United States air force have been made public, and reveal that the United States has 479 first-line fighting planes at present, under "emergency conditions" to raise American aircraft production to 1,000 planes a month, which is generally regarded as Germany's output.

Major-General H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps, said that with a regular annual appropriation exceeding funds asked by President Roosevelt, the War Department planned various types of machines.

Experiments were now being made in new explosives, and the production of aircraft from plastic materials, which he hoped would eventually enable them to "pour out aeroplanes like concrete."—Reuter Special.

WARSHIPS FOR JAPAN

London, Mar. 1. In the House of Commons to-day, Mr. Geoffrey Shaker, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, replied in the negative to two questions on whether he now had further information to show that Japan was building battleships of 40,000 to 45,000 tons.—Reuter Special.

3,400 Japanese Now In Canton

Canton, Mar. 1. Japanese residents in Canton total 3,400, as compared with 300 prior to the outbreak of the hostilities, according to official figures.

IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Mar. 1. "WE MUST PRODUCE aeroplanes in quantity and quality that seems unimaginable". This is what Field-Marshal Hermann Goering said in a speech to the heads of the Reich armed forces and Party members in Berlin to-day.

Other points in his speech were:

We must sharpen the sword that serves the security of the German people.

The word fear has been crossed out of the German vocabulary.

In 1939 the German Air Force demands another gigantic effort.

The speaker declared that he had always been convinced that, given the right kind of leadership and the necessary concentration of all energies, the German people were absolutely invincible. Consciousness of being able to rely on this armed force gave the Fuehrer strength to approach the solution of great national tasks with calm confidence.

and to demand the irrevocable rights of the German nation.

Field-Marshal Goering said that a glance over the border showed great countries, which, with unsurpassable abundance of culture, are crippled by an unparalleled armaments fever. While the speeches of many politicians drip with peace oracles and eloquence with the oil of Christian neighbourly love and democratic infidelity, they throw their forces into the service of great rearmament.

In order to give Germany her necessary data in the air force, they must make themselves independent of raw materials which foreign countries refused to deliver in necessary quantities.—Reuter Special.

He strongly emphasised the acceleration which had been applied to the Government's plans, following the September crisis, and indicated that such an order as would mean the realisation in the present year of the aims formerly scheduled for 1941.

Sir John Anderson explained the reorganisation and redistribution of the functions between different departments, which had followed his appointment last October, and after speaking about evacuation plans, with which he promised the Minister of Health he would deal more fully when the debate is continued tomorrow, he came to the supply of essential equipment.

He mentioned that his department had taken delivery of over 50,000,000 respirators and their containers.

They had also received 127,000,000 sandbags, and would go on receiving them at the rate of between three and four million per week from now on. In addition 200,000,000 were on order in India.

GAS MASKS FOR BABIES. Incidentally Sir John disclosed that deliveries of a new anti-gas device for babies and a new type of respirators for young children would be completed within the next few months.

Dealing with plans for regional commissions which have given rise to some controversy, the Minister emphasised that commissioners would have no executive duties in peace time, and even in war time, their powers would be exclusively those derived from the Central Government.

It was not intended they should encroach upon the powers of local authorities, but the whole question of the position of local authorities in circumstances of war was under discussion with representatives of those authorities.

IN ROME

ROME, Mar. 1. "MORE AND more intensive military preparations, and more and more social justice" in order to safeguard the defence of Italy against the plans of encirclement harboured by the anti-Fascist world movements, and to amalgamate the working classes closer and closer with the Fascist State.

That is the new credo for Italy, given by Signor Mussolini to-day.

Il Duce proclaimed this as the new guiding principle for the threefold task of the Italian race when he received the new Director of the Fascist Party at the Palazzo Venezia.

Seeks Asylum For Loyalists

Fear Of Reprisals By General Franco

LONDON, Mar. 1. MR. ARTHUR HENDERSON asked in the House of Commons to-day whether the Government was prepared to offer full rights of an asylum to all Spanish Republican leaders and followers unable to remain in Spain because of possible reprisals.

Mr. Geoffrey Lloyd, declared that the Government was always anxious to maintain the traditional policy of offering an asylum to foreigners who wished to take refuge for political, racial, or other reasons.

The number that could be admitted was necessarily limited, but all arrangements could be made for the maintenance of a limited number of Spanish Republican leaders and followers, applications for admission would receive the Home Secretary's sympathetic consideration.—Reuter.

U. S. RECOGNITION. Washington, Mar. 1. The Government to-day was urged to take immediate steps to recognise General Franco by the Democrat, Senator Chavez, speaking in the Senate.

After referring to the British and French recognition of the Franco Government, Senator Chavez added: "We must not jeopardise our improved relations with Latin-American merely because of the domestic problems of a European country."—Reuter.

FRANCO WANTS NO CREDITS—YET. London, Mar. 1. Mr. R. A. Butler stated in the House of Commons to-day that no proposals for financial assistance, either by way of loans or credit had been made by the Spanish Nationalist Government to the British Government.

Asked whether recognition of the Nationalist Government deprived the Republican Government of the "right to be represented in the League of Nations," Mr. Butler replied that that was a question for the League to decide.—Trans-Ocean.

BRAZILIAN RECOGNITION. Lisbon, Mar. 1. The Brazilian Government has instructed its Ambassador here to inform the Spanish Ambassador at Lisbon that Brazil has decided to recognise the Franco Government.

It is stated that the Brazilian Government adopted this means of communicating its decision because there is no Brazilian representative in Burgos.—Trans-Ocean.

Helsinki, Mar. 1. The Finnish Government has introduced a Bill for national labour service in war time.

The One Call For Peace

London, Mar. 1. A call to dictators to play their part in bringing peace to the world was made by the Marquis of Zetland, speaking at Liverpool to-day.

He said "Let the governments of the world take their courage in both hands and set their feet on the road along which Mr. Chamberlain has already gone over halfway to meet them, and the peoples of the earth may yet see a resplendent dawn."

"Germany has it within her power to bring the insane race of armaments to an end by the simple expedient of crying halt to her own feverish concentration on rearmament. She will find us more than willing to discuss at the conference table all matters of common concern."

"What she will not find us prepared to do is to stand with our hands tied behind us, while she holds a loaded pistol in her hand."—Reuter Special.

BALDNESS, FALLING HAIR

ADD YEARS TO YOUR APPEARANCE

Don't fool yourself! You will never stop baldness—falling hair—aging appearance—until you realize Nature's reasons for these scourges and prevent them in Nature's own way.

Getting to the Root of the Trouble Dr. Weidner, brilliant European research worker, realized that the roots of the hair—like plants—must be fed. Nature nourishes the hair-forming tissues by supplying them with the fourteen vital elements through the bloodstream. BUT unless your scalp is continually cared for, it dries up through hot sun, choking dusty atmosphere, continual wearing of headgear, illness and neglect, cutting off the life-giving food from the bloodstream. The hair starves—and dies.

What Silvikrin is Silvikrin, the concentrated natural Hair Food, contains these fourteen constitutive elements in the right proportion as discovered by Dr. Weidner. It includes Tryptophane, the precious vital substance indispensable for life and growth.

What Silvikrin Does It actually feeds the hair roots. By external application you provide the roots with the identical life-giving elements that normally healthy hair gets from the bloodstream! When you use Silvikrin, all dull, brittle hair is replaced by a luxuriant new crop of sleek, healthy hair. Even if baldness is threatening, Silvikrin will gradually cover the head once more. As long as your hair roots are alive Silvikrin will make them grow. It restores to a man his normal hair growth, keeps women's hair free from dandruff and gives that glossy luxuriant look which men admire.

For dandruff, hair begins to fall, to keep the scalp healthy, strengthen the hair and bring out its natural beauty. Ask for Silvikrin Lotion.

For severe dandruff, serious falling hair, bald patches. To restore new hair-growth use the concentrated natural organic Hair Food. Ask for Pure Silvikrin.

London, Mar. 1. Army estimates totalling £161,133,000, and civil estimates of £531,596,081 were issued today. With the Navy estimates issued yesterday, the total of the estimated 1939 expenditure is £849,359,762. Air estimates are still to be issued.—British Wireless.

HENDERSON REPLACES SIR STAFFORD CRIPPS
London, Mar. 1. Mr. Arthur Henderson, son of the late Labour Foreign Minister, has been elected to the vacancy on the Labour front bench in the place of Sir Stafford Cripps.—Reuter Special.

SEVERAL LEADING Chinese newspapers, including the Ta Kung Pao and the Wah Kiu Yat Po, still insist this morning that the first prize of the Hongkong Derby was jointly won by three Chinese school boys and a girl.

It is confirmed, state the papers, that the $240,000 prize was won by Pang Kwok-kwun, Lee Hing-cheung, Chau Shui-lin and a friend of the three young people.

It is said that they jointly bought the ticket two days after the lunar New Year's Day under the name of Chau Shui-lin, the girl. The name of Chau Shui-lin was responsible for the spreading of the rumours on Monday night that Dr. S. N. Chau had won the first prize.

According to the Chinese papers, the ticket is in the hands of Pang Kwok-kwun, a student of the St. Joseph College, and the son of a wealthy merchant who lived in Wanchai.

Interviewed by Chinese pressmen, the eldest brother of Pang Kwok-kwun said his brother has been out since last Monday and he did not know where he was now. The paper does not give the full name of the boy's brother but states that he is a Mr. Pang, a manager of a certain shipping company in Hongkong.

A celebration was held at the Kam Lung Restaurant on Monday night by the winners, the papers add.

NEW BOMB INCIDENTS IN S'HAJ

SHANGHAI, Mar. 2. In defiance of the emergency policing measures maintained throughout the Settlement, Nanking Road, main thoroughfare of the metropolis, resounded with the blast of bombs last night as Chinese patriots staged another series of bombing outrages as a warning against the Chinese "decadents on the lone island."

Climaxing the night of terror a scene of carnage was witnessed when desperadoes tossed a hand grenade into the Vienna Garden, popular ballroom on Bubbling Well Road at about 11.45 p.m.

The night's outrages were started at about 9.30 p.m. when a group of unidentified Chinese threw a hand-grenade into the street near the Sincere Department Store on Nanking Road and scattered handbills warning against amusement-seekers in the time of emergency. The handbills were signed by "Chinese Youths' Blood Society."

The Municipal Council Police immediately stretched an emergency cordon and interrupting traffic enveloped the Sincere Department Store.

The explosion was followed an hour later by a similar incident when Chinese hurled a hand-grenade into the street at the backdoor of the Wing On Department Store on Yungwa Road.

No arrests of culprits or suspects were reported late last night.—Domei.

Danzig Riots: Note Sequel Students Expelled From University

DANZIG, Mar. 1. THE DANZIG SENATE, it is reported, has received a note from the Polish Government proposing the appointment of a special Commission to enquire into the incidents which have occurred between Polish and German students in Danzig.

It is stated that the Senate will not answer this note as long as it has not itself received the Polish Government's reply to the protest lodged in Warsaw on Monday, and in which the Senate requested that the Polish Commissioner in Danzig be instructed

LONDON, Mar. 1. THE JEWISH DELEGATION has decided to continue to take part in the Palestine conference only on condition that the British proposals are decisively modified, according to well-informed Jewish circles here.

They add that the Jewish delegates, in the course of an informal conversation with the British representatives, requested that before the discussions were resumed, the Cabinet should make known in writing, its acceptance of the concessions demanded.

It is further stated that Mr. Malcolm MacDonald informed the delegates that he personally was unable to give any undertaking of this kind, and that the Jewish demands must be submitted to the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary.—Trans-Ocean.

McMAHON REPORT

London, Mar. 1. Questioned in the House of Commons regarding the McMahon correspondence, Mr. R. A. Butler said that its publication was delayed because the Arab representatives had made suggestions for alterations in the translations, and these were now being considered.

As soon as they agreed, the official text would be produced.

Opposition members pressed for the text to be circulated to the members of the Palestine conference.

Mr. Butler replied that he would consider the question with Mr. Chamberlain.

A meeting of the Jewish panel in connection with the Palestine talks will be held, "Reuter" understands, this evening, to discuss the vital questions of continuing the talks with the British Government.

The panel has been in cable communication with its various constituents in Palestine, the United States, Poland, and elsewhere. It is understood that three courses will be discussed. Firstly, whether to see the conference through to the end; secondly, whether to abandon further talks at the conference; thirdly, whether to leave negotiations to an executive, thus enabling the delegates to return home.—Reuter.

It is disavowed the resolution passed by the Polish Students' Association, which is regarded by the Senate as insulting.

Meanwhile, the rector of the Polytechnic College in Danzig, which was the scene of recent incidents, has announced that five members of the committee of the Polish Students' Association have been expelled from the college.—Trans-Ocean.

Aid and Comfort

All will welcome the news that moral suasion has ended the situation by which the United States was supplying airplanes for Japan's bombing of Chinese civilians. The U.S. National Munitions Control Board reports that applications for licences to export planes and parts to Japan ceased last year. This was in response to an appeal by Mr. Cordell Hull to aircraft makers to stop this sorry business.

There have been some questions as to whether Japan was the only nation engaged in bombing civilian populations. But Japan was a clear-cut case. Moreover American public opinion's strong opposition to the whole of Japan's war in China gave the State Department unquestioned support in this appeal.

With the intensification since Munich of American feeling about some of the allies of Japan, the same public opinion in the United States may now demand cessation of plane exports to Fascist countries. Certainly before American air fleets are developed on the scale now being proposed in Washington to match German air armaments, American exports of planes and motors to Germany should cease. The amount of these is in question, but one estimate recently published was to the effect that hundreds of German military planes are powered by American engines or engines built on plans licensed by American companies. Nearly U.S.$3,000,000 worth of air equipment went to Germany from 1932 to 1936.

The State Department has belittled the amount of American aid to Germany and has said that the granting of export permits is mandatory under the Neutrality Act to nations not at war. Two questions are involved here. One is how far planes and motors listed by the State Department as for civil aviation have been devoted to military use. There is some evidence that planes used in the bombing of Spanish towns have had American motors. Also it may be asked whether American supplies of civil aviation have not facilitated military aviation in Germany. The other question is whether the State Department can use its moral suasion also to stop exports which aid Fascist arming.

"Having frequent occasion to use buses travelling schoolwards, I have been most unpleasantly astounded at the liberties and discourtesies which Chinese boys and young men take, and are allowed to take, unapproached and uncorrected."

Says

smug young China lolls at his of it unencumbered by the comparative ease and in oblivion. And the unfortunate temporary co-tenant of the double seat will probably find himself gradually and painfully edged into the gangway, what there is

"MANNERS Maketh Man."
There may be something in it.

If so, future China appears to be in danger of emasculation. Especially does young China seem unconscious of the benefits which accrue to himself and others, even in refraining from injury to feelings; and he might at times without undue search find an outlet for active courtesy.

Having frequent occasion to use buses travelling schoolwards, I have been most unpleasantly astounded at the liberties and discourtesies which Chinese boys and young men take, and are allowed to take unapproached and uncorrected. Not merely towards the general public.

An expensively clothed, somewhat bloated young blood, as comfortably seated as our exiguous bus seating will permit, not only will allow his form-master to stand in the overcrowded vehicle, but will offer no sign of salutation or even of recognition.

I happen to know that this master is a graduate of Oxford, and ponder upon cause and effect, or vice versa.

or street—the most that can be expected is a careless nod or grin. "Oh, but they must let off steam out of class!"

Let us investigate and, for our sins, participate in a teacher's purgatory.

Noise, inattention, covert or even open insolence to the instructor are far from infrequent.

Upon the first stroke of the "break" bell follows a hideous scrape of scrambling feet and hurtling bodies in this unseemly exodus.

Master's permission to retire? Quite superfluous and, of course, unuttered; or if uttered, would be unheard in the general din; nor are the final words of his peroration of the slightest use.

SUCH ATTRIBUTES—most disheartening to any friend of China—quite possibly arise from an ultra modern idea, not peculiar to the Orient, unhappily, that to display politeness is to lower dignity and suggest subservience.

Schoolmasters tell me that the difficulty with students is not in instruction (the average Chinese adolescent is by no means unintelligent) but to instil into their proteges any notion of the true nature of discipline is all but an impossible task.

The trouble would appear to be that old bugbear "loss of face."

A Chinese boy will not, as a rule, accept deserved punishment cheerfully, get "chipped" a little by his comrades, and then forget the whole episode.

He cannot rid himself of the (probably innate) notion that in undergoing correction he has lowered himself, not only in his own esteem but in that of his comrades and his superiors—if he by chance acknowledges any such!

CAST YOUR MIND back to the days of the old-time, long-gowned Chinese gentlemen—there are still some surviving.

Recollect the honoured place which the tutor in the family or the master in the school occupied in the esteem of the father and the son. The tutor remained honoured and respected to the end of his days.

If the change is a regrettable one, to whom the responsibility, teacher or taught?

One theory is that the Chinese, like the Mongolian pony, cannot take corn; or if he does, merely transforms good grain into monkey tricks, or worse.

FIVE GHOST STORIES

by F. G. H. Salusbury

THE trouble about most ghost stories—and this is the proper season for them—is their source. In general, the better the story the more it owes to imagination; and the more blood-curdling it is, the greater the difficulty of pinning the curdler to actual experience.

The best ghost story I know—Henry James' "The Turn of the Screw"—is a superb article of imagination; its horror is terrific. These little stories of mine pretend to nothing terrific. They are devoid of imagination. I know all the people concerned as well as I know myself, and I promise you that the stories are entirely true. How to explain them is another matter.

1. I will begin by saying that I once lived in a haunted house. I did not see the ghost myself, but I believe that he appeared twice.

There was a small party in my house—I was away—and the hostess and two guests were waiting for the others to arrive. When they trooped in, the hostess was horrified to see that one of them had brought an extra and unexpected girl—thus making an uneven number—but her horror was quenched the next second by the sight of a young man at the tail of the invasion.

This young man behaved rather oddly. He turned away immediately through the opened folding doors into my own particular room, which was deserted and in darkness. In the gust of greeting the hostess decided hurriedly that he might have gone to telephone, but when, after five minutes, he did not reappear, she looked for him. She switched on the light. He had vanished.

No one else had seen him, and her inquiries were treated as leg-pulling. However, she had a perfect recollection of his face, and made a sketch of it afterwards—a sad young fellow, clean-shaven, and a little monkeyish.

2. Six months later he arrived again. The hostess had brought some friends home after the cinema. They were talking when the door-bell rang—a stranger who had mistaken the house. This interruption reminded one of the guests that it was time to go. He went into the hall to collect his hat, and came back to report that he had seen me—he assumed it was I, though he had only seen a man's back—going into my room.

Again the room was found to be empty. I did not come home for another half-hour, and when I did, I was plucked to prove my solidity. It is interesting, perhaps, that this phantom had to have the front door opened for him.

3. Now let us go back to pre-war Ireland, where the same hostess, then a girl of thirteen, was holidaying with her sister on a farm near Bunry. The farm included an ancient Danish fort—a mound about the size of an average house—and the girls decided to excavate it.

Local superstition was against them, for any disturbance of these forts was believed to cause death, particularly among livestock. The farmer's wife, however, was a cheery, independent soul who bade them go ahead. So they began digging out an old, choked well which was supposed to be connected with the interior of the fort by a subterranean passage.

After two days, two cows fell sick, and three calves died. On the third day, the donkey lay down and would not get up. The farmer's wife, embarrassed and apologetic, though still claiming superiority to superstition, asked the girls if they would mind filling up their excavations: so they obliged.

As they were tipping back the last stones, on a hot, sunny afternoon, they both heard from over their shoulders, where no human being was, a laugh. "Ha, ha, ha!" it came, in dreadful bursts. And, from that moment, the cows and the donkey recovered.

4. AGAIN in pre-war Ireland, this girl, accompanied by another sister and a friend, had a much more eerie experience. They were walking up a drive to the friend's house when, rounding a bend near the sea, the girl saw, silhouetted against the night sky, a tall, very thin man. He was standing on a bank, and jumped into the drive immediately in front of them.

"What was so awful," I am told, "was that he landed on the gravel in absolute silence; and his head was so small as to seem a mere button on his long, thin neck. I could feel my hair stirring. I began to cry. My friend, who told me afterwards that she had seen the thing before, turned us round and hurried us back to the lodge. She saw it, too, that time, and said that it followed us for about a hundred yards. But I didn't look. My younger sister didn't see anything."

"We went back to the place the next day, and I found that it would have been impossible to see anything silhouetted against the sky, because the bank was topped by bushes at least six feet high. So he must have been backed by a curious glow of his own."

Some years ago, long after I was told this story, a paragraph, which I have before me, appeared in the old "Morning Post" about elemental earth spirits. It described them as "very tall, lean men—mere 'Hickies o' banes,' to use a North Country description—with small triangular heads." I thought this interesting. A woman I know intimately told me that she once saw a figure, which this description fits, moving along a road near Crawley, in Sussex. It seemed to her to have no head at all.

Then there is the woman who told me that she and her sister, who were taking part in some amateur theatricals in a country house, wondered who was the man with the dark moustache sitting next their father in the front row of chairs. "There was no man," their father said afterwards. "Your aunt was on my left, but the chair on my right was empty."

5. My own supernatural experiences are confined to a chest of drawers and a cake of soap. The chest of drawers was in a house where I was staying. One night, just after I had got into bed, it emitted a loud bang—no mistake about that. The next morning I was told it had belonged to a woman—a friend of the family—who always closed the bottom drawer with a kick.

The cake of soap was in a Battersea house, said to be afflicted by a poltergeist or rowdy spirit. The psychic investigator and I went there. We watched and waited: nothing happened. We went upstairs, leaving the only other occupant of the house in the kitchen. We explored every room. And then, in the middle of a sunlit passage, along which we had walked a minute before, we saw a cake of yellow soap.

Facts, Mr. "Gradgrind, simple facts. What is one to make of them?"

PEERS DEBATE SITUATION IN SOUTH CHINA: EFFECT OF WAR ON HONGKONG

JAPAN ATTACKED BY LORD STRABOLGI

LONDON, Mar. 1.

LORD STRABOLGI was the centre of attention in the House of Lords this afternoon, when he asked for information concerning the war in China.

The Peer made particular reference to events in South China, and asked what steps the Government was taking to safeguard British trading rights and interests in Hongkong, what was the position regarding the Japanese invasion of Hainan, and whether any joint policy with interested Powers for bringing the struggle to an end was being pursued.

Lord Strabolgi said that the questions were not intended to be in any way hostile to the British Government.

Indeed, he said, Lord Plymouth's speech on December 6 was characterised by an unexpected, yet nevertheless welcome attitude of firmness on this vital question of British interests in China.

"Lord Plymouth's words appear to have contained a clear warning that our patience is not inexhaustible," Lord Strabolgi said.

"Since then, certain very important events had occurred in China. Hainan had been invaded, a great part of Hongkong is practically blockaded following the fall of Canton, and the Japanese authorities had levelled threats against the International Settlement authorities in Shanghai.

"I am glad to see to-day a modification of the Japanese attitude, but the so-called Nanking Government had used extraordinary language against British and French nationals in the Settlement."

Lord Strabolgi submitted that the invasion of Hainan was particularly offensive.

There was no military objective so far as war on the Chinese Central Government was concerned.

The French authorities in French Indo-China had stopped the trade in arms to China and even Red Cross material on the Japanese demand.

and in return, the Japanese had promised that Hainan would be recognised as in the French sphere of interest, and would not be attacked. They knew what had happened. This was an example of the uselessness of the policy of so-against the International Settlement, and British and French ships for aiding Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Lord Plymouth said that we had not yet received any confirmation of this from the British Ambassador, and he was of the opinion that they should wait this before considering the question of making representations to Tokyo.

It should be remembered in this connection, that the British Government did not, any more than the Japanese Government, recognise the Reformed Government of Nanking, and any pronouncements made by that Government need not be taken too seriously.

TIENSIN SITUATION

Dealing with the situation at Tientsin, Lord Plymouth said that the position, broadly speaking, was as he described it last December. He added that the British Government had made it clear to the Japanese that there was no lack of co-operation on the part of the Concession authorities, who were prepared to arrest and hand over any person guilty of terrorism, or any other crime.

There had been a systematic destruction everywhere of Chinese universities and seats of learning.

There has been produced in these occupied territories, a corrupt and dishonest regime which has induced in all sorts of abuse, and has shut out all European and American commerce.

"The Foreign Office is aware of the horrible excesses which have taken place. When Nanking was occupied, the soldiers were allowed to run riot, and among those insulted were British and American representatives.

In the past, I have said many things against the regime in Germany, but on this occasion Nazi officials in Nanking behaved with great credit and firmness, and helped refugees under their care to escape from the slaughter and violence of these brutal, and apparently undisciplined, Japanese soldiers."

ATTACK ON JUNKS

Lord Strabolgi proceeded to protest against attacks on helpless fishing junks stating that there was a certain freemasonry at sea.

"The junk fishermen and sailors of China are a very fine race indeed. They have proved always ready to come to our help in ordinary accidents at sea.

"When their wives and children with them, and to descend with aeroplanes and attack helpless fishermen is a most abominable act, for which words sufficiently condemnatory are difficult to find.

"I believe that some protests had been made, and I am not accusing the Government of being blind to all these terrible events."

GERMANS IN CHINA

Regarding the action of German Nazi officials in Nanking, Lord Strabolgi said that he was informed that German merchants were just as alarmed and disturbed by what had happened in China as our own merchants, and it was the German officials who had adopted an attitude of support and comfort for the Japanese authorities.

"There is a tremendous opportunity for the German Government to show its good faith, humanity, and will for peace, by joining with ourselves and other interested Powers in bringing pressure to bear diplomatically or economically to stop this adventure by the Japanese militarists in China.

"If Germany only wishes to make some return for the great advantages which Mr. Chamberlain had conferred upon her in pursuit of

TREATIES ETERNAL

The Government contended that treaties were eternal, and if the Japanese Government or any other signatory had any constructive suggestions to make regarding points on which it thought the treaty might be improved, the British Government would be ready to consider them, and enter into negotiations with all the other signatories regarding the modifications and suggestions.

Similarly, the Government was always ready to resume negotiations with the Chinese Government on the subject of extraterritoriality, or other similar questions when peace was restored.

A note embodying these points was addressed to the Japanese Government on January 14, but so far the Japanese Government had not seen fit to return any reply.

Lord Plymouth said that he always pointed out that in the view of the Government no measures such as those Lord Strabolgi had described were really of any use in solving this difficulty, or of helping the situation, unless they were to be effective.

Airways To The Orient

LONDON, Mar. 1.

ASKED IN the House of Commons to-day regarding the Imperial Airways services to Singapore, Captain H. H. Balfour, Under-Secretary for Air, stated that out of a total of 22 scheduled services due to arrive in Singapore from England between January 1 and February 22 last, 12 arrived late and ten punctually.

Captain Balfour gave no answer when asked how these figures compared with the Royal Dutch services.

Replying to other questions, Captain Balfour said that four cases of delay were due to engine trouble, six to bad weather, and two to missed connections with other aircraft.

K. L. M. COMPARISON

Mr. G. le M. Mander: "Can he say why the Dutch operate more punctually than Imperial Airways?"

Captain Balfour: "I cannot accept that the Dutch services, taking things all round, and after all considerations, are more efficient than Imperial Airways."—Reuter.

appensement, there is a chance in China, where Germany's interests are identical with ours.

"Herr Hitler recently declared that Germany must export or die. There is an immense market in China, where the Germans will have no chance whatever if the Japanese policy proves successful.

"After two years of tremendous struggle, it is common knowledge that Japan, as a country, is economically vulnerable. She will be particularly vulnerable at the present time to economic pressure.

OUR FRIENDS IN CHINA

"Our friends in China, and our fellow citizens of the Chinese race, of whom we have many millions of subjects in our Eastern possessions, are puzzled and disturbed to know why we have not been more active in seeking means to bring this horrible struggle to an end.

"Japanese merchants were making great strides in China before this military adventure, but the Japanese militarists do not want to see a peaceful, strong and united China. They wanted hegemony over the whole of China.

AUSTRALIAN FEARS

"The younger militarists, who seemed to be able to control the policy of the Japanese Government, make no secret of their aims. If they succeed, they will undoubtedly threaten Australia. Members of all political parties there had no illusions on the subject. (Lord Strabolgi recently visited Australia).

"Surely the time has come when the causes of justice, decency, and fair dealing should prevail?

"These Christian and humane causes suffered grievously in Europe and Asia-Minor in the last six months.

"The wicked flourish, and civilised ethics and humanity are flouted. "Cannot we begin to redress the balance in favour of these great causes in Asia? We can rely upon the whole-hearted help of India, Australia, and New Zealand, and, I believe, also Russia, France, and Holland.

PEACEFUL POLICY

"The policy I am advocating is a peaceful policy which can be accomplished without a shot being fired. "We consider this task should have been undertaken by the League of Nations over ten years ago. In any case, if the British Government would seek means of bringing collective pressure to bear, first in diplomatic channels, and then, if necessary in economic and financial fields, we believe that that would be enough.

"A lesson to the aggressors is long overdue. A lesson is needed that brute force, terrorism and bestial cruelty does not pay, and brings sure punishment.

House Of Lords

Government Reply To Attack By Strabolgi

LONDON, Mar. 1.

LORD PLYMOUTH, replying for the Government, said that the difficulty in approaching this question was to give practical effect to any desires or feelings one might have.

Although he agreed with much that Lord Strabolgi had said, he doubted whether Lord Strabolgi had given serious thought regarding the actual practicability of some of his suggestions.

After giving the House information regarding the recent events in China, Lord Plymouth referred to the action the British Government was taking to protect British interests in China, particularly in Hongkong.

He said that the Pearl River was of supreme importance to the trade of Hongkong. The opening of this river to British trade was provided for in the Anglo-Chinese treaty of 1842. It was first closed to navigation by the Chinese authorities on October 13, and a protest was then made by the British Consul-General in Canton.

PEARL RIVER CLOSURE

Since the occupation of Canton by Japan, the Japanese had maintained the closure of the river, and British Government had been actively engaged in endeavouring to secure its re-opening. He was sorry to say that these efforts had not so far been effective. The possibility of taking further steps towards this objective was at present under consideration.

Lord Plymouth added that, in any event, the British Government proposed to continue, as at present, to all in its power to secure British trade and shipping in the occupied areas in China from discrimination in favour of the Japanese, or any other interests.

The latest available information indicated that the customs at Canton, while they had not actually been brought under Japanese control had been subjected to a certain measure of control by the Japanese, as in the case of the Shanghai customs, and a number of Japanese nationals were being added to the staff.

HAINAN ISLAND

The customs at Hoihow on the island of Hainan had been treated in the same way. It was largely due to the courage and tenacity of Mr. Hooper, the deputy Commissioner, at that time in charge of the customs in Canton, that the customs administration in that port had been held intact throughout the attack on Canton, and its capture by the Japanese.

STRONG WEST CRICKET TEAM FOR ENGLAND

R.S. Grants Captains A Party Of Fifteen

Port O'Spain, Trinidad, Feb. 9.

The West Indian Cricket Board of Control have selected 15 cricketers to tour England in the summer under the captaincy of Ralph S. Grant.

Grant, who is 30, is a Cambridge double Blue, like his brother, G. C. Grant, who also captained the West Indies. The team is:

R. S. Grant (Trinidad) (captain),
H. P. Bayley (British Guiana),
J. H. Cameron (Jamaica),
C. B. Clarke (Barbados),
L. Constantine (Trinidad),
G. Gomez (Trinidad),
G. Headley (Jamaica),
T. Johnson (Trinidad),
E. A. Martindale (Barbados),
J. E. D. Sealey (Barbados),
J. Stollmeyer (Trinidad),
V. Stollmeyer (Trinidad),
K. H. Weekes (Jamaica), and
E. A. V. Williams (Barbados).
The team is expected to leave the West Indies towards the end of next month.

BETTER BALANCED THAN SIX YEARS AGO

Thirty-nine years ago the first West Indies team toured England, and it has been told how, when G. L. Jessop once got properly to work against them, they went into paroxysms of joy that such things could be done, even though it was at their own expense, writes Kenneth Rankin.

Since then they have made other, and always welcome, visits, first as eager learners, next as definite challengers, and now, at last, they come as "holders" in the winter of 1934-35.

R. E. S. Wynt's team was defeated in the majority of decided Test matches.

R. S. Grant, who was at Cambridge when the last side visited England in 1933, should find himself in command of a better balanced team than the one led by G. C., his elder brother, for six years ago too much depended on Headley with the bat and Martindale with his fast bowling.

During that tour, it will be remembered Constantine's League engagement with Nelson prevented him from playing in more than five matches, but the fact that he is now permanently available will make a vast difference, even though at the age of 36 he may feel the change between once-a-week and continuous cricket.

SOME OLD RIVALS

Certainly Headley, Martindale and Constantine form a very nice nucleus for any side, and to their number, as far as touring experience goes, must be added Barrow, an excellent wicket-keeper and a good century batsman to have made a century against England at Manchester in 1933.

Grant, of course, is thoroughly acquainted with English conditions, and so too, is J. H. Cameron, who, it never quite fulfilling the expectations aroused when in 1932, he took all 10 wickets against the Lord's

Schools, has done much useful service for Cambridge and Somerset with the bat as well as with his "weakness."

Of the newcomers, Williams is a fast bowler and Clarke sends down leg-breaks and googlies at rather above the usual pace. English batsmen who met him on his own terrain may wonder at the exclusion of Hyton, whose speed, along with that of Martindale and Constantine, did so much to beat Wyatt's team.

The batting looks very strong. Headley, of course, we know. He has already scored six centuries, including 270 not out and 223, off English bowling. The left-handed Weekes makes a regular habit of scoring largely. Almost equally content is Bayley. J. E. D. Sealey played an innings of 91 in the last Test series, and much is expected of the stylish Gomez and the young brothers Stollmeyer.

ROSE ELECT WINS CHAMPION STAKES WITH GREAT EASE

Biggest disappointment in yesterday's racing at Happy Valley, of course, was the non-appearance of Silkylight in the Championship Stakes; for without Mr. Eric Moller's candidate, the race could be nothing else but a walk-over for Rose Elect, Mr. Eu Tong-sen's Derby winner.

And so it proved. Though Rose Elect was challenged at one stage by its stable-mate, Desert Chief, it finally won with two lengths to spare—a personal triumph for Mr. Eu who thus not only won the Derby but the champions as well, with a second pony in the latter race.

While the report that Silkylight was not starting—owing to colic, it is believed—caused a mild sensation on the course early yesterday, it was not a great surprise to those who were "in the know." As was remarked in these columns yesterday, Silkylight did not show its usual form on Tuesday when it won the Peking Plate and the time was for her—unusually slow. It was evident that all was not well with the pony.

LOW DIVIDENDS

Many favourites, or near-favourites, won yesterday, and as a result dividends were on the low side on the whole, though King Kong began the day well by paying its supporters $75 for a win in the opening race and shortly afterwards, Sylvandale, paid $31.

The best finish of the day was in the final race, the Sports Club Cup and Hongkong Stakes, in which Celtic Star (Mr. F. Marshall) and Marksmen (Mr. T. L. Wong) fought out the last 100 yards or so neck and neck and stride to stride. It was a magnificent finish, and it was but just that the judges awarded a dead-heat. Punters were satisfied with the verdict.

The owners, as already reported, sportingly tossed a coin for the Cup, and the owners of the Star pony won. In the old days, the two ponies would have had to fight it out in a separate race.

HOCKEY NOT INCLUDED IN OLYMPICS

(By "The Pilgrim")

It is not the intention at present to include hockey in the 1940 Olympic Games on account of there being no suitable grounds in Finland. The Federation Internationale Hockey has, therefore, decided to hold a world championship in 1940 at Amsterdam.

The F.I.H. has also decided to organise such a meeting in any Olympic year, when, for any reason it is not found possible to include hockey in the Olympic programme.

This is a fresh enterprise on the part of the F.I.H., and it remains to be seen whether a British team, or separate teams of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales will enter for this tournament at Amsterdam. To enter the Olympic hockey series, Great Britain would have to enter a combined British team and not four countries separately. But I am unaware of any such rule being necessary in regard to the F.I.H. tournament.

ADVICE GIVEN TO FORWARDS

TRIANGULAR MOVEMENT OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

Unlike the outside, the inside forward has a colleague on either side, and must combine with them both. His combination with his wing will consist in taking part in the triangular movement; in giving long diagonal passes to his wing, and occasional straight (through) passes, to gather which the wing will have to run inwards. This may mean that he and the inside will have to change places, which is always a sound tactical move, if carried out successfully.

The inside forward's combination with his centre will consist of short passes. These passes can be hit hard, for there are two other forwards to pick up the pass, should the centre fail to do so. When near the circle, the inside should remember to pass inwards as a rule, rather than to the wings to pass out is waste of time, and means that the opposing defence has time to mark down the inside, before the centre comes across.

FORWARD TACTICS

Broadly speaking, the wing forwards (the inside left and outside left and the inside right and outside right) should work in pairs, until passing the opponents' twenty-five, giving the centre forward plenty of room. He will instinctively edge slightly over towards the wing which has the ball, and, at the twenty-five or thereabouts, the wing-men should grasp an early opportunity to pass in fairly hard, or with an accurate flick, to the centre. The three insides will have got, by then, into a more central position, in order to harass the defence. The centre forward should also be in close proximity. If the opponent halves do not know their job, the rapid flick out again from him will sometimes find his outside unmarked.

This flick, like most passes to forwards, should be made a yard off of the desired recipient, to allow of his taking the ball along in full stride, for, by that means, the defence gets more exhausted than by square passes or by those direct to the man which will afford the defence time to discover their positions as a whole.

This strategy may lure the back out to one of the outside men, who should then pass hard and clear of him, thus, as often as not, leaving the opponents all at sea.

'THE PILGRIM' PICKS HIS LADIES' HOCKEY INTERPORT ELEVEN

In last Sunday's trial there was only a handful of players who really lived up to their reputation. I was glad to see at least four of the C.B.S. girls given a trial, but now I understand that should any of the schoolgirls be selected they won't be able to make the trip north, as permission from their Principal has been refused. If such is the case I should say it is merely waste of good time giving the girls a trial at all.

Apart from Mrs. Lunson, Miss G. White, Mrs. Wilmot, Mrs. I. Stone, Miss I. Woolley, Miss J. Wong, Miss M. Westcott, Miss M. Booker, Miss M. Shand and Miss J. Ewing, there were really no outstanding stars to be found on either side, but often as is not blind and it is, perhaps, far better to look for cohesive qualities which are so frequently missing from trial games. Hence I will nominate my Interport XI according to current form. This I am doing to assist the selectors, two of whom I observe have seen very little of ladies' hockey in the colony.

My suggestions are:

Goal-keeper—Mrs. Lunson. (H.K. Ladies) She is still a sturdy and reliable goalkeeper and with her Interport experience, she has no equal.

Backs—Miss G. White (St. Andrews) and Miss A. Fowler. (Y. Ladies) They have not, to my knowledge, even played together before at back, but should not find this at all a weakness. Though the latter, an old Interporter, is liable to be erratic, they are both good tacklers and powerful hitters.

GOOD HALF-BACKS

Half Backs—Miss J. Wong, Miss I. Woolley and Mrs. M. Bell. I prefer Miss Wong at right-half as she is prone to wander too much at times and does unnecessary work as a pivot. Miss I. Woolley, as centre half, is in brilliant form at the moment. She has splendid powers of recovery, is the soundest of tacklers and clumps the ball well to her forwards. They are both Interporters and one will easily forget their brilliance in the last contest. My selection of Mrs. M. Bell at left half will probably cause a mild sensation, but in my opinion she is worth her place and in the last few games I have seen her play, she has shown more than average good form this season. Very energetic with her tackling and very astute and skilful in attack.

Forwards—Mrs. Burnett (Y. Ladies), Miss Harker (Y. Ladies), Miss C. Silva (Recreio), Miss P. Reid, (St. Andrews) and Miss Westcott (Y. Ladies).

I am rather doubtful of two positions in my attack, i.e. centre-forward and inside-left. It is my desire, however, to introduce new blood into the ranks as a step which should always be welcome, provided the new players are equal to those displaced.

Of the four leaders on view last Sunday I would say Mrs. Ackroyd was the best, but Miss Silva who has not appeared as yet will, I am sure, solve the problem in that position. She is fast, has good shooting qualities, fine anticipation and feeds her forwards well.

My original choice at inside-left was Miss Mona Shand (C.B.S.) but in view of her not being able to make the trip (permission may be granted) I have chosen Miss Reid.

Miss I. Woolley, the brilliant C.B.A. centre-half, is a certainty for Interport honours according to "The Pilgrim."

"PILGRIM'S" RANDOM JOTTINGS

BY their win of 3-2 over St. Andrew's last Saturday, the H.K. Ladies have ruined the Saints' chances of tying with the Y. Ladies for championship honours in the Caer Clark Cup Tournament this season. The H.K. Ladies deserve full credit for their well-deserved victory, more so as they played with only ten players. It was the second opportunity I had of seeing Miss S. Reeve in action at left back. I thought she was by no means spectacular, but her spilling work came in very useful and at the correct moment. Miss Pope and Miss Grey in the defence were generally good, but Mrs. M. Bell at left half was the best of the halves; she played a brilliant, energetic game and kept Miss F. Wong well in check. On the display she is certainly worth an Interport trial. Mrs. Dalziel was a "live wire" in the attack and it was really due to her do-or-die efforts that her team won the day. Mrs. Lunson, in goal, was as good as ever and her prospects for the Interport seem very rosy.

HAD St. Andrew's defeated the H.K. Ladies and later the Y. Ladies they would have probably won the Cup. Their hopes were, however, shattered in last Saturday's defeat. They were the first to score and showed superiority in all departments of the game but again their finishing touches in the circle were poor. The forwards displayed destructive rather than constructive tactics. Miss M. Roza was responsible for the second goal being scored against her side; had she cleared the ball in time Miss M. Smailley would never have beaten her to it. The backs were apt to be spraddled by the long passing of the opposition and the backs were inclined to keep too far up. Miss J. Hall, in goal, had a bad day and was very disappointing; had she advanced in time, the first two goals would have been saved. On the whole, the Saints played open, attractive hockey, but their finishing was poor and several good movements ended with wide shots at goal. Better luck next time.

EXCELLENT BALANCE

The two wingers are experienced Interporters who are very sound in attack. Miss Harker gave a very good exhibition at inside-right last Sunday and should be the final choice.

That there is an excellent balance in defence as well as an evenness in the attack cannot be denied and I hope the selectors will give this team serious consideration. Other players worthy of consideration are:

Goal-keeper: Miss Moss (C.B.A.). Backs: Mrs. Wilmot (Seaforths) and Miss M. Roza (St. Andrews).

Halves: Miss J. Booker (C.B.A.), Miss B. Pope (H.K. Ladies) and Mrs. Williams (Y. Ladies).

Forwards: Miss J. Ewing (C.B.A.), Miss M. Booker (C.B.A.), Mrs. Dalziel (H.K. Ladies), Miss M. Smailley, and Miss D. Hunt.

The ladies would do well to appear in full colours in their trial next Sunday. A thin red ribbon tied across the waste on the shoulders, against a background of blue, green and yellow is most confusing to the umpires.

Golf Becomes Big Business In Australia

RIVAL TO CRICKET RACING NOW AMONG COUNTRY'S SPORTS

The golf craze has hit Australia hard; in fact, it has become so popular that it is fast rivaling cricket and racing, at present dominant "down under." Jim Ferrier and von Nida are the leading players, and they are good enough to be considered among those in the running for the British Open this year.

There are 781 golf-clubs in Australia, made up of: New South Wales 285, Victoria 249, Western Australia 90, South Australia 65, Queensland 61, Tasmania 31. Taking into account the public links which have sprung up like mushrooms in recent years, Australia possesses more than 1,000 courses.

Among them 250,000 golfers (a conservative estimate) own clubs and bags valued at nearly £1,500,000. If they use one ball a week the annual bill can be assessed at £620,000. Then, as nudist golf has not yet become the vogue, these golfers have to be fitted out with appropriate clothes, shoes, etc.—a tally of £480,000 worth yearly.

Liquid refreshment and food are estimated to incur an annual outlay by the followers of St. Andrews of £2,100,000.

HUGE CAPITAL

All this does not take into account the freehold value of the land over which the millions of little white balls travel; the club-houses, some of them palatial, where, over the convivial glass, golfers swap tales that are said to rival those of fishermen. Suffice it to say that two or three of the larger clubs in Australia are capitalised at about £100,000.

The vast club-house at Rose Bay, Sydney, is said to be worth £75,000. Club-houses and furnishings at Victoria Club (Victoria) cost £35,000. Golf, in the Commonwealth, therefore, is a business on a large scale, a business supporting thousands of workers. In relation to its population, Australia has more golf courses than almost any other country in the world.

There are inland courses; there are seaside and country courses; there are public links. Supplying the demand for golf on a pay-as-you-play plan, these last-named have grown phenomenally in the last few years. The success of one, the Yarra Bend National Park Links, near Melbourne, has been nothing short of remarkable. About five years back, the Park Trusts undertook the very expensive job of converting a waste area of parkland into one of the most picturesque playing-areas ever known. The reward for this is that every year thousands of pounds come in from two shilling and sixpenny and eighteen-penny green fees.

UNEXPECTED HAZARDS

In the "outback" areas, golfing gets a little rougher. In these areas there are sand and greens and all sorts of unexpected hazards.

Not that sand greens are all bad. Well prepared, they offer splendid putting surfaces. But hazards? One of the most unpleasant obstacles to quiet, restful golf is the crow. Somewhere, crows have developed an inordinate liking for golf balls.

In some Victorian country centres, and even at stately Canberra, Australian capital, these dusky thieves are so prone to sneak off with golf balls that players need, metaphorically, to have a club in one hand and a shotgun in the other.

"Shooting birds"—a golf term originating in America—has a real meaning for golfers in some parts in Australia.

These hazards are, however, nothing to those to be encountered in the North Territory. There the menace is replaced by giant land-crabs and snakes. The crabs sneak off with the balls to their holes; the latter treat them as eggs and swallow them.

V.R.C. BEAT S. & S. HOME

In the "B" Division of the Badminton League, the V.R.C. defeated the Sailors and Soldiers Home by 7-2 last evening. Scores:

L. Landau and F. Castro (V.R.C.) beat Roberts and Wood 21-12; lost to North and Bywater 14-21; beat Edwards and May 21-10.

W. Pullen and W. Fisher (V.R.C.) lost to Roberts and Wood 11-21; beat North and Bywater 21-10; beat Edwards and May 21-11.

A. K. Rumlaha and A. Ulrich (V.R.C.) beat Roberts and Wood 21-10; beat North and Bywater 21-10; beat Edwards and May 21-10.

ENGINEERS WIN IN LAST OVER

An exciting cricket match was played at Sookunpoo yesterday when the Royal Engineers defeated the Middlesex Regiment by four wickets in the last over of the day.

After losing two quick wickets, Middlesex totalled 172 as the result of a third-wicket stand by Lieut. Mann and Sgt. Painter. From 18, Mann and Painter took the score to 111, the former scoring seven fours in his 41 and the latter 11 fours in his 63.

Denyer, of the Engineers, bowled exceedingly well and finished up with six wickets for 58 runs.

S/Sgt. Goodger and Sgt. Carpenter gave the Engineers a good start, taking the total to 44 before Goodger was bowled by Paterson. Shaw and Carpenter then put on 69 for the second wicket, and when Carpenter was dismissed for 66 the total had been taken to 154. He hit 10 fours.

After Carpenter's dismissal, Shipp hit out merrily for 35, and enabled the Engineers to win by four wickets in the last over.

CLUB WIN RUGBY

A handful of rugby enthusiasts saw the Hongkong Club "A" defeat the R.A.O.C. by 11 points to 3 in a rugby match at the Club ground yesterday at the commencement of the match the R.A.O.C. threatened but were unable to score.

From then onwards, the Club took advantage of opportunities offered, and emerged easy winners.

Just before their championship wrestling match, Joe E. "The Gladiator" Brown and Man Mountain Dean shake hands. But Joe is a science-made superman and his handshake is nothing to be sneezed at. R. Whitcombe Versus Bobby Locke

London, Feb. 21.
Reginald Whitcombe, the British Open champion, and Bobby Locke, the South African champion, will play a £500 challenge golf match at Woodhe Hill, on May 31 and June 1, says Reuter.

The match was arranged when Henry Cotton turned down Locke's challenge and Whitcombe accepted it. Locke originally wanted the match to be played a winner-take-all basis, but Whitcombe insisted that as Open champion he was entitled to 50 per cent. of the "gate." Locke later agreed.

OUR GUIDE TO THE CINEMAS

"The Gladiator" (King's Theatre, to-day).—The Joe E. Brown fraternity is going to like this one. Poor Joe plays dummy for the football squad until his strength becomes as the strength of ten—due to an inoculation by a professor. The climax is reached when, half-way through his wrestling match with Man Mountain Dean, the serum gives out. But the gods don't and the hero wins. Splendid entertainment.

"Tom Sawyer, Detective" (Queen's Theatre, to-day).—Mildly exciting and humorous diversion based on the Mark Twain story. Tom and Huck identify the diamond thieves and prove that Uncle Silas did not murder the hired man's twin brother.

"Mean As a Snake" (Alhambra Theatre, to-day).—They certainly are, if Jimmy (Wayne Morris) is a fair sample. His wife (Priscilla Lane) tries to mix marriage to him with a career and has difficulties. How these difficulties are smoothed out provides situations to develop the picture into an entertaining one.

"Doctor Rhythm" (Oriental Theatre, to-day).—Beatrice Lillie hits her stride as far as the movies are concerned and saves this from being just another musical. Miss Lillie more than justifies her large following and will probably increase it when she sings about the gypsy in her. The film is agreeable enough, with Bing Crosby singing his way in and out of a plot about a doctor who turns policeman to save a rich heiress from a fortune hunter. Mary Carlisle, Laura Hope Crews, Franklyn Pangborn and Andy Devine are others in the cast.

"There's Always a Woman" (Majestic Theatre, to-day).—Joan Blondell and Melvyn Douglas in a "Grim Man" type of sleuth yarn, with Miss Blondell appearing as the spouse who stumbles on the clues. Amusing stuff, a little overdone, which mightily benefits from Melvyn Douglas's suave playing.

"Breaking the Ice" (Cathay Theatre, to-day).—Those who care for Bobby Breen will like this show, which is one of his best.

HONGKONG AREA FINALS DECIDED LAST EVENING

The finals of the Hongkong Area novices individual boxing championships were held at Nanking Barracks, Shamshuipo, last night. Some good boxing was seen, and perhaps the best bout of the evening was that between Pte. McDougal and Pte. Fawcett, which was won by the latter. Both fighters went for each other right from the start, and at the end McDougal was congratulated by the referee for putting up a plucky display.

Col. Nevill, G.S.O.I., distributed the prizes, after which he said that when he first came out he was told he would probably see some very dirty fighting in the neighbourhood. Last week at the Border this was proved to be perfectly true, and it was a great pleasure to see a whole evening of absolutely clean fighting.

The results were:
Bantamweight—Pte. Murphy (R.S.) beat Pte. Madden (R.S.).
Featherweight—Pte. Brown (R.S.) beat Pte. Edler (R.S.).
Lightweight—Pte. Morley (R.S.) beat Pte. Dickerley (R.A.M.C.).
Semi-lightweight—Pte. McNally (R.S.) beat Pte. Spencer (R.S.).
Middleweight—Pte. Moore (R.S.) beat Pte. Finlay (R.S.).

Brightening Sunless Windows

HERE is a new method of arranging curtains which will bring an appearance of sunshine and a suggestion of a flowery garden into a dim and cheerless room.

Cover the window with a glass curtain of cream net, reaching to the sill. Hang it moderately full, its width being one and a half times the width of the window.

On one side of this curtain apply gay coloured flowers with leaves and long stems, all made of silk through which the light will shine.

On the opposite side arrange a single curtain of some deep daffodil yellow material having a silky lustre. It should be wide enough to cover the entire window and cut long enough to reach the bottom of the window frame. Half-way between orange below. Start the third flower the top of the window and the middle the curtain should be drawn up centre, and lavender below.

The next lower flower is made in a similar way, starting with a large irregular circle of lavender, and using pink for its upper centre, and extra thicknesses of silk underneath are cut away so as to leave only one thickness of silk throughout the flower.

The pink silk and tacked over the centre of the yellow silk. Turn the edge of the upper half of this pink piece under for one quarter of an inch and button-hole on to the yellow silk, using pink silk thread.

A piece of the lavender silk, somewhat in the shape of an irregular half moon, is now tacked over all its edges turned under and button-holed on to the yellow below it, using lavender thread. Then all the extra thicknesses of silk underneath are cut away so as to leave only one thickness of silk throughout the flower.

The next lower flower is made in a similar way, starting with a large irregular circle of lavender, and using pink for its upper centre, and extra thicknesses of silk underneath are cut away so as to leave only one thickness of silk throughout the flower.

The long thin leaves must be a of thin plain silk so that the effect will be light and airy. Very thin satin is equally satisfactory. Heavier material should not be used as the desired effect is not that of ordinary heavy-looking applique.

The colours for the flowers might be pink, yellow, orange, and a light rosy lavender. Another charming combination would be light blue, dark blue, yellow and deep reddish orange.

The top flower, which should reach just below the middle of the window is made in this way:—Cut out a circular piece of yellow silk, five inches in diameter, but very irregular in outline, suggesting the shape of a flower. Turn the edge under for a quarter of an inch and button-hole with yellow silk thread.

This is easier to do if the silk is first tacked to a piece of newspaper, from which afterwards can be torn away, and extend almost to the An irregular circle, 3½ inches in diameter, should now be cut from

Australian Beer Garden

Sydney, Australia.

Australia is to have its first beer garden. It will be built along the latest continental lines, with a seating capacity of 200 people, mostly under coloured awnings and umbrellas. However, under existing licensing laws it will have to close at 6 p.m.

COOKING HINTS

FISH will fry fine golden brown if crushed cornflakes are substituted for the usual coating of breadcrumbs.

When preparing a chicken for roasting, brush it over with olive oil. This makes it very tender, and the flavour is greatly improved.

When roasting apples before placing them in the oven, take a sharp knife and make a cut round each one, just breaking the peel and no more. This ensures that the apples will remain whole without bursting.

When mixing a fruit tart, mix a little cornflour with the sugar before adding it to the fruit. This will make the juice like syrup and prevent it from boiling over.

To prevent the jam in jam tarts becoming hard and dry through the heat of the oven, add boiling water to the jam. (A dessertspoonful to a teaspoon of jam is a good proportion.) Mix and place in tarts when half cooked. The water evaporates and leaves the jam soft and juicy.

If short pastry is mixed with milk instead of water, it will keep for a longer period.

Sometimes the pastry in a fruit tart is sodden and heavy through the juice boiling up over the pastry. To prevent this, cut a drinking straw in four, and place these in the pastry to form "chimneys." This allows the steam to escape, and the pastry remains dry and crisp.

Before baking potatoes in their jackets, soak them in hot water for 15 minutes, dry them and brush over with olive oil. Put in the oven and bake until fluffy.

Help Dry Skin With Oatmeal

THE most important attribute of feminine beauty is a skin that is clear and unblemished. It may be necessary for you to spend long hours in testing out treatments to gain such a skin. One of the more unusual types of skin that we seldom discuss in detail is the dry skin that is marred by blackheads and pimples.

This condition in dry skin is caused by a previous enlarged pore condition which was not properly treated so the dilated pores were left to collect impurities. These impurities hold onto the blackheads cannot be removed at all without special treatment. Any attempt to press them out results in bruised skin and tender areas which are likely to become infected.

REMOVES BLACKHEADS

Here is an excellent treatment that will remove the blackheads, tighten the pores and at the same time help overcome the dryness. The treatment consists partly of a facial with oatmeal bags. Cut four inch squares from cheesecloth and in the centre of each one, place a tablespoonful of a mixture made from one cup oatmeal, one teaspoon finely shaved castile soap and about an eighth of a teaspoon of sulphur. Mix the ingredients thoroughly.

Pick up the corners of the squares of gauze, twist them together and tie near the top with a piece of string. Be sure to leave plenty of space for the oatmeal to swell.

Now heat a small dish of olive oil. Dip a pad of cotton in the warm oil and go over the skin and wipe it off with tissues. If the skin is still soiled, use a second application and remove. Leave the next application on the skin for three or four minutes so it will have a chance to penetrate the pores.

FINISH WITH CREAM

Dip one of the bags into a glass of warm water. Let it soak until the water is milky and the bag is thoroughly moistened. Without wringing it out, wash the face with the bag just as you would a washcloth. Go over and over the areas affected by blackheads. Rub the bag over the face for several minutes, redipping it if necessary to keep it moist.

Rinse the face in clear, tepid water and then put some of the liquid from the oatmeal over it and let it dry. After this apply a film of nourishing cream and let it remain on the skin ten minutes, remove and apply your cosmetics.

Repeat the treatment at night, only follow the nourishing cream with another application of olive oil and allow it to remain on the skin until morning. After a week or so, according to the improvement of your skin, the olive oil may be discontinued at night, though it should always be noted before going over the skin with oatmeal bags.

LATE NEWS

HAMMER ATTACK SEQUEL

Wounding Of Editor Of Newspaper

THE SENSATIONAL ATTACK in Des Voeux Road on January 17 on Lum Pak-fang, Editor of the "South China Daily News" and reportedly a secretary to Wang Ching-wei, had a sequel in the Central Magistracy this afternoon.

A Chinese named Chan Sek-lum was charged with wounding Lum with intent to murder and, alternatively, wounding with intent to cause grievous bodily harm.

Mr. E. H. Williams appeared for the Crown, assisted by Mr. M. A. da Silva, whilst Mr. C. A. S. Russ appeared for defendant.

In outlining the case, Mr. Williams said that on January 17, at about 5 p.m. Lum was proceeding along the road towards Pender street, and had gone only a few paces when he received several heavy blows on the head. He immediately collapsed.

There were no actual eye-witnesses of the attack, but Dr. Farr, Government Radiologist, who was getting into his car near the scene of the attack, noticed a man slink to the ground. At the same time, he saw another man running.

He noticed also that defendant had been quite near complainant and had noticed him striking complainant on the head as he was on the ground.

He heard three sickening thuds and Dr. Farr assumed that the man had his skull crushed.

Dr. Farr immediately rushed into Messrs. Lane Crawford and telephoned for an ambulance.

Mr. C. de S. Robertson happened to come out of Bodwell's shop-room and witnessed the same incident. He saw the defendant strike three blows with a hammer. He shouted "Stop" and the man ran away, dropping the hammer in doing so.

At that time, Privates Hirst and Mullin were walking along the street, and the man ran into their arms. They took him back to the scene of the attack. There they found an iron bar, and the hammer was discovered on the ground near the scene of the attack. The ambulance then arrived and the victim was sent to hospital.

The defendant was identified by Dr. Farr. At the Police Station, Inspector Whant questioned defendant. He volunteered to give the name of the injured person.

The following day, the defendant was charged and, in reply said "I have nothing to say."

Dr. Court, of the Queen Mary Hospital, then gave evidence as to Lum's injuries. Mr. Williams stated that it was fortunate complainant was wearing a soft felt hat at the time of the attack, as it had undoubtedly saved him from mortal injuries.
